Holiday bitter for employes who got pink slip

For the dozen employes of Kehe Motor Service in Arlington Heights, Christmas has a hollow ring.

The company, in business for more than 50 years, was sold last Friday. The employes received their termination notices Wednesday.

They knew it was coming. The 10 drivers and two office workers had been told last week the company would be sold to the A and B Freight Co. of Rockford.

NEVERTHELESS, WHEN they opened the little slip of paper inserted with their checks the day before Christmas Eve, the reality of it hit hard.

"One of the drivers had tears in his eyes," one employe said. "He's one of the older ones. It'll probably be harder for him to find another job.

"For me, maybe it won't be so bad,' another employe said. "I'm 47, so I might still get in under the wire. But some of the guys are 56, 57. I don't know, maybe it's better that it happened now than three years from now."

Fred E. Kehe, owner of the fleet of 11 tractors and 25 trailers which his father started in 1926, said the increasing number of big freight and transfer companies forced him to sell. "The little carriers don't have a chance anymore," he said.

"I FEEL SORRY for them myself," Kehe said of his drivers. "But what can you do? I hate to turn the guys out, but those big outfits are taking over the little guys."

For the employes, the news coming only two days before Christmas made it all the more bitter. "You can't plan a vacation, that's for sure," one employe said.

"I was supposed to be on vacation next week, but that's canceled now," another said. Instead the week would be spent trying to line up another job.

But for the long-time employes of the firm, the company's sale means more than just the loss of a job.

"Some of us helped build that company," one employe said. "It's like climbing to the top and then having someone pull the ladder out from under you. You have to start all over again."

Thousands of pilgrims pray at Jesus' birthplace

Bethlehem, Israeli-occupied Jordan (UPI)—The Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem led thousands of pilgrims through the Judean hills past a gauntlet of armed Israeli soldiers to Christmas Eve prayers at the birthplace of Jesus.

Msgr. Giacomo Beltritti sang vespers for a crowd of about 5,000 Christian pilgrims inside and outside the cream-colored Church of the Nativity.

Mayor Elias Freij predicted the largest number of visitors in Bethlehem for Christmas ceremonies since Isreal captured the town from Jordan during the 1967 Middle East War.

"This will be a record for the last 10 years," Freij said as he viewed the arriving Christians. "We expect 20,000 visitors in Manger Square tonight - - more than double the figure of last year."

MSGR. BELTRITTI traveled the six miles from Jerusalem to Bethlehem in the early afternoon in a convoy of two dozen vehicles, including a truck of Israeli soldiers and a jeep with a machine gun on top.

Six Israeli mounted policemen, carrying wooden staffs bearing colorful pennants, accompanied the convoy on horseback through the green, rolling hills of ancient Judea.

Beltritti, wearing a gold cross around his neck and a bishop's miter, was greeted in Manger Square by Lt. Col. Shabtai Brill, Isreal's red-bearded military governor in Bethlehem.

The prelate then followed a colorful crowd of deacons in blue robes, choirboys in red, acolytes in black and monks in brown into St. Catherines, the Roman Catholic section of the Church of the Nativity.

A CROWD of about 1,000 persons followed Beltritti into the church to hear vespers. The remaining 4,000 in the square at the time strolled through crowds of Arabs hawking souvenirs as a band played "Come All Ye Faithful."

Israeli troops in battle gear set up three roadblocks between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, blocking all vehicles except those with special permits. Troops patrolled the hills where shepherds tended their flocks in the days of Roman rule when Jesus was born.

At Manger Square, a soldier stopped a nun, opened her plastic shopping bag and searched among the potatoes inside for bombs. There were none.

A black-uniformed Israeli police band played Broadway show tunes in the square and a procession of colorfully clad Boy Scouts marched through the square.

Merchants set up tables on the steep streets leading to the square and laid out an assortment of nuts, candies and cakes for visitors. A man in a Santa Claus suit walked through the side streets ringing a bell.

Millions watch Pope usher in Christmas

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI ushered in Christmas with a midnight mass beneath Bernini's bronze canopy at the main altar in St. Peter's Basilica before a congregation of thousands and a worldwide television audience of 900 million.

The Roman Catholic pontiff then retired to his apartment to place a statuette of the Christ Child in a crib, adorned this year with a nativity painting by exiled Hungarian artist Janos Hajnal, in his private chapel with only a few close aides looking on.

Television networks from 32 countries in four continents aired a live transmission of the Christmas Eve rite in the largest church in Christendom, glittering with candles and electric lights. Officials said the potential audience for the midnight mass was 900 million.

The 79-year-old pontiff, dressed from mitre to slippers in gold and white, walked into the basilica just before midnight (5 p.m. Chicago time) and went to a sacristy adjoining Michaelangelo's statue of the Pieta to don white mass vestments.

The congregation applauded as red-clad attendants carried him through the nave in his portable throne, the gestatorial chair.

The pope officiated mass at the main altar under the towering bronze canopy by Bernini, right above what the Vatican says is the tomb of the apostle Peter.

Aides read prayers in different languages — French for the church, English for all mankind, German for the poor, children, orphans, exiles and the suffering, and Spanish for those present in St. Peter's.

Needy find a little holiday cheer at Center

by LINDA PUNCH

Bertha is the mother of four, divorced from her husband and facing Christmas on a limited income.

With the help of food stamps and public aid, she is able to scrape by day to day, but the extra trimmings of the Holiday season are beyond her means. She looks to the Northwest Opportunity Center and other local service organizations to provide the Christmas cheer her family would otherwise miss.

Bertha's plight is shared by the 4,000 other low-income families living in the Northwest suburbs. Ana Casadas, an opportunity staff member said. The center provides counseling to the families on housing, health care service, social services and legal problems.

IT'S HARD FOR low-income families all year around. At Christmas, I imagine they have something at home, but probably the biggest gifts they get will be from the center," she said.

The center recently sponsored a Christmas party for children of low-income families. The celebration was attended by more than 700 persons, including 575 children. Each child left with a gift donated by local churches, Scout troops and civic organizations. Girl Scout Cadet Troop 519 provided the entertainment.

Some low-income families also will be the recipients of Christmas dinner sponsered by the center Miss Casadas said.

"We have to be selective about giving out the dinners. We have 4,000 families and we'll only get about 20 donated dinners," she said, adding that each meal will include a turkey or ham, canned goods and fresh vegetables.

MICHAEL RAIMONDI, center director, said there are few organizations working with the needy on a regular basis.

"We're the only organization that is responsible for this kind of thing. There are a lot of organizations doing fund drives, but they can only handle it on a limited scale," he said.

Raimondi said the Chistmas season brings a warm response from suburban residents for requests to help the needy. He said the interest drops, however, when the holidays end.

"Our needs go on throughout the year but people don't realize it," he said.

CHRISTMAS FOOD drives for the needy also have been sponsored by several local civic organizations and churches. Some of the groups sponsoring holiday projects for low-income families include:

- Elk Grove Township. Township officials distributed more than 50 food baskets to needy families. The food was donated by the Mount Prospect Lions Club, Boy Scout Troop 361 and the Elk Grove VFW. The CB-7 Club of Elk Grove Village and St. Zachary's Church also donated 150 gifts.
- The Coffee Breakers, a Schaumburg Township Citizens' Band radio group. This 175-member group collected toys for the 250 township youngsters whose parents are out of work.
- St. Mary's Church of Buffalo Grove. Church members have collected toys, clothing and food for 20 needy Chicago families.
- St. Paul Lutheran Church of Mount Prospect. Church members collected winter footwear for inner city residents. The shoes will be distributed through the Chicago Uptown Ministry.
- Our Lady of Hope Church of Des Plaines. Parishioners donated wrapped presents for needy children of an inner city parish.
- Mount Prospect's Police Explorer Scouts collected nearly 250 toys, games and stufed animals to distribute as Christmas gifts this year to children at Maryville Academy, Des Plaines and Little City Foundation, Palatine.

Donations still are being accepted areawide for the Forgotten Children's Fund Campaign, Toys for Tots Campaign and Neediest Families Fund.

New bus line rides on route of success

The new bus line serving Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines "is really taking off," said Robert Bourne, assistant general manager of the North Suburban Mass Transit District, this week. Ridership figures on the route, which replaced the Wheeling village bus system, will reach about 500, he said. The Wheeling village system never exceeded 250 passengers per week. "As it is now, revenue is exceeding costs of operating the service," Bourne said. "It (the route) is doing real good." The Wheeling bus system had served only village shopping centers and subdivisions and included routes to the Milwaukee Road train station in Northbrook and connected to a NORTRAN route to the Golf Mill Shopping Center, Niles. The new system begins its route at Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road, proceeds west on Dundee Road to Buffalo Grove Road then south on Hintz Road and east to Elmhurst Road. The bus travels south to the Randhurst Shopping Center and the Chicago & North Western Ry. station in Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. The route is reversed in the evening.

Police, workers get pay raise

Rolling Meadows police no longer have the dubious distinction of being the lowest paid force in the Northwest suburbs as pay raises averaging 4.5 per cent were approved this week by the city council. The raises are retroactive to May 1. "It's about time our city police and other employes get paid what they are worth," said Mayor Roland J. Meyer. "I'm sure they are tired of playing catch up with others." The council approved about $90,000 in back pay raises to about 80 per cent of the city's workers and expects to pay them another $80,000 by April 30. About one-fourth of the retroactive pay will go to the police department. The raises put Rolling Meadows police salaries "somewhere between Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights."

Village looks to buy Palatine High

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said he is "more optimistic than ever before" that the old Palatine High School will become the village's new home, especially if the selling price is in the $600,000 range. "If we can purchase it (the school) for $600,000 I don't see how we can lose," Jones said. "I'm optimistic that we're making progress in the negotiations. Both the (Palatine) park district and the village are extremely interested in it." Robert Creek, president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education, said the district wants to be rid of the property in September, when the old school at 150 E. Wood St. will close and a new school on Rohlwing Road in the Winston Park subdivision will open.

Food prices drop in Des Plaines

Grocery prices in Des Plaines dropped one-half of 1 per cent from September to November, says a survey by U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th. The cost of 27 selected grocery items purchased in Des Plaines stores Nov. 27 was $20.10, compared to $20.21 Sept. 27, the survey shows. The price of general grocery items purchased in major grocery stores throughout the 10th Congressional District decreased eight-tenths of 1 per cent from September to November. The average price of 27 selected food items decreased from $20.35 to $20.19. Meat prices throughout the district dropped 8.6 per cent from Sept. 27 to Nov. 27, said the survey, continuing a trend that began in August when meat prices dropped 4.3 per cent.

Manhunt for killer in Durham

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Police warned citizens to draw their curtains and avoid lighted doorways while they searched today for "an extremely dangerous homicidal" sniper believed to have killed two persons and wounded two others.

Police Chief Jon Kindice Thursday asked Durham residents to report immedately suspicious persons, noises or sounds of gunfire.

"We certainly are not intending or attempting to create a state of panic," Kindice said. But he said authorities need "to create a state of caution for all of our people. We feel this is necessary, that we issue some warnings."

RETIRED newspaper editor Herbert C. Bradshaw, 68, was shot to death in his home Wednesday night as he was washing dishes in front of a kitchen window. The bullet came through the window and struck him in the head.

Herbert Medlin, 26, was shot and killed Sunday night while walking in a residential area.

Two other persons have been wounded by gunfire since Friday. Police said the incidents appear to be related.

"If our assumptions are correct, we are dealing with an extremely dangerous, homicidal individual," Kindice said. "We are operating on a definite theory and have come to a fairly firm conclusion that the four occasions of shootings are the result of one person."

AUTHORITIES said Medlin apparently was killed by a rifle shot and police sources said Bradshaw was killed by a high-powered rifle.

The State Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were asked to assist in the manhunt, Kindice said.

Bradshaw, who retired from the Durham Morning Herald in January after 24 years as editor of the editorial page, was to be buried today in Rice, Va.

It's a boy says shopper as she finds bundle

WALTON, N.Y. (UPI) — The calls have begun to come into the Delaware County Sheriff's Dept. from persons seeking to adopt a newborn boy hastily left on the seat of a car while the car owner was shopping.

Hazel O'Dell scarcely believed what she saw Thursday when she returned to her auto after 15 minutes of shopping and found the infant wrapped in a blanket. She called police.

The boy, nearly 9 pounds, had been born less than two hours earlier, local officials said. The umbilical cord had been clipped with a clothes pin.

A deputy at the sheriff's department in Delhi, where calls are taken for the Walton village police, said once the story spread, several persons called seeking to adopt the boy. All had to be refused, he said.

First Christmas out in 25 years

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Albert Vice usually spends Christmas in a city jail doing time for public drunkenness, but this year it may be different.

Vice, 55, is a regular at the city House of Detention, the minimum security jail for persons convicted of petty crimes. He was last sentenced in November and was scheduled for release Jan. 4.

But Criminal District Court Judge Eddie Sapir learned Vice had not spent Christmas out of jail for the last 25 years, so he reduced the sentence and set him free.

"If he doesn't come back, God bless him," Sapir said. "That'll be the best thing for both of us."

Vice, however, apparently didn't take his freedom in the same spirit it was given.

"You know I ain't gonna stop drinking," he said. "I'll stop drinking when they stop making the stuff."

"I'm sure they are tired of playing catch up with others." The council approved about $90,000 in back pay raises to about 80 per cent of the city's workers and expects to pay them another $80,000 by April 30. About one-fourth of the retroactive pay will go to the police department. The raises put Rolling Meadows police salaries "somewhere between Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights."

Village looks to buy Palatine High

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said he is "more optimistic than ever before" that the old Palatine High School will become the village's new home, especially if the selling price is in the $600,000 range. "If we can purchase it (the school) for $600,000 I don't see how we can lose," Jones said. "I'm optimistic that we're making progress in the negotiations. Both the (Palatine) park district and the village are extremely interested in it." Robert Creek, president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education, said the district wants to be rid of the property in September, when the old school at 150 E. Wood St. will close and a new school on Rohlwing Road in the Winston Park subdivision will open.

Food prices drop in Des Plaines

Grocery prices in Des Plaines dropped one-half of 1 per cent from September to November, says a survey by U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th. The cost of 27 selected grocery items purchased in Des Plaines stores Nov. 27 was $20.10, compared to $20.21 Sept. 27, the survey shows. The price of general grocery items purchased in major grocery stores throughout the 10th Congressional District decreased eight-tenths of 1 per cent from September to November. The average price of 27 selected food items decreased from $20.35 to $20.19. Meat prices throughout the district dropped 8.6 per cent from Sept. 27 to Nov. 27, said the survey, continuing a trend that began in August when meat prices dropped 4.3 per cent.

Manhunt for killer in Durham

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Police warned citizens to draw their curtains and avoid lighted doorways while they searched today for "an extremely dangerous homicidal" sniper believed to have killed two persons and wounded two others.

Police Chief Jon Kindice Thursday asked Durham residents to report immedately suspicious persons, noises or sounds of gunfire.

"We certainly are not intending or attempting to create a state of panic," Kindice said. But he said authorities need "to create a state of caution for all of our people. We feel this is necessary, that we issue some warnings."

RETIRED newspaper editor Herbert C. Bradshaw, 68, was shot to death in his home Wednesday night as he was washing dishes in front of a kitchen window. The bullet came through the window and struck him in the head.

Herbert Medlin, 26, was shot and killed Sunday night while walking in a residential area.

Two other persons have been wounded by gunfire since Friday. Police said the incidents appear to be related.

"If our assumptions are correct, we are dealing with an extremely dangerous, homicidal individual," Kindice said. "We are operating on a definite theory and have come to a fairly firm conclusion that the four occasions of shootings are the result of one person."

AUTHORITIES said Medlin apparently was killed by a rifle shot and police sources said Bradshaw was killed by a high-powered rifle.

The State Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were asked to assist in the manhunt, Kindice said.

Bradshaw, who retired from the Durham Morning Herald in January after 24 years as editor of the editorial page, was to be buried today in Rice, Va.

It's a boy says shopper as she finds bundle

WALTON, N.Y. (UPI) — The calls have begun to come into the Delaware County Sheriff's Dept. from persons seeking to adopt a newborn boy hastily left on the seat of a car while the car owner was shopping.

Hazel O'Dell scarcely believed what she saw Thursday when she returned to her auto after 15 minutes of shopping and found the infant wrapped in a blanket. She called police.

The boy, nearly 9 pounds, had been born less than two hours earlier, local officials said. The umbilical cord had been clipped with a clothes pin.

A deputy at the sheriff's department in Delhi, where calls are taken for the Walton village police, said once the story spread, several persons called seeking to adopt the boy. All had to be refused, he said.

First Christmas out in 25 years

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Albert Vice usually spends Christmas in a city jail doing time for public drunkenness, but this year it may be different.

Vice, 55, is a regular at the city House of Detention, the minimum security jail for persons convicted of petty crimes. He was last sentenced in November and was scheduled for release Jan. 4.

But Criminal District Court Judge Eddie Sapir learned Vice had not spent Christmas out of jail for the last 25 years, so he reduced the sentence and set him free.

"If he doesn't come back, God bless him," Sapir said. "That'll be the best thing for both of us."

Vice, however, apparently didn't take his freedom in the same spirit it was given.

"You know I ain't gonna stop drinking," he said. "I'll stop drinking when they stop making the stuff."

A FRIENDLY VOICE at the end of the phone helps many callers to the Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau hotline through the pressures of the holiday season. Moisette, a 20-year-old secretary, answers a hotline phone.

Hotline helps

Omni-House volunteers give over-the-phone aid to callers whose personal problems run gamut

by LINDA PUNCH

Lu Wilson leans back on her desk, lights up a cigaret and chats on the phone with a young woman about Christmas, families and the death of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

In another corner of the small paneled office, Moisette, a 20-year-old secretary talks on the phone to an 18-year-old woman addicted to drugs and alcohol. The conversation will last for more than an hour.

For volunteers at the hot line at Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, an evening's work can range from small talk with a lonely shut-in to discussions with an emotionally disturbed teen-ager. During the holiday season, the load increases.

"Problems seem to get bigger during the holidays. There's too much pressure — people doing things they have to do but don't want to do," Mrs. Wilson, the hotline coordinator said.

HOTLINE VOLUNTEERS range in age from 16 to the mid-40's. All receive intensive training where they are instructed in "apathetic listening," Mrs. Wilson said. Volunteers are not allowed to counsel callers, but are told to direct them to the proper service agency, she said.

Many of the calls received by the hotline deal with family problems, especially during the holidays, Mrs. Wilson said.

"People who are not with their families want to be and people who have gotten together with their families after a long separation are often disappointed. Their expectations are more," she said.

Mrs. Wilson said calls "definitely pick up" during the Christmas season, citing one evening when 12 phone calls came in during a four-hour period. The normal rate is three or four calls an evening, she said.

"EVERYONE FEELS the holidays should be happy times. When they're not, they think something is wrong with them," she said.

On a normal evening, the hotline will receive calls dealing with everything from sex and drugs to family problems. Mrs. Wilson recalls one night when a middle-aged man called to discuss "his wife who is volunteering for everything and never home."

Another call was from a woman who was worried about her son "being engaged to a girl she couldn't stand," Moisette said.

"The lady pretty well had her mind made up. She just needed some support," she said.

THE HOTLINE also received a call from a young married couple who wanted to know how "the rhythm method works," Moisette said.

"They were reading a sex manual and they said it had so many big words, they didn't understand it," she said.

For many callers, the hotline serves as a friendly voice in an otherwise hostile world.

"We get a lot of calls from people who are lonely, who just call to rap. They feel they have to talk to somebody," Moisette said.

One such caller, a Korean War veteran, calls the hotline several times a week, Mrs. Wilson said.

"He's a paraplegic and confined in a veterans's hospital. He's a very intelligent man and well read. All he has is the phone, his reading material and the TV. He's pretty well trapped there," she said.

ANOTHER CALLER, a 27-year-old woman, has phoned the hotline regularly for the past four years. She sends the volunteers sketches and cards with notes inscribed "Thank you for time, care and sticking by me."

Mrs. Wilson said there is a high turnover among hotline volunteers because of the emotional burden of listening to other people's problems.

"We're always looking for new volunteers. Most people stay for about 2½ years before they burn out. After that they look for something else to do," she said.

The Omni-House Hotline is 541-HELP. The hours are 7 to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 8 p.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday.

Coast Guard attempts burning away oil spill

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — The Coast Guard, criticized for its handling of the worst East Coast oil spill in history, Friday prepared to ignite a portion of the oil slick coating an estimated 2,000 square miles of rich Atlantic Ocean fishing grounds.

The chemical assault on the oil spill was the first attempt to attack the spill of the tanker Argo Merchant since the grounded ship began leaking its cargo into waters 27 miles off this resort island.

A HELICOPTER was to dust a small section of the 100-mile long oil spill with "silica" powder, a substance that promotes combustion. A time delay device tested earlier in the day was to be used to ignite the mixture.

"This is an experiment in a controlled area," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "We have no idea if it will be successful in burning the oil."

The manufacturer of the substance said it had been used to dispose of industrial oil leaking from a ship afire near Stockholm, Sweden.

A change in wind direction to the northwest was expected to drive the menacing oil spill away from the 10,000 square mile Georges Bank fishing grounds. Wind was building to 30 knots and seas rolling in eight-foot waves.

No evidence showed that the fudge-like industrial oil reached ocean bottom. Experts said it could take four to ten years for the ocean floor to completely recover from heavy deposits of oil.

WHILE TURBULENT winter weather handicapped efforts to control the grimy spill, scientists continued to monitor environmental damage. A pair of private contractors were ready to clean up Nantucket beaches.

As government officials and experts waited helplessly for the wind and sea to disperse the oil, charges and counter-charges spread on shore.

Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III said during the first 72 hours the tanker was aground the Coast Guard "showed poor judgment or total lack of knowledge or creativity."

"We stand on what we did," a Coast Guard spokesman said. The agency tried to unload enough oil to lighten the tanker so it would float free of Nantucket shoals, but treacherous winter winds and seas pummeled the 23-year-old vessel until it split into three parts.

NEITHER THE seller, the broker nor the buyer of the oil accepts ownership of the cargo, which began seeping into the ocean after the tanker ran aground Dec. 15.

The wife of the ship's captain Friday denied her husband was asleep below decks at the time the vessel ran aground 10 miles off course.

"The captain was on the bridge because of the stormy weather," Mrs. George Papadopoulos said in a telephone interview in Greece. "The captain asked me to emphasize that point."

TWO VICTIMS of the oil spill from the Liberian tanker were found on a beach on Nantucket by Jim Cardoza, a biologist from the Fish and Game Division of the Massachusetts Dept. of Natural Resources.

Carter to have quiet Yule with his family

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, the job of selecting a Cabinet behind him, settled down Friday to a quiet Yuletide celebration with his family.

The matriarch of the Carter family, "Miss Lillian" will be missing from the Plains home, however. Carter's 78-year-old mother is recuperating from arthritic discomfort in an Americus, Ga., hospital, where she will have to stay through Christmas.

Christmas Day at the Carter's will be devoted to the traditional exchange of gifts and holiday feasting.

NEXT WEEK, the President-elect will gather his Cabinet and New York's top executive officers, Gov. Hugh Varey and Mayor Abraham Beame, at St. Simons, an island off the south coast of Georgia, for wide-ranging talks on policy and New York's finances.

Carter signed off at his news conference announcing the rest of his appointments Thursday with an expression of hope "that we can enter the New Year with a commitment to being closer together, to sharing our problems and our opportunities . . ."

Carter penciled in the last name for his cabinet by selecting Washington attorney and former Johnson White House adviser Joseph Califano to head the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

With Califano, Carter also named former Ford Defense Sec. James Schlesinger as a White House assistant "for coordination of all energy efforts," and Theodore Sorenson, a former speech writer and adviser to President John Kennedy, to be director of the CIA.

OVER-ALL, CARTER'S campaign promise of new faces in his administration went unfulfilled in the choice of a Cabinet. He picked seven veterans of other administrations, plus two congressmen-a mostly middle-aged, middle-of-the-road group.

Carter has noted he still has many important appointments to make at the Cabinet level and others, as he described of "acute importance" such as FBI director.

The President-elect has indicated he believes it within his power to replace FBI director Clarence Kelley, even though the tenure for that position is now set at 10 years. Carter aides believe Kelley will go.

Andrus admits fish trip as guest, denies conflict

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, Jimmy Carter's choice for secretary of the interior, has acknowledged he went salmon fishing in Alaska in 1975 as a guest of Morrison-Knudsen Co., a major contractor for the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The U.S. Interior Dept. is responsible for inspecting the trans-Alaska oil pipeline and the corporation is building the southern sixth of it.

Andrus said he has "no apology to make" for going on the fishing trip as a guest of M-K Pres. William H. McMurren in July 1975, although he said it might come up during his confirmation hearings in the Senate.

THE GOVERNOR made the disclosure Wednesday night in an interview with KTVB.

Andrus said he is a friend of William H. McMurren, president of M-K, and other company officers. McMurren, he said, called him about a year and a half ago, saying: " 'Cece, we're going fishing up in Alaska. I don't do any business with the State of Idaho, it's not going to cause any problem, why don't you go along?' "

Andrus said the trip never caused him "one iota of difficulty then, nor will it now." He acknowledged some people will say that because he went fishing with the firm, "they're going to do things under the table."

"WELL, IF they believe that, then they don't know Cece Andrus very well, and I think Mr. McMurren would agree with me."

Andrus had to cut the trip short and return to Boise because his daughter, Tracy, was ill.

Andrus criticized three state tax commissioners for going deep sea fishing off the Washington coast as guests of General Telephone Co. of the Northwest last July. He drafted a special code of ethics for all state officials and said violation would lead to immediate dismissal.

He also said he did not plan to reappoint any of the tax commissioners who went fishing with General Telephone and he reprimanded Public Utilities Commissioner Robert Lenaghen for going fishing with a General Telephone official off the Oregon coast in 1973.

However, Andrus said, he sees a "moral difference" between the tax dispute and his trip.

'Miss Lillian' in hospital Christmas

• Jimmy Carter's mother "Miss Lillian" is feeling much better after suffering arthritic pain in the hip, but will have to spend Christmas in the hospital. Family sources said she wants to be in top health for her son's inauguration. "The family will take Christmas to her," sources said. She entered the Americus-Sumter County Hospital Wednesday. Miss Lillian traditionally invites the Carter clan to her home for a sausage, eggs and grits breakfast on Christmas Day.

• On his doctor's advice, President Ford decided not to ski Friday for the second day in a row because he bruised his right hip in a hard fall. "He took a couple of rough spills and he bruised his hip and he's pretty stiff," said Dr. William Lukash, the White House physician. Ford skipped skiing Thursday and went Christmas shopping.

Lukash said Thursday night he advised Ford to stay off the slopes. White House officials said the President would spend the day working at his vacation chalet.

Andrus had to cut the trip short and return to Boise because his daughter, Tracy, was ill.

Andrus criticized three state tax commissioners for going deep sea fishing off the Washington coast as guests of General Telephone Co. of the Northwest last July. He drafted a special code of ethics for all state officials and said violation would lead to immediate dismissal.

He also said he did not plan to reappoint any of the tax commissioners who went fishing with General Telephone and he reprimanded Public Utilities Commissioner Robert Lenaghen for going fishing with a General Telephone official off the Oregon coast in 1973.

However, Andrus said, he sees a "moral difference" between the tax dispute and his trip.

'Miss Lillian' in hospital Christmas

• Jimmy Carter's mother "Miss Lillian" is feeling much better after suffering arthritic pain in the hip, but will have to spend Christmas in the hospital. Family sources said she wants to be in top health for her son's inauguration. "The family will take Christmas to her," sources said. She entered the Americus-Sumter County Hospital Wednesday. Miss Lillian traditionally invites the Carter clan to her home for a sausage, eggs and grits breakfast on Christmas Day.

Lukash said Thursday night he advised Ford to stay off the slopes. White House officials said the President would spend the day working at his vacation chalet.

Greek extremists claim credit for Welch murder

PARIS (UPI) — A Greek leftwing extremist group today claimed responsibility for the assassination of Athens CIA chief Richard Welch, killed outside his home Dec. 23, 1975.

In a long explanation published by the French left-wing newspaper, Liberation, the Greek organization gave a detailed account of the killing done to "revenge the immense crimes of the CIA against the Greek people."

According to the account, the group, the Revolutionary Organization of November 17, named for a 1973 left-wing student uprising against former military government in Greece, put Welch under close surveillance after he arrived in Athens, June 15, 1975.

THE ASSASSINATION was conducted by three persons "cleanly and efficiently" so as to kill only Welch, the article said.

"Welch's wife and chauffeur had no direct responsibility in the crimes committed by the CIA against our people . . . Our decision was that Welch and only Welch had to be executed," the Greek organization said.

The organization said the killers, riding in a light green Simca with no license plates, followed Welch's chauffeur-driven black Ford after the agent left a reception.

When Welch's chauffeur drew up in front of his residence, Mrs. Welch got out of the car to open the gate. The Simca had pulled up on the other side of the street, the article said.

THREE ORGANIZATION members, wearing masks and armed with .45 caliber Colt revolvers, got out of the car and ordered the Welches and their chauffeur to put their hands over their heads.

According to the article, Welch, who was fluent in Greek, calld out a dismayed, "What?" Then one of them fired three shots at Welch who fell to the ground. Throughout the incident, Mrs. Welch stood "completely still, right next to us, looking at us." The chauffeur sought refuge in front of the car.

"Immediately after," the communique said, "we got back into the car . . . We changed cars . . . and as incredible as it may seem, the Simca we used was nver found by the police, even one week after the action, despite the fact that it was less than one mile from the spot and that it had no license plates."

French envoy murdered by Paris group

PARIS (UPI) — Prince Jean de Broglie, who helped end the Algerian war, was shot dead Friday on a Paris sidewalk and a racist group opposed to the immigration of "African scum" took responsibility for the slaying.

The 55-year-old aristocrat died from two bullets fired into his head at point-blank range by a tall youth wearing a sweater and jeans who fled into a crowd of holiday shoppers.

Hours later, a person phoned the French news agency and said the extremist "Charles Martel Club" had killed de Broglie "as a man co-responsible for the occupation of our country by the African scum."

The killing of de Broglie, France's chief negotiator in the 1962 secret talks that ended the seven-year Algerian war of independence, was the first assassination of a French political figure in many years, police said.

SWAT team frees 12 held hostage in store

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — A masked gunman who held a dozen store employes captive for two hours was taken into custody Friday without any shots being fired.

Members of the Special Weapons and Tactics team arrested the suspect, still wearing a ski-mask, 3½ hours after he made his way into the Alpha Beta supermarket that morning and herded 12 store employes into a storage room which he locked shut with a set of handcuffs.

Another employe had managed to escape and called police who cordoned off a two-block area and surrounded the store with heavily-armed officers.

The hostages, three women and five men, were freed after two hours of captivity. SWAT officers reached them through a hole in the store's roof and then led them to safety down a fire department ladder.

None of the hostages was injured, though they were cold from being held in the unheated storage room.

The gunman was not immediately identified.

Controller blamed in air crash

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — An investigatory commission Friday blamed an air traffic controller for history's worst inflight collision, charging he forgot he gave permission to a jetliner to climb to the spot where it smashed into another jet.

The commission said the controller realized his error only 40 seconds before impact and by then it was too late. All 176 persons aboard the two planes were killed.

A Yugoslav DC9 owned by the Inex-Adria Charter Company and carrying 113 persons, mostly West German tourists, collided Sept. 10 with a British Trident with 63 persons aboard as it cruised at 33,000 feet on a flight from London to Istanbul. There were no survivors.

AN EARLIER report by the commission, which included British and West German investigators, said the left wing of the DC9 sliced into the cockpit of the Trident, decapitating the pilot and copilot.

Taking off from Split on the Yugoslav Adriatic coast and headed for Cologne, West Germany, the DC9 received permission from the Zagreb regional air controller to climb to 35,000 feet. It brought it into the path of the cruising Trident, but the controller apparently was distracted by other air traffic in his vicinity.

"Performing the operations on guiding the other planes within his competence, the flight controller lost sight of the permission issued and failed to apply the regulations prescribed for separating the planes," the commission said.

It said the controller "became aware of the threat of a collision about 40 seconds before the disaster.

"The controller immediately tried to prevent the collision by informing the DC9 crew that they have a plane in front of them and ordering them in Serbo-Croat to stay at the altitude reached" of 32,500 feet. It was then 500 feet below the Trident.

"BUT," THE commission said, "this order was issued late and the plane which was in the process of climbing could not instantly be brought into horizontal flight. this was achieved only at the altitude at which the Trident was flying."

The commission said there was good visibility at the time of impact. But without elaboration aboard added, "many other circumstances contributed to the collision of these planes."

The jetliners smashed into cornfields near Zagreb, in northwestern Yugoslavia, over an area 20 miles long and six miles wide.

One air controller has been in custody since the collision. An investigating judge was conducting inquiries against another six controllers who were on duty at the Zagreb control tower at the time of the collision.

Nations festive despite uncertainty

by United Press International

People around the world are celebrating the Christmas holiday in a festive mood despite economic uncertainty, warnings of violence and government attempts to discourage religion.

In Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus, thousands of pilgrims attended midnight mass at St. Catherine's Church, adjoining the fourth century Basilica of the Nativity. A silver star in the Basilica marks the spot where Jesus was born nearly 2,000 years ago.

Italy is celebrating Christmas in the usual way — with two papal masses, cribs in churches and a strike, this time the railroads. But shopping was down and the atmosphere less cheerful than in previous years because of the nation's economic woes.

Pope Paul VI's Yule program included a Christmas Eve midnight mass in St. Peter's Cathedral televised live to more than 30 countries and a Christmas day mass.

EVEN NATIONS that live with harsh governments are not immune from the holiday spirit. The South Korean government is lifting its midnight to 4 a.m. curfew and Chileans will not face a curfew for the first time since a 1973 military coup.

In Argentina, the military government is warning citizens to beware of bombs disguised as Christmas gifts and distributed by "subversive criminals (who) have no feeling of Christian peace and may use the holiday to spread chaos."

In Rhodesia, citizens were warned against a predicted upsurge in black guerrilla activity during the holiday.

"It's a turkey and guns Christmas for Rhodesia," said Jack Jocelyn, a white storekeeper near Salisbury. "We still go to the usual round of Christmas parties but all people can talk about is whether we'll still be in Rhodesia next year."

YUGOSLAVS ARE managing to celebrate Christmas despite the government's attempt to discourage the practice by replacing it with a two-day holiday for the New Year.

Swedish families started feasting early Friday on dark raisin bread dipped in ham cooking juices, pate, meatballs, sausages, red cabbage, stout beer and lomonade. German, Dutch, French and British families also were gathering for traditional Christmas feasts.

But traditional Yuletide trappings increasingly have given way to modern times. One of every five Austrians, for example, will take advantage of the holiday to go skiing, according to travel bureau estimates.

For some people, religious celebrations play a minor role. In Asia, where only a small percentage of the population is Christian, Moslems and Buddhists join in the festive air by jamming night clubs and cabarets.

Paddock Misses set for state finals Thursday

Paddock Junior Misses Jill Lynn Ziske of Arlington Heights and Diane Marie Vosberg of Palatine are among 27 finalists in the Illinois Junior Miss pageant finals Thursday in Park Ridge.

Miss Ziske, an Arlington High School senior, will perform an interpretive dance to "Wake Up Sunshine" at the 7:30 p.m. competition in Maine South High School, 1111 S. Dee Rd.

The routine earned Miss Ziske one of the two 12th annual Paddock Junior Miss titles awarded earlier this month.

Miss Vosberg, a Palatine High School student, will also repeat her winning vocal rendition of "Doin' What Comes Naturally."

As winners of Paddock Publications Junior Miss of 1976 competition, the girls were each awarded $500 scholarships.

Miss Vosberg also won a special $100 award for high scholastic achievement.

The girls and 25 other finalists in the state competition will be guests of the Lincolnshire Marriott Sunday when they will dine with performer Ed Ames and see the play "I Do, I Do."

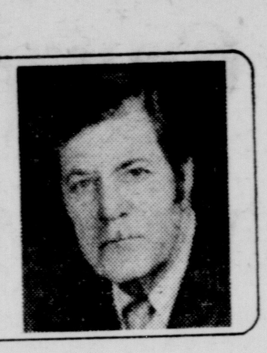
Fitzsimmons—a wheel in insurance deal?

Watch on Washington

by Clark Mollenhoff



WASHINGTON, D. C. — The role of Teamster Pres. Frank E. Fitzsimmons in serving as a go-between in two separate questionable insurance deals represents a serious problem for the pal of Presidents Nixon and Ford.

Two federal grand juries and the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee are exploring evidence of blatant multi-million-dollar insurance frauds to determine if Fitzsimmons was a part of the conspiracy or an unwitting dupe of insurance racketeers.

It would be easier for federal prosecutors to believe Fitzsimmons' tale that he did not understand the insurance frauds if one of the frauds on Teamsters insurance funds stood by itself.

Fitzsimmons' high tolerance for convicted labor racketeers is another strike against the 69-year-old Teamster president as he faces a period when his friend, President Gerald Ford, leaves the White House.

FITZSIMMONS FARED well in the Nixon and Ford administrations, where the investigations of the multi-million-dollar frauds in the $1.3-billion Central States Southeast & Southwest pension fund were pushed cautiously by Labor Secretaries John T. Dunlop and William Usery.

And the U. S. Justice Dept. rejected Detroit Strike Force recommendations that Fitzsimmons be questioned on the mysterious disappearance of former Teamsters Pres. James R. Hoffa.

In fact, the Ford administration Justice Dept. rejected all recommendations that Fitzsimmons be questioned on Hoffa's disappearance or on the insurance deals until after the election of Jimmy Carter in November.

On Nov. 22, Fitzsimmons was taken before a federal grand jury in Detroit for questioning that touched on Hoffa's disappearance, but that zeroed in on Fitzsimmons' role in two Teamsters' insurance frauds.

FITZSIMMONS ADMITTED he had introduced a convicted insurance racketeer, Louis C. Ostrer, to the Executive Board of the International Teamsters Union in 1972 to explain the controversial severance pay and live insurance plan.

Although Fitzsimmons denied that he or the executive board gave "approval" for Ostrer to peddle his questionable insurance wares to local Teamsters organizations from coast to coast, that is precisely what Ostrer did.

Fitzsimmons also has told the Securities and Exchange Commission that he intervened in a Central States Southeast & Southwest insurance plan matter on behalf of Old Security Life Insurance Co. of Kansas City at the request of another golfing pal, former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst.

Kleindienst's law firm received a $250,000 check for his four or five telephone calls to Fitzsimmons on behalf of Old Security.

FACED WITH AN SEC charge that California insurance racket figure Joseph Hauser and associates "looted" Teamster funds of more than $1.2 million in diverted premiums, Fitzsimmons has approved action to cancel the Old Security contract and to recover the $250,000 fee from Kleindienst.

Even as he took these steps, denied receiving pay-offs or having knowledge of the frauds, Fitzsimmons approves continuation of other insurance dealings with the firms of convicted insurance racketeer Allen Dorfman.

Those are just a few of the things in the record that cast doubt on Fitzsimmons' characterization of himself as a naive "victim" of the insurance racketeers who are preying on the two million members of the Teamsters Union. The Carter administration Justice Dept. is considered less likely to accept an explanation that he was just the piano player in the joint and didn't know what was going on upstairs.

Viet army draft larger than ever; used in fields

by ALAN DAWSON

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The army draft is as heavy or even larger than ever in Vietnam, as the armed forces move to the economic battlefields.

Reports from Saigon confirm that the Hanoi-directed armed forces now are drafting South Vietnamese youths into the Communist forces.

"There's no difference in the current draft (by Hanoi) and the old draft by (former president) Nguyen Van Thieu," said a recent letter from a youth impressed into the army in Saigon a few weeks ago.

REPORTS INDICATE males from 18 to 25 are subject to military service. Unconfirmed statements show the army will take men up to 45 years next year.

It appears there is little military training for the draftees. Instead, they are placed in units, which are work groups in the countryside.

Official Hanoi media now spend much time and newspaper space extolling the feats of military units toiling in the woods, on the roads and in the rice paddies.

Defense Minister (and military legend) Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, in a speech made last month but released this week, added his voice to the chorus.

"LET US MARCH courageously onto the economic front, and, together with the entire people, overcome poverty and backwardness and build a prosperous and powerful Socialist Vietnam," Giap told an economic conference of high-ranking officers.

The Vietnam News Agency recently had stories praising the labor by at least five armed forces units in central and south Vietnamese provinces.

In the central provinces, for example, two army units reportedly planted 27,500 acres and reaped 13,300 tons of food and tea, the news agency reported.

Army units also are employed in clearing abandoned and other explosives from fallow fields in an effort to turn the acreage into producing land.

On counting eggs before Easter

Dorothy Meyer's column

Dear Easter Bunny:

Well, here we are again, good buddy, communicating with one another Dec. 25.

Remember the first time I wrote my holiday column to you because I couldn't think of anyone else who wasn't too busy or too sleepy to read a newspaper on Christmas morning? I guess I guessed right that year because I didn't get a single irate letter — and I would have if anybody'd had time to read a Christmas column dedicated to the Easter Bunny.

I worried too, about your reaction — you know, like maybe you thought that I thought of you as a wallflower at this time of year.

BUT I knew you hadn't minded when I got my Easter basket just like always. Well, not exactly JUST like always. It was the first time I found one full of dried-up holly, one stale marshmallow Santa Claus and a personal note that said, "The next time your column is due on a nonreadership day like Dec. 25 why don't you dedicate it to St. Swithin?"

St. Swithin's Day isn't until July 15, though, and besides he's English, Olde English at that and you know how they were about the proprieties.

So it's back to just you and me, E.B., but this time I have a couple of Christmas tips that perhaps you can use come Easter.

Numero uno is that if you have any vacation time coming, take it a couple of weeks before the Big Day. That's what I did this year, and not having to go shopping after work or on a Saturday was pure heaven.

However, it also was very expensive and that brings us to point two, which concerns trying to make gift-giving come out even so that each child and child-in-law gets an equal amount of goodies.

TRYING TO MAKE gift-giving come out even is like trying to make a wobbly table stand level by sawing off a little on the long leg. Only in reverse. With a wobbly table you keep taking off a little, but with gifts you keep adding a little.

You probably know what I mean. I know that you try to give each child the same number of Easter eggs, but some eggs are gradner than others, so you compensate by throwing in a little something extra. And the "something extra" turns out to be a little grander than you had planned so you're right back where you started. Wobbly.

So do as I do. Give up because you'll go bankrupt, just like you end up with a table without legs at all.

Besides, all special seasons are based on love, aren't they? And where is it written that a wobbly table isn't just as good as any other — especially if it wobbles under a burden of love.

Merry Christmas,

Love,

Me.

GOD'S CHRISTMAS GIFT TO YOU, HIS ONLY SON

God is thinking about you right now! He loves you; here are things He wants you to know.

1st thing: GOD'S LOVE

God really loves you and wants to give you life, real life, spirit-filled life, full and satisfying.

God's word, the Bible, says in

John 3:16,

"For God loved the world so much that He gave His only Son so that anyone who believes in Him shall not perish but have eternal life." (LB).

John 10:10,

". . . I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly." (NASB)

John 11:25,

Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection, and the life; he who believes in Me shall live even if he dies." (NASB)

What keeps most people from entering this spirit filled abundant life?

2nd thing: SEPARATION BY SIN

God made us with a free will to either choose or reject His love. We chose to reject God's love and in doing so we disobeyed God. This disobedience is called sin, and sin separates us from God.

God's word says in

Romans 3:23,

. . . for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God. (NASB)

Romans 6:23,

For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord. (NASB)

Colossians 1:14,

. . . who bought our freedom with His blood and forgave us all our sins. (LB)

I Peter 2:24,

. . . and He Himself bore our sins in His body on the cross, that we might die to sin and live to righteousness, for by His wounds you were healed. (NASB)

We must choose to receive God's love.

3rd thing: GOD'S SOLUTION IS JESUS CHRIST

The only way out of sin is Jesus Christ.

Jesus died on the cross in our place, and with His blood He paid the price of our sins. He bridged the gap between God and man.

Romans 5:8,

But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. (NASB)

Galatians 1:4,

He died for our sins just as God our Father planned, and rescued us from this evil world in which we live. (LB)

Colossians 1:14,

. . . who bought our freedom with His blood and forgave us all our sins, (LB)

I Peter 2:24,

. . . and He Himself bore our sins in His body on the cross, that we might die to sin and live to righteousness, for by His wounds you were healed. (NASB)

4th thing: MAN MUST RECEIVE JESUS CHRIST

We all must invite Jesus into our heart and life, and to trust Him to save them, (LB)

Revelation 3:20,

"Behold, I stand at the door (of your heart) and knock; if any one hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him, and will dine with him, and he with Me." (NASB)

John 1:12,

But to all who received Him, He gave the right to become children of God. All they needed to do was to trust Him to save them. (LB)

II Timothy 1:10,

And now He has made all of this plain to us by the coming of our Savior Jesus Christ, who broke the power of death and showed us the way of everlasting life through trusting Him. (LB)

What to do:

1. Believe that Jesus Christ died for you.
2. Admit that you are a sinner.
3. Be willing to turn away from your sin.
4. Ask Jesus to forgive you of all your sins.
5. Ask Jesus to come into your heart and life.

Suggested prayer:

Lord Jesus, I confess that I am a sinner, and I need help with my life. I believe that You died in my place for my sins; and I receive you, Jesus, right now into my heart. Take control of my life, and make me the kind of person You want me to be. Thank You for forgiving me all my sins, and coming into my heart this day.

5 things to do every day!

1. Read your Bible. Start with the Book of John.
2. Pray to Jesus every day. He is your best friend.
3. Get involved with other Christians in a Spirit filled church.
4. Share this Good News with some one. Tell them about Jesus.
5. Read and study I Cor. 12-13-14, Eph. 6:10-19, John 14:1-31 in your Bible.

Fitzsimmons—a wheel in insurance deal?

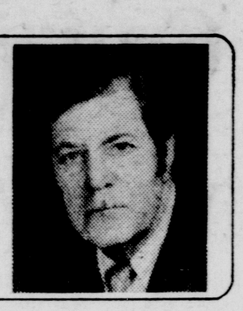
by Clark Mollenhoff



WASHINGTON, D. C. — The role of Teamster Pres. Frank E. Fitzsimmons in serving as a go-between in two separate questionable insurance deals represents a serious problem for the pal of Presidents Nixon and Ford.

Two federal grand juries and the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee are exploring evidence of blatant multi-million-dollar insurance frauds to determine if Fitzsimmons was a part of the conspiracy or an unwitting dupe of insurance racketeers.

It would be easier for federal prosecutors to believe Fitzsimmons' tale that he did not understand the insurance frauds if one of the frauds on Teamsters insurance funds stood by itself.

Fitzsimmons' high tolerance for convicted labor racketeers is another strike against the 69-year-old Teamster president as he faces a period when his friend, President Gerald Ford, leaves the White House.

FITZSIMMONS FARED well in the Nixon and Ford administrations, where the investigations of the multi-million-dollar frauds in the $1.3-billion Central States Southeast & Southwest pension fund were pushed cautiously by Labor Secretaries John T. Dunlop and William Usery.

And the U. S. Justice Dept. rejected Detroit Strike Force recommendations that Fitzsimmons be questioned on the mysterious disappearance of former Teamsters Pres. James R. Hoffa.

In fact, the Ford administration Justice Dept. rejected all recommendations that Fitzsimmons be questioned on Hoffa's disappearance or on the insurance deals until after the election of Jimmy Carter in November.

On Nov. 22, Fitzsimmons was taken before a federal grand jury in Detroit for questioning that touched on Hoffa's disappearance, but that zeroed in on Fitzsimmons' role in two Teamsters' insurance frauds.

FITZSIMMONS ADMITTED he had introduced a convicted insurance racketeer, Louis C. Ostrer, to the Executive Board of the International Teamsters Union in 1972 to explain the controversial severance pay and live insurance plan.

Although Fitzsimmons denied that he or the executive board gave "approval" for Ostrer to peddle his questionable insurance wares to local Teamsters organizations from coast to coast, that is precisely what Ostrer did.

Fitzsimmons also has told the Securities and Exchange Commission that he intervened in a Central States Southeast & Southwest insurance plan matter on behalf of Old Security Life Insurance Co. of Kansas City at the request of another golfing pal, former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst.

Kleindienst's law firm received a $250,000 check for his four or five telephone calls to Fitzsimmons on behalf of Old Security.

FACED WITH AN SEC charge that California insurance racket figure Joseph Hauser and associates "looted" Teamster funds of more than $1.2 million in diverted premiums, Fitzsimmons has approved action to cancel the Old Security contract and to recover the $250,000 fee from Kleindienst.

Even as he took these steps, denied receiving pay-offs or having knowledge of the frauds, Fitzsimmons approves continuation of other insurance dealings with the firms of convicted insurance racketeer Allen Dorfman.

Those are just a few of the things in the record that cast doubt on Fitzsimmons' characterization of himself as a naive "victim" of the insurance racketeers who are preying on the two million members of the Teamsters Union. The Carter administration Justice Dept. is considered less likely to accept an explanation that he was just the piano player in the joint and didn't know what was going on upstairs.

Viet army draft larger than ever; used in fields

by ALAN DAWSON

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The army draft is as heavy or even larger than ever in Vietnam, as the armed forces move to the economic battlefields.

Reports from Saigon confirm that the Hanoi-directed armed forces now are drafting South Vietnamese youths into the Communist forces.

"There's no difference in the current draft (by Hanoi) and the old draft by (former president) Nguyen Van Thieu," said a recent letter from a youth impressed into the army in Saigon a few weeks ago.

REPORTS INDICATE males from 18 to 25 are subject to military service. Unconfirmed statements show the army will take men up to 45 years next year.

It appears there is little military training for the draftees. Instead, they are placed in units, which are work groups in the countryside.

Official Hanoi media now spend much time and newspaper space extolling the feats of military units toiling in the woods, on the roads and in the rice paddies.

Defense Minister (and military legend) Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, in a speech made last month but released this week, added his voice to the chorus.

"LET US MARCH courageously onto the economic front, and, together with the entire people, overcome poverty and backwardness and build a prosperous and powerful Socialist Vietnam," Giap told an economic conference of high-ranking officers.

The Vietnam News Agency recently had stories praising the labor by at least five armed forces units in central and south Vietnamese provinces.

In the central provinces, for example, two army units reportedly planted 27,500 acres and reaped 13,300 tons of food and tea, the news agency reported.

89% came out to vote last fall

The Census Bureau says 89 per cent of registered voters participated in the Nov. 2 election. Despite estimates that only little more than half of all eligible voters trooped to the polls, those that were actually registered took part in greater numbers than four years ago. A Census Bureau survey showed 89 per cent of those who were registered took the time to vote. When Richard Nixon defeated George McGovern in the 1972 presidential race, the figure was 87 per cent. The reports of voter apathy which surfaced during and after the campaign dealt with those eligible to vote, registered or not. Unofficial figures based on earlier Census Bureau estimates of the voting age population showed the percentage of eligible voters — citizens over 18 — casting ballots was down from 55.5 per cent in 1972 to about 53.4 per cent this year.

Gilmore still in isolation

While Gary Gilmore contemplates spending Christmas alone in his Death Row prison cell, the pregnant wife of one of his victims will receive gifts and financial help from her Mormon neighbors. Gilmore, locked in isolation as he awaits his Jan. 17 date with the firing squad, may not be allowed visitors on Christmas. The 36-year-old killer is serving 15 days in solitary confinement following a melee with guards a week ago. Prison rules usually forbid visits by anyone but attorneys, but officials said the rules can be bent. Meantime, the families of the two young men Gilmore has admitted killing during holdups last summer were each preparing for the holidays minus a loved one. Dean Christensen, a Mormon bishop in Provo, Utah, said the families from his church group were donating money and gifts to Mrs. Debbie Bushnell, widow of the man Gilmore was convicted of killing — Bennie Bushnell.

Lebanon chief gets confidence vote

The Lebanese parliament voted unanimously Friday to give Prime Minister Selim Al Hoss special powers to rule the country by decree for the next six months. The 73 deputies attending the session approved the bill as part of a vote of confidence in the "reconstruction cabinet" of technocrats the prime minister has assembled. Hoss made clear to the deputies that his government would not accept a confidence vote unless the request of extraordinary powers also was approved.

Philippines treaty with Moslems

Pres. Ferdinand Marcos of The Philippines Friday announced the signing of an immediate cease-fire to end the four-year rebellion by Moslem separatists in the southern Philippines. The agreement was reached in Tripoli, Libya, where representatives of the secessionist Moro National Liberation Front and the Philippine government have been meeting since Dec. 15 under the sponsorship of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy. Libya has supported the Moslem rebels in their four-year drive for independence of the large southern islands of Mindanao, Palawan and the Sulu Archipelago, about 500 miles south of Manila, from the predominantly Roman Catholic Republic of the Philippines. The rebels have maintained a mission in Tripoli.

Fukuda was elected by a bare majority of 256 votes in the 511-seat lower house after Prime Minister Takeo Miki officially tendered his resignation. The largely ceremonial upper house, which has 246 members, immediately confirmed him by 125 votes.

Police hunt black militants

Some 500 riot police raided homes to search for black militants in two townships outside Cape Town Thursday and arrested an undisclosed number of persons, a senior police spokesman said. He said police sealed off access routes to the two black suburbs, Nyanga and Gugulethu, before the raid. He said the purpose of the raid — the second this month — was to seek out "arsonists and the ringleaders of the renewed unrest," in order to prevent flareup of unrest in the townships' this week. Police officials said late Thursday "a number" of blacks had been arrested, but that none was involved in recent violence.

Lovers let train run over them

A pair of young lovers in Valenciennes, France, committed suicide Christmas Eve by lying down on a railroad track and embracing as a train ran them over. Police said the couple carried no papers and could not be immediately identified. They said the couple lay down on the track between Raismes and Beuvrages in southern France. The engineer, who was unable to stop his train before it hit them, said that all he saw was a kiss exchanged by the couple before they were crushed by the wheels.

Car pools out, vans in as firms save a bundle

by LYNN ASINOF

A van pool may be better than a car pool and more convenient than a bus. It conserves energy, reduces the number of commuter cars and cuts down the need for company parking spaces.

It's a new idea, and the van pool is catching on fast among big corporations. Chrysler Corp., 3M, Montgomery Ward and Conoco already offer van pools, and many more big companies are investigating their use. They soon may come to the Northwest suburbs.

Riders like the van pool because it saves them money. Business likes the pool because it saves them money. And the government likes the van pool because it conserves energy and reduces traffic.

"It's one of those rare things where everyone seems to win," said Robert Owens of 3M, who engineered the first van pool for the Minnesota firm in 1972.

THE VAN POOL IS similar to a car pool except the company provides the vehicle, usually a 12-passenger van. A volunteer employe coordinates the van pool, assumes responsibility as chief driver and recruits at least eight other riders.

The riders pay a montly fee averaging about $26, and get door-to-door service to and from work. The driver pays no fare, gets to use the van during off-hours and receives a percentage of the monthly fares collected from any extra passengers.

"Some companies report even top executives apply for the driver jobs," said Donald Erickson, president of the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

Erickson said van pooling makes good business sense because it reduces tardiness and absenteeism. He said it promotes employe relations better than picnics, dinners and bowling leagues.

OWENS AND 3M started van pooling because it was running out of parking space.

"And that was before the energy crisis hit," he said. "Inside of two months we had long lines of people trying to get into the van program."

Surveys of the 3M program show one van replaces 6½-7 cars. More than 90 vans are operating at 3M. This has allowed 3M to cancel plans for 1,500 new parking spaces, estimated to cost $3.5 million.

Chrysler Corp. started van pooling in the Detroit area because "we wanted to do our part to contribute to energy conservation," said Herb Wood, consumer relations manager.

The program saves an estimated 175 gallons of gas per employe each year. But Wood said the real selling point is the savings to employes. A van pool trip costs only one-third as much as the same trip with one person in a car, he said.

ALTHOUGH THE COMPANY covers the insurance cost and runs the program, both purchase price and most operating costs are covered by the monthly fares. The van pool is self-sustaining.

"It is the only method of mass transit that can be entirely supported from fares," Wood said.

Van pooling also has earned government favor. This year the federal government made grant funds available for such programs. Through the 1976 Highway Act, the government will approve 90 per cent of the financing for a van pool program, allowing the company four years to pay back the cost of equipment purchase.

Owens said the program is best suited to the office worker or production worker who has regular hours. Other companies have used van pools to bring in a labor force after moving to the suburbs.

MORE THAN 75 companies across the country are van pooling, and interest in the concept is growing every day. A recent van pool symposium in Chicago attracted 250 persons from business, industry and government.

"If we could get all the employers in the country into a program like this, the public would be the winner," Owens said.

Customers paying off loans on time

An increasing number of consumers pay off their debts on time, reports the American Bankers Assn. The association said its adjusted delinquency ratio is 2.36 per cent compared with 2.59 per cent in September 1975. The new ratio means that for every 1,000 consumer loans outstanding, there are less than 24 loans more than 30 days overdue. Consumer borrowings amounted to more than $14 billion from July through September, a total $172.92 billion in outstanding consumer credit.

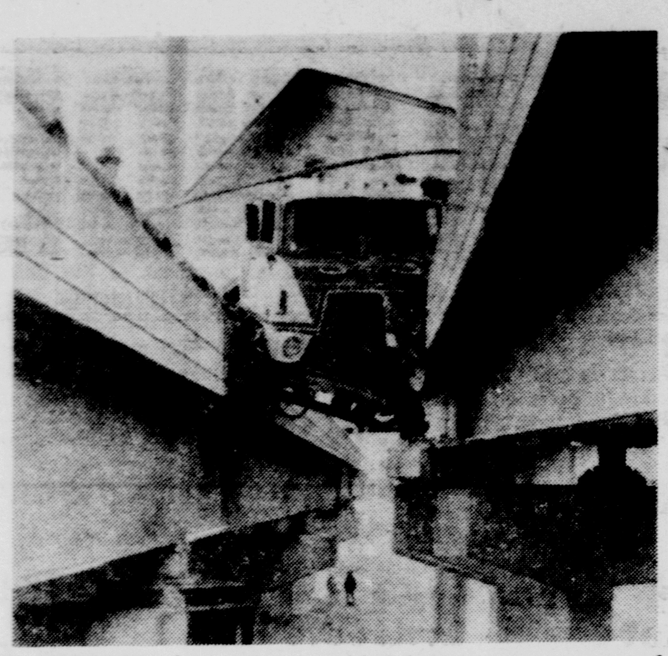
The nation



A TRACTOR-trailer rig is wedged between two ramps of I-70 in Wheeling, W. Va., Thursday. The trucker lost control following a collision with pickup truck. The driver of the rig was in fair condition.

89% came out to vote last fall

The Census Bureau says 89 per cent of registered voters participated in the Nov. 2 election. Despite estimates that only little more than half of all eligible voters trooped to the polls, those that were actually registered took part in greater numbers than four years ago. A Census Bureau survey showed 89 per cent of those who were registered took the time to vote. When Richard Nixon defeated George McGovern in the 1972 presidential race, the figure was 87 per cent. The reports of voter apathy which surfaced during and after the campaign dealt with those eligible to vote, registered or not. Unofficial figures based on earlier Census Bureau estimates of the voting age population showed the percentage of eligible voters — citizens over 18 — casting ballots was down from 55.5 per cent in 1972 to about 53.4 per cent this year.

Gilmore still in isolation

While Gary Gilmore contemplates spending Christmas alone in his Death Row prison cell, the pregnant wife of one of his victims will receive gifts and financial help from her Mormon neighbors. Gilmore, locked in isolation as he awaits his Jan. 17 date with the firing squad, may not be allowed visitors on Christmas. The 36-year-old killer is serving 15 days in solitary confinement following a melee with guards a week ago. Prison rules usually forbid visits by anyone but attorneys, but officials said the rules can be bent. Meantime, the families of the two young men Gilmore has admitted killing during holdups last summer were each preparing for the holidays minus a loved one. Dean Christensen, a Mormon bishop in Provo, Utah, said the families from his church group were donating money and gifts to Mrs. Debbie Bushnell, widow of the man Gilmore was convicted of killing — Bennie Bushnell.

Train derails, travelers delayed

Twelve cars of a Conrail freight train derailed Friday at the only Washington area rail link across the Potomac River, blocking all northbound and southbound trains filled with Christmas travelers. Hundreds of travelers along the Eastern seaboard were delayed because of the obstruction. Two cars derailed on the Potomac River Bridge that connects Alexandria, Va. and the nation's capital and 10 came off the tracks on the approach to the bridge at about 6:30 a.m.

Lebanon chief gets confidence vote

The Lebanese parliament voted unanimously Friday to give Prime Minister Selim Al Hoss special powers to rule the country by decree for the next six months. The 73 deputies attending the session approved the bill as part of a vote of confidence in the "reconstruction cabinet" of technocrats the prime minister has assembled. Hoss made clear to the deputies that his government would not accept a confidence vote unless the request of extraordinary powers also was approved.

Philippines treaty with Moslems

Pres. Ferdinand Marcos of The Philippines Friday announced the signing of an immediate cease-fire to end the four-year rebellion by Moslem separatists in the southern Philippines. The agreement was reached in Tripoli, Libya, where representatives of the secessionist Moro National Liberation Front and the Philippine government have been meeting since Dec. 15 under the sponsorship of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy. Libya has supported the Moslem rebels in their four-year drive for independence of the large southern islands of Mindanao, Palawan and the Sulu Archipelago, about 500 miles south of Manila, from the predominantly Roman Catholic Republic of the Philippines. The rebels have maintained a mission in Tripoli.

Fukuda elected by narrow margin

Takeo Fukuda, a 71-year-old conservative bureaucrat and financial wizard, was elected Japan's 13th postwar prime minister Friday by razor-thin margins in both houses of the parliament. Fukuda was elected by a bare majority of 256 votes in the 511-seat lower house after Prime Minister Takeo Miki officially tendered his resignation. The largely ceremonial upper house, which has 246 members, immediately confirmed him by 125 votes.

Police hunt black militants

Some 500 riot police raided homes to search for black militants in two townships outside Cape Town Thursday and arrested an undisclosed number of persons, a senior police spokesman said. He said police sealed off access routes to the two black suburbs, Nyanga and Gugulethu, before the raid. He said the purpose of the raid — the second this month — was to seek out "arsonists and the ringleaders of the renewed unrest," in order to prevent flareup of unrest in the townships' this week. Police officials said late Thursday "a number" of blacks had been arrested, but that none was involved in recent violence.

Lovers let train run over them

A pair of young lovers in Valenciennes, France, committed suicide Christmas Eve by lying down on a railroad track and embracing as a train ran them over. Police said the couple carried no papers and could not be immediately identified. They said the couple lay down on the track between Raismes and Beuvrages in southern France. The engineer, who was unable to stop his train before it hit them, said that all he saw was a kiss exchanged by the couple before they were crushed by the wheels.

Car pools out, vans in as firms save a bundle

by LYNN ASINOF

A van pool may be better than a car pool and more convenient than a bus. It conserves energy, reduces the number of commuter cars and cuts down the need for company parking spaces.

It's a new idea, and the van pool is catching on fast among big corporations. Chrysler Corp., 3M, Montgomery Ward and Conoco already offer van pools, and many more big companies are investigating their use. They soon may come to the Northwest suburbs.

Riders like the van pool because it saves them money. Business likes the pool because it saves them money. And the government likes the van pool because it conserves energy and reduces traffic.

"It's one of those rare things where everyone seems to win," said Robert Owens of 3M, who engineered the first van pool for the Minnesota firm in 1972.

THE VAN POOL IS similar to a car pool except the company provides the vehicle, usually a 12-passenger van. A volunteer employe coordinates the van pool, assumes responsibility as chief driver and recruits at least eight other riders.

The riders pay a montly fee averaging about $26, and get door-to-door service to and from work. The driver pays no fare, gets to use the van during off-hours and receives a percentage of the monthly fares collected from any extra passengers.

"Some companies report even top executives apply for the driver jobs," said Donald Erickson, president of the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

Erickson said van pooling makes good business sense because it reduces tardiness and absenteeism. He said it promotes employe relations better than picnics, dinners and bowling leagues.

OWENS AND 3M started van pooling because it was running out of parking space.

"And that was before the energy crisis hit," he said. "Inside of two months we had long lines of people trying to get into the van program."

Surveys of the 3M program show one van replaces 6½-7 cars. More than 90 vans are operating at 3M. This has allowed 3M to cancel plans for 1,500 new parking spaces, estimated to cost $3.5 million.

Chrysler Corp. started van pooling in the Detroit area because "we wanted to do our part to contribute to energy conservation," said Herb Wood, consumer relations manager.

The program saves an estimated 175 gallons of gas per employe each year. But Wood said the real selling point is the savings to employes. A van pool trip costs only one-third as much as the same trip with one person in a car, he said.

ALTHOUGH THE COMPANY covers the insurance cost and runs the program, both purchase price and most operating costs are covered by the monthly fares. The van pool is self-sustaining.

"It is the only method of mass transit that can be entirely supported from fares," Wood said.

Van pooling also has earned government favor. This year the federal government made grant funds available for such programs. Through the 1976 Highway Act, the government will approve 90 per cent of the financing for a van pool program, allowing the company four years to pay back the cost of equipment purchase.

Owens said the program is best suited to the office worker or production worker who has regular hours. Other companies have used van pools to bring in a labor force after moving to the suburbs.

MORE THAN 75 companies across the country are van pooling, and interest in the concept is growing every day. A recent van pool symposium in Chicago attracted 250 persons from business, industry and government.

"If we could get all the employers in the country into a program like this, the public would be the winner," Owens said.

Business briefs

Customers paying off loans on time

An increasing number of consumers pay off their debts on time, reports the American Bankers Assn. The association said its adjusted delinquency ratio is 2.36 per cent compared with 2.59 per cent in September 1975. The new ratio means that for every 1,000 consumer loans outstanding, there are less than 24 loans more than 30 days overdue. Consumer borrowings amounted to more than $14 billion from July through September, a total $172.92 billion in outstanding consumer credit.

Liquid manure product developed

A new line of liquid manure handling systems is available from A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., Arlington Heights. The Slurrystone systems offer increased versatility to farmers, said Harold Davis, marketing director. The company also manufactures Harvestore feed storage units and automated livestock feed handling systems.

Pedian named Armstrong center

Pedian Rug & Carpet Co., Arlington Heights, has been appointed an Armstrong Floor fashion center. The floor fashion center program is a network of independent retail stores offering a variety of flooring services and a guarantee on materials and installation.

Fallon Ford leases auto showroom here

Fallon Ford Co. has leased the auto showroom facilities at 666 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and has developed the showroom as a 1976 new car sales warehouse. The showroom is stocked with closeout 1976 model Ford automobiles, all sticker-priced for identification. Formerly the home of Bill Sullivan Pontiac Co., the showroom is being leased on a month-to-month basis to test the customer reaction to this new super-mart type saels concept.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Zirfas

Ruth Pamela Kunz–Charles M. Zirfas

A birthday cake as well as a wedding cake, with guests singing "Happy Birthday," increased the festive mood at the reception following the Nov. 27 wedding of Ruth Pamela Kunz and Charles M. Zirfas.

The birthday was that of Mrs. Mary R. Chionis, Rolling Meadows, matron of honor and one of four sisters of the bride who attended her. The others were Susan and Sharon Kunz, bridesmaids, and Nancy, junior bridesmaid.

Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Kunz of Arlington Heights, and Charles, Elk Grove Village, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Zirfas, Shenandoah, Iowa, were married at 1:30 p.m. at Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights.

Teh bride wore an Empire style gown of tissue satin and lace, with full-length veil falling from a matching lace headpiece. Her bouquet of white glamellias and stephanotis framed in ivy and baby's breath surrounded a single white rose.

HER ATTENDANTS were attired in full-length apricot knit gowns with rust velvet jackets. Each wore in her hair a flower ornament made by the bride, and carried a clutch bouquet of dried flowers in autumn colors.

Chuck chose George Reinecke, Burlington, Wis., as his best man. Groomsmen were Alex Chionis, Rolling Meadows, and two brothers of the bride, Tony and Joseph.

The reception was held at the Arlington Heights Elks Club. The newlyweds left on a 7-day Caribbean cruise, returning to Elk Grove Village where they will reside.

Ruth, an Arlington High School graduate, is employed at Northwest Trust and Savings, Arlington Heights. She and Chuck met while they were attending Harper College. He also attended C. E. School of Commerce, Omaha, Neb., and now works for Roadway Express, Inc., Elk Grove Village.

Pamela Kapusta–Robert A. Fritch

A couple who met while attending Illinois State University were married Nov. 27 in St. Raymond's Church, Mount Prospect. Pamela A. Kapusta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kapusta, Mount Prospect, and Robert A. Fritch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Fritch, Mundelein, exchanged vows and rings at a nuptial mass at 2 p.m.

The groom's uncle, the Rev. Delmar Holbrook, a minister of the Church of God, performed the mass along with the Rev. John Dewes of St. Raymond's.

The bride designed and sewed her gown of white jersey trimmed in Danish lace. Her first communion veil cascaded from a Juliet cap, and she carried stephanotis and peach roses.

Her attendants sewed their brown and peach gowns and wore peach picture hats. They carried rust and peach carnations and mums with dried wheat, baby's breath and brown velvet ribbons.

MATRON OF HONOR was the bride's sister, Linda and the groom's sisters, Susan of Buffalo Grove and Julie of Mundelein, served as bridesmaids. The bride's cousin, Eric Jensen, Palatine, and the groom's cousin, Shannon Tilley, Fort Atkinson, Wis., were ringbearer and flower girl.

Bob chose Gary Corkill, Park Ridge, as his best man, with William Kmiecik and James Holbrook as groomsmen. They were joined by William Simpson, Bloomington, and Tom Tilley, Fort Atkinson, as ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Fritch

The reception for 120 guests was held at The Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

THE NEWLYWEDS, graduates of Illinois State, both teach, Pam at Stevenson High in Prairie View and her bridegroom at Dunham Junior High in St. Charles. Pam is also a '71 graduate of Forest View High and Bob a '71 graduate of Mundelein High.

Over the Christmas school vacation the couple will be honeymooning in New Orleans. They are residing in a Schaumburg apartment.

Weddings

Margaret Mustain – Wm. Barnett IV

An Arlington Heights couple, Margaret Grace Mustain and William E. Barnett IV, were married Nov. 27 at 5 p.m. in St. Peter Lutheran Church. Both are Arlington High School graduates and both attended Harper College.

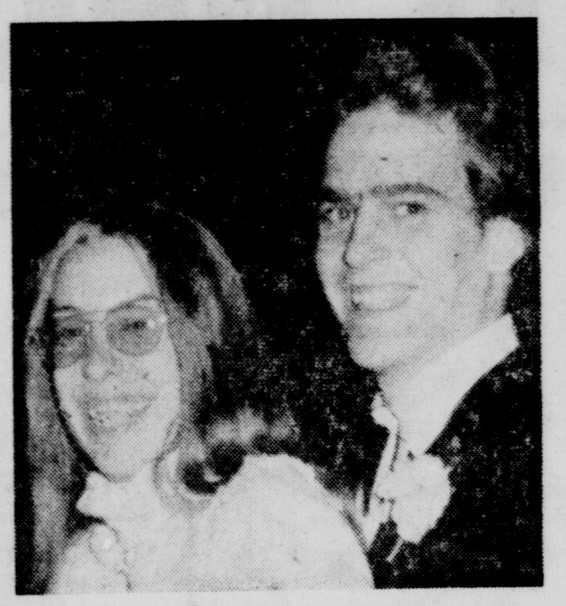
Margaret is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Mustain and Billy the son of the William Barnetts. The bridegroom now works for Autosound in Palatine.

He and his bride are living in Buffalo Grove after a honeymoon trip to the South.

For the double ring ceremony the bride chose a white peau de soie gown with lace and ruffled yoke and the same trim on the sleeves. The gown was originally made by the groom's mother for his sister's wedding three years ago. With it Margaret wore a lace and seed pearl headpiece and a bouffant veil. Her bouquet was of green-tipped carnations with baby's breath and ivy.

JEANNINE SMITH, Fox River Grove, served as maid of honor, with the groom's sister, Mary Brown, and Michele Krainik, both of Arlington Heights, as bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was the bride's cousin, Annette Chaveriat, Chicago.

The maid of honor wore dark green pongee and carried green-tipped carnations and baby's breath. The bridesmaids wore light green and their bouquets were of the same flowers as the honor attendant's.



Mr. and Mrs. William E. Barnett IV

Mark DeLeon was Billy's best man and Richard Stebbins and Ken Mustain, Margaret's brother, were groomsmen. All are Arlington Heights residents.

After the wedding there was a reception at the Lancer Restaurant in Schaumburg.

Marilee Hankins–Daniel Henry

Cranberry colored gowns with matching fingertip capes were worn by Marilee Hankins' five attendants for her marriage Thanksgiving weekend to Daniel C. Henry. Each attendant carried white carnations, Garnet rosebuds and cranberry colored baby's breath to complete her attire.

The Nov. 27 ceremony was conducted at 11 a.m. in St. Cecilia Catholic Church, Mount Prospect, with a reception later at the Arlington Park Hilton for 125 guests.

Marilee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Hankins of Arlington Heights and Dan the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Henry of Oak Creek, Wis.

THE YOUNG couple attended Marquette University, Milwaukee, together and prior to that the bride graduated from the American (High) School of Dusseldorf, Germany. Since earning their college degrees, Marilee has been employed as a nurse at Northwest Community Hospital and Dan is working in Saginaw, Mich., for Haskins & Sells.

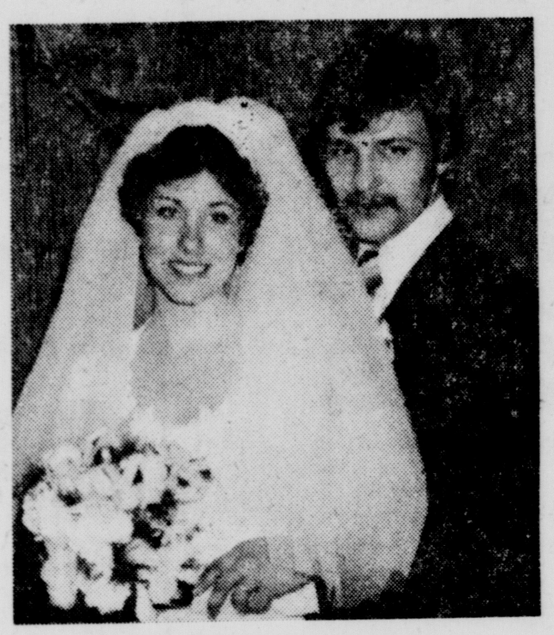
For the double ring rites the bride wore a white satin gown appliqued with lace and a fingertip veil attached to a lace cap. Her bouquet was of white orchids, roses and baby's breath.

Her sister, Kathryn Klinger of Schaumburg, was matron of honor; her sisters, Jane and Nancy Hankins, Ann Grassi, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Lynne Yeates, Milwaukee, were bridesmaids.

SERVING THE groom as best man was Jim Brostowitz, Milwaukee. Groomsmen included Bill Hankins, brother of the bride, Michael Klinger, her brother-in-law, Daryl Dreff from Michigan and Jim McChristian from Wisconsin.

Among the special wedding guests were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Boyle of Arlington Heights.

The couple honeymooned in San Francisco for two weeks before leaving for Saginaw.



Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Henry

Lori Ann Gregorio–Richard Valentine

In a noontime double ring service in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, Lori Ann Gregorio and Richard Scott Valentine repeated their marriage vows Nov. 20. Following a four-day honeymoon at Pheasant Run Lodge, St. Charles, the newlyweds are now residing in Mount Prospect.

Lori is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregorio, Arlington Heights, and Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Valentine, Mount Prospect.

Terri Pappas, Mount Prospect, was Lori's maid of honor, and the groom's 9-year-old sister, Lisa, and the bride's 8-year-old brother, Steven, were flower girl and ring bearer. Best man was Mike Hurley, Mount Prospect, and ushers were the couple's brothers, Bob Gregorio and Jeff Valentine.

A reception for 130 guests was held in Lake Barrington Shores Clubhouse.

The new Mrs. Valentine is a '75 graduate of Rolling Meadows High. The bridegroom, a '75 graduate of Prospect High, is with Lawnware, Morton Grove.

All ages taking up tole art

by DALE SINGER

Have you ever seen one of those dark stained wooden wall plaques with painted grapes that look so real you want to pluck one off and pop it into your mouth?

Such plaques are examples of tole painting, one of many crafts growing dramatically in popularity in the United States. You may not think you have the talent to do it, but Gerry Klein, St. Louis, says all you have to do is follow instructions, one step at a time.

"A lot of people are interested in these crafts, but they're afraid to try," said Mrs. Klein, who began painting nine years ago and now owns her own crafts shop and shares her love of art with scores of students.

"They think they're just for people with a lot of talent, but the things we do don't take any special talent at all. They're all done according to a system, step-by-step."

TOLE PAINTING is based on method, not artistic ability, she said. With a proper stroke, a minimum amount of paint on the brush and careful wiping of the brush between each stroke, the proper effect can be achieved.

The object of tole painting, Mrs. Klein said, is a smooth picture that appears to have no brush strokes at all. Unlike some other types of painted pictures, a tole painting should look as good close up as it does from a distance.

Technically, toleware is tin, but tole painting is done on many surfaces, so it is often termed tole and decorative painting to more accurately describe its wide range of forms. Its popularity in the United States began in the mid-18th century, with folk art evolving into sophisticated designs.

An increasingly industrialized society pushed such painstaking art into the background, but its beauty and simplicity have made it popular once more. All age groups enjoy tole painting, from widows with time on their hands to young adults who want to give gifts that show more imagination and personal attention than money.

MRS. KLEIN, 38, didn't know anything about art when she first started. "If someone had asked me what I could do," she said in an interview, "I

Glassware adds sparkle to Christmas season

with Grace Carolyn

There's nothing prettier, especially at Christmastime, than an array of colored glassware in a window ledge or shelf. With the variety of beautiful glass available in gift stores, at such reasonable prices, anyone can have the sparkling effect of these jewel-like objects, or start a collection which may become valuable in years to come.

Glassware is available in every color, size and shape. Bottles, cruets, goblets, tumblers, toothpick holders, little animal forms, plates and dozens more. I recently saw a line of glass from Italy in amber, a beautiful medium blue and green, and the shapes were of little turkeys, deviled egg plates, Christmas angles — really usable pieces that can double as "decor" in between holidays. And they were very reasonable; the small turkeys were only $3.

ANTIQUERS, OF course, like to collect old glass, but that becomes more of a problem all the time with the reproductions and high prices. One must be very careful not to pay an "antique" price for something which is available in gift or department stores. The best way to avoid being fooled is to visit the glassware sections of the stores you happen to be in. You might be surprised at some of the "antiques" you will find. Next week you may see some of these new pieces passed off as old at a flea market or antique shop, simply because the dealer has been fooled.

There are many tests that old-timers use to tell if glass is new or old, most of the tests thoroughly unreliable. They say it has a "smooth, buttery feeling," that is, is lighter in weight or worn on the bottom, or that the colors are different. All these things may be true, but difficult to prove unless one has a genuine old piece and a new one to compare. You can find out a great deal by reading such books as "Confusing Collectibles" by Dorothy Hammond and by reading old glass books about what shapes were made in the old days. Often repros are made in sizes and forms never found in the originals.

I have a small collection of colored glass tumblers, which I bought many years ago, and which I know are old because I know where they came from. They had all been in a family for about 60 years then. The brilliant colors make a lovely Christmas display in the dining room window, along with some other pieces of glass, and I have sprays of greenery behind them. The colors reflect almost like stained glass. Even on gloomy days the glass glows as if it were alight.

THE SEVEN glasses pictured are from my collection: top left to right, medium blue Minnesota pattern glass, Amberina (shaded rose to amber) thumbprint, amber Flattened Sawtooth pattern glass. Bottom row, ruby red Cambridge glass, blue opalescent hobnail, a green with hand-painted daisies (this one is part of a set given my mother-in-law as a wedding gift in 1918) and the last one is an Amberina with opalescent swirl design. Most of these would fall into the pattern glass and art glass categories. I will have a column soon on art glass in general.

May each day of Christmas be a bright jewel of hope and love to you and your families. If you have questions, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Please enclose SASE for reply.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Reader misinformed about blood sugar

I'm writing regarding one of your columns about blood sugar. I was upset to think you would mislead your readers. I am referring to one sentence — were you properly prepared for the test, by eating adequate amounts of carbohydrates and sweets for three days before testing?

I feel strange informing a doctor that his advice is wrong, but I must bring your attention to this falsehood and hope you pass the information on to your readers.

There is no way one can prepare himself for a glucose tolerance test nor should he. If one does not maintain his normal diet before such a test, he has a very good chance of getting false results. May I suggest a little outside reading.

Your only problem other than being misinformed is that you didn't feel strange enough.

Any diabetic specialist knows that the diet will affect the results of a glucose tolerance test. The readings are not valid unless the individual has been consuming at least 200 grams of carbohydrates (some authorities say 250 to 300 grams) for several days before testing. Because some people prepare for their examinations by fasting or dieting, a number of people go to the laboratory after being on a carbohydrate restricted diet for several days or weeks. The glucose tolerance test in such cases may give results that resemble those obtained in diabetes. We even have a name for it — starvation diabetes. Incidentally, physical inactivity such as bed rest may also give a false diabetic-type response.

I appreciate your thoughtfulness in recommending the literature on hypoglycemia you mentioned in the rest of your letter, but if you don't mind, I'll continue to follow the established concepts in current medical texts as practiced by all well-recognized diabetic specialists. I'm afraid you have gotten your information on hypoglycemia all mixed up with the problems of diagnosing diabetes. Sometimes a little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

You may be interested to know that in years of testing pilots from the U.S. Air Force flying population we learned early that many pilots would come in for an examination after dieting and would have abnormal glucose tolerance tests. In a high percentage of these cases preparing the individual by having him eat enough carbohydrates to meet the criteria for testing resulted in normal glucose tolerance tests.

So my advice remains the same — before taking a test to find out if you are a diabetic or not, it is wise to consume carbohydrates in sufficient amounts for at least three days before testing. If you have a disease such as real hypoglycemia or have already been diagnosed as a diabetic, ask your doctor what he wants you to do about your diet before being tested.

Those who want information on diabetes can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Light's the secret to keep poinsettia

Dear Dorothy: A dear friend sends us a poinsettia plant every holiday season. Sometimes they do well, sometimes not. I've seen one in a doctor's office that's gorgeous, and I'm told it's been that way for months. What's the best way to handle these lovely plants?—Mrs. Henry Sherrill

The basic rules are simple: Water only when the soil feels dry (check by sticking a finger into the soil), keep away from drafts as well as hot registers or radiators and make sure it gets six hours of bright indirect light daily. I suspect the reason the doctor's plant does so well is the light. Poinsettias are among the many plants that do handsomely in indoor lighting. Those of us who do not have to keep lights on during the day figure out ways to get the plants sufficient light through proper placement.

Dear Dorothy: Instead of refrigerating or freezing a bag of pecans, I put them on a shelf, forgot them and now they're stale. Is there anything I can do to make them tasty enough to use in baking?—Peggy Stern

Soaking them in milk has been known to take away enough of the stale taste so that they can be used in baking. As expensive as nuts are, it's worth a flyer — just trying it with a mini-version of one of your recipes.

Dear Dorothy: I'm told there's a way to make food in foil in a casserole — that it can be frozen and later put back into the same casserole to reheat. Casserole dishes are too important to be stuck in a freezer, and so this sounds like a gread idea. But I sure haven't found it in any books or magazines. Ever heard of it?—Lynn Brooks

Yes. It sounds hard, but it's simple as can be after a first try. Cut off enough heavy foil to line the casserole and leave a one-and-one-half-inch collar around all four sides. You shape the mold (the foil) over the outside of the casserole. Then fit it into the casserole to make a perfect fit. Put the cooked food in this and, after it has cooled, cover with a piece of foil the size of the casserole and seal this to the collar, folding the edges together. Place the whole thing in the freezer until the package is frozen hard enougth to lift out of the casserole. Whenever you're ready to serve the dish again, just place in the original casserole and reheat.

HOT MEALS READY on the car seat, Mrs. Barbara Newman of Arlington Heights, member of Far Acres Chapter of ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training), prepares to leave Holy Family Hospital to deliver them to elderly Wheeling Township residents served by the Meals-on-Wheels program. Area ORT chapters are among a dozen organizations who volunteer to take the meals prepared at the hospital to the seniors.

ORT women take meals to elderly

Four area chapters of the West Suburban Region of Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training) are participating in the Wheeling Township Meals-on-Wheels program during December.

Members of Far Acres, Twin Acres, Northernview and Plum Grove chapters have delivered hot meals prepared at Holy Family Hospital to elderly persons in Wheeling Township who are unable to manage their special dietary needs. West Suburban ORT is one of 12 organizations assuming responsibility for meal delivery throughout the year.

Meals-on-Wheels is just one of the many community functions performed by ORT, the vocational training program of the Jewish people. Thousands of students in 22 countries on five continents have benefitted from its programs.

Another of its projects is sponsoring a $250 scholarship for any graduating high school senior in Dist. 211, 214 or any other schools feeding into the DAVEA Center in Addision who wishes to pursue vocational studies.

"But once I got started, I gained confidence. It gives you the courage to go on and do other things."

One of the things she has done is open her own business, The Idea Shop. It's a storefront studio marked with a bright yellow awning on the south side of St. Louis where Mrs. Klein is surrounded with the materials and the students of the art she loves.

She talked of tole painting as she wandered among half a dozen students involved in different projects—giving encouragement along with her instruction. ("You're still swishing it too much," she told one woman. "Glop it a little more.")

HER EXPERTISE led to writing four booklets on decorative painting, complete with designs for students to try, and trips to other states to help satisfy a growing demand for accomplished teachers.

"So many people don't know anything about it," she said. "I was in Ohio and Pennsylvania and they're just starving for it. Before I could even get started, they were asking when I could come back. Some were coming 300 miles for lessons — can you imagine that?"

Roosevelt Glenview campus sets women in history course

Students of American society will have an opportunity to turn their focus toward women's place in American history in a new course to be taught at Roosevelt University's suburban Glenview campus in January.

"Social History of the American Woman" is designed for those interested in exploring a long-neglected aspect of the nation's history. Students will examine the shifting role of women as shaped by capitalism and the forces of industrialization through 200 years of social change. Unlike courses devoted strictly to the women's movement, this one views the struggle for equality as part of the over-all social pattern.

The class will meet Thursdays from 7:15 to 9:55 p.m. at Glenview Naval Air Station. The first session is Jan. 20. Registration can be made at 7291 2400 or 341-3671.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Reader misinformed about blood sugar

I'm writing regarding one of your columns about blood sugar. I was upset to think you would mislead your readers. I am referring to one sentence — were you properly prepared for the test, by eating adequate amounts of carbohydrates and sweets for three days before testing?

I feel strange informing a doctor that his advice is wrong, but I must bring your attention to this falsehood and hope you pass the information on to your readers.

There is no way one can prepare himself for a glucose tolerance test nor should he. If one does not maintain his normal diet before such a test, he has a very good chance of getting false results. May I suggest a little outside reading.

Your only problem other than being misinformed is that you didn't feel strange enough.

Any diabetic specialist knows that the diet will affect the results of a glucose tolerance test. The readings are not valid unless the individual has been consuming at least 200 grams of carbohydrates (some authorities say 250 to 300 grams) for several days before testing. Because some people prepare for their examinations by fasting or dieting, a number of people go to the laboratory after being on a carbohydrate restricted diet for several days or weeks. Incidentally, physical inactivity such as bed rest may also give a false diabetic-type response.

The way they saw it

'I bring you news of great joy'

Now at this time Caesar Augustus issued a decree for a census of the whole world to be taken. This census — the first — took place while Quirinius was governor of Syria, and everyone went to his own town to be registered. So Joseph set out from the town of Nazareth in Galilee and traveled up to Judaea, to the town of David called Bethlehem, since he was of David's House and line, in order to be registered together with Mary, his betrothed, who was with child.

While they were there the time came for her to have her child, and she gave birth to a son, her first-born. She wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger because there was no room for them at the inn.

In the countryside close by there were shepherds who lived in the fields and took it in turns to watch their flocks during the night. The angel of the Lord appeared to them and the glory of the Lord shone around them. They were terrified, but the angel said, "Do not be afraid. Listen, I bring you news of great joy, a joy to be shared by the whole people. Today in the town of David a savior has been born to you; he is Christ the Lord. And here is a sign for you: you will find a baby wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger." And suddenly with the angel there was a great throng of the heavenly host, praising God and singing:

"Glory to God in the highest heaven,
and peace to men who enjoy his favor."

Now when the angels had gone from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let us go to Bethlehem and see this thing that has happened which the Lord has made known to us." So they hurried away and found Mary and Joseph, and the baby lying in the manger. When they saw the child they repeated what they had been told about him, and everyone who heard it was astonished at what the shepherds had to say.

As for Mary, she treasured all these things and pondered them in her heart. And the shepherds went back glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen; it was exactly as they had been told.

—Luke 2:1-20, The Jerusalem Bible

3rd Christmas

Why should it seem like the world wants to reject Him?

(Editor's note: "The Third Christmas" was written by Pastor James R. Hines of the Brentwood Baptist Church, Des Plaines.)

"And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him. When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt."

Matthew 2:13-14

"Sometimes I don't understand, Joseph. Maybe I don't have enough faith, but it seems like things just aren't going like they ought to. Do you remember what day tomorrow is? It's His birthday, Joseph. Three years old He will be. And He's growing so — so strong and bright, and never any trouble. We couldn't have a better boy.

"But here we are, Jews in Egypt. Over two years since we came here. The Child has never even really seen His own country. Wouldn't He enjoy the flowers and the hills of Galilee near home? Oh, I know Nazareth isn't much of a town, rough and dirty, but it's home. And here — nothing but flat sand stretching for miles. No hills, no beauty, and the people are all idolaters. Should this Boy have to grow up without a synagogue, Joseph? Won't He ever get to go to the Temple in Jerusalem? What if we have to stay here and He can't even have a proper ceremony when He comes of age? Yet we still know we must keep believing, Joseph. He is the Messiah. The angel told us so.

"But things seemed to go wrong from the beginning. It's been hard. Even before He was born there was the gossip, the whispering among the women whenever I went out. You got it too. The old men that would shake their heads when they saw you at the market. Some of your customers even stopped coming to your shop. And then, when the time was near, Augustus made that decree about the census. It looked so impossible to make that trip. Weren't we most of the way there, before we realized how significant it was that we were going to be in Bethlehem when the Child was born?

"But we were about the only ones, Joseph. The rest of the world didn't care. We had to travel more slowly than the rest, and there weren't any rooms. You got so discouraged going from place to place and being told there was no room. I'll never forget the defeated look on your face when you came out from the inn and told me the only place we could go was the stable. The world didn't have room for the Messiah.

"There were the shepherds that first night. I can never forget how excited they were. You could almost see the glory of the angels still glistening in their eyes. They were so hushed as they gathered around the manger, like they were in a palace calling on the King. It was a wonder to them, that Messiah should come to a place where simple shepherds were at home. Didn't one of them whisper the passage about 'a root out of dry ground'? I know they told others. We could hear them giving the news to everyone they met as they went down the street. But no one else came, Joseph. I really thought they would. Didn't you?

"Yes, I remember the Magi from the East. They came a little later. They believed. It must have been the prophecies of Daniel that brought them. Surely God sent them. Without the gifts they left we could have never escaped. But they were from another country! Where were our people, our priests and elders? The Scribes know the Scriptures. Why didn't they come to see and receive Christ?

"That was when the danger came. The wise men made quite a stir when they came through Jerusalem. Herod really got jealous when he heard of the birth of the King. I still shake when I think of it. If it hadn't been for the angel that warned you, He would have been killed, Joseph. Rember how we had to leave in the middle of the night? Later we learned that every infant in Bethlehem had been killed by Herod's soldiers. Thank God we got Jesus away. But why should they try to kill Him, Joseph? He will bring salvation and peace to all mankind.

"Now here we are in Egypt and it is His birthday. Herod is getting old. Do you think someday we can go back, my husband? But, I don't understand. Why, Joseph? Why should it seem like all the world wants to ignore and reject Him? Why should they push Him out of their heart and out of their land? Will it always be this way?"

"He came unto His own, and His own received Him not. But as many as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God."

(John 1:12)

Where's good will toward men?

It's 'Joy to the World' vs. 'In Arms We Trust'

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Air Force magazine is to armaments what Playboy is to sex. Its centerfold features frontal shots of the B-1 bomber. Its readers get it on by viewing graphs of the balance of power. And each year around Christmas it dedicates itself to a pornographic review in the truest sense: an exhaustive listing of the military strengths of most of the world's nations.

It is a melancholy package for its readers. At best it serves to remind that "Joy to the World" has for the larger part been replaced by "In Arms We Trust." At a time when millions pause to reflect on peace on earth and human harmony, the military tabulation suggests such sentiments are of small practical moment.

The people of Saudi Arabia, for example, are currently spending nearly one-third of their gross national product on weaponry. In the U.S., as in the Soviet Union the national military expenditure approaches $500 per capita. Even in neutral Sweden, one of every six males serves in a reserve force capable of 48-hour mobilization.

But the most numbing statistics are the world totals. The magazine does not compile these figures, leaving this to readers with calculators. Thus at present, according to mathematics for nearly 100 nations, mankind is spending almost $350 billion annually to support some 25 million active and about 56 million standby soldiers.

It can be argued that these totals are somewhat exaggerated. Adding up militarism is not the same as counting apples. Because of state secrecy and other vagaries, some figuring is necessarily weak. Therefore, the expenditure totals may be several billion high, and maybe half of those listed as standby troops should not fairly be counted.

Then again, even an exaggerated list is in fact a conservative one where modern security is concerned. However much money is being spent, it purchases defenses of unprecedented sophistication. A plane today is equivalent to an entire air force of World War II, a single ship is more powerful than any fleet in history; and we have about 1,200,000 times the nuclear power that was dropped on Hiroshima.

And so it's clear this Christmas that civilization is separated into armed camps that have no historic comparison. In 1959, as the world was still working free from the Cold War, total military expenditure was about $97 billion. Since then, detente notwithstanding, international defense financing has almost quadrupled — and we now pay almost $1 billion a day in suspicion of one another.

There are other costs as well. Particularly those of a social nature. Each dollar spent in support of the world's 121,000 tanks means one less that could go to individual needs. In India, where people starve, the generals command 1.5 million soldiers. In Oman, where illiteracy is commonplace, per capita military spending is about $900. And in slum infested Egypt, almost half of the GNP is spent for guns.

Economist Ruth Leger Sivar says that nations now budget more for armies than for education. She says world health care receives only half the financing of world munitions. Her figures show the Middle East nations spending twice as much for defense as on education and health combined. Even the U.S. is guilty; it ranks first or second in war appropriations, but fourth in per capita cash for education.

Happy holidays? The compilations in Air Force Magazine this season go on for 66 pages. Russia has 41,500 tanks; Italy has as many reservists as does the U.S.; Zaire, which is landlocked, has 12 combat ships; Singapore, all 226 square miles of it, has 325 jet fighters; and East Germany, with a population of 17 million, budgets more for its arms than does India with 35 times the people.

Economist Sivar believes even a small portion of this gun money could wipe out illiteracy on the globe. Others are begging that nations put some of the 25 million troops to work building hospitals or helping with the harvests. Dreams, of course. Idle hope. Air Force Magazine is filled with references to bombs and bullets this Christmas, but there is no mention at all of good will toward men.

Fencepost: Kind words at Christmastime

In all the excitement of tinsel and presents, please don't forget to count your blessings and try to remember (although this is Amnesia Week) and feed the birds who didn't take that journey to a warmer climate, as they probably couldn't afford it.

So "take time to keep them alive" for the next Spring to come in all its glory.

I would like to personally thank Mayor Roland J. Meyer and those aldermen who, I feel, voted responsibly in affirming the 80 per cent retroactive pay raises for the City of Rolling Meadows employes. Their exhaustive efforts to honor a commitment under difficult circumstances is something I am certain every city employe will appreciate for a long time to come.

(Editor's note: Rolling Meadows city officials approved pay raises for about 80 per cent of the city employes that range from $2.59 an hour to a penny. The raises are retroactive to May 1 and city officials voted to pay an 80 per cent portion of the retroactive pay now and the remainder by April 1.)

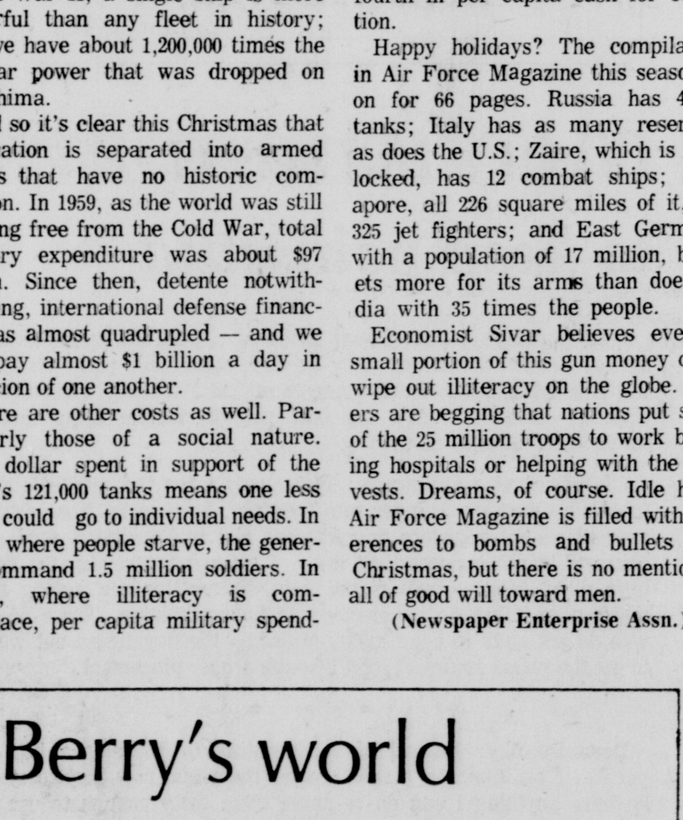
Berry's world



"MERRY CHRISTMAS EVERYONE!"

The way they saw it

'I bring you news of great joy'

Now at this time Caesar Augustus issued a decree for a census of the whole world to be taken. This census — the first — took place while Quirinius was governor of Syria, and everyone went to his own town to be registered. So Joseph set out from the town of Nazareth in Galilee and traveled up to Judaea, to the town of David called Bethlehem, since he was of David's House and line, in order to be registered together with Mary, his betrothed, who was with child.

While they were there the time came for her to have her child, and she gave birth to a son, her first-born. She wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger because there was no room for them at the inn.

In the countryside close by there were shepherds who lived in the fields and took it in turns to watch their flocks during the night. The angel of the Lord appeared to them and the glory of the Lord shone around them. They were terrified, but the angel said, "Do not be afraid. Listen, I bring you news of great joy, a joy to be shared by the whole people. Today in the town of David a savior has been born to you; he is Christ the Lord. And here is a sign for you: you will find a baby wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger." And suddenly with the angel there was a great throng of the heavenly host, praising God and singing:

"Glory to God in the highest heaven,
and peace to men who enjoy his favor."

Now when the angels had gone from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let us go to Bethlehem and see this thing that has happened which the Lord has made known to us." So they hurried away and found Mary and Joseph, and the baby lying in the manger. When they saw the child they repeated what they had been told about him, and everyone who heard it was astonished at what the shepherds had to say.

As for Mary, she treasured all these things and pondered them in her heart. And the shepherds went back glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen; it was exactly as they had been told.

—Luke 2:1-20, The Jerusalem Bible

3rd Christmas

Why should it seem like the world wants to reject Him?

(Editor's note: "The Third Christmas" was written by Pastor James R. Hines of the Brentwood Baptist Church, Des Plaines.)

"And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him. When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt."

Matthew 2:13-14

"Sometimes I don't understand, Joseph. Maybe I don't have enough faith, but it seems like things just aren't going like they ought to. Do you remember what day tomorrow is? It's His birthday, Joseph. Three years old He will be. And He's growing so — so strong and bright, and never any trouble. We couldn't have a better boy.

"But here we are, Jews in Egypt. Over two years since we came here. The Child has never even really seen His own country. Wouldn't He enjoy the flowers and the hills of Galilee near home? Oh, I know Nazareth isn't much of a town, rough and dirty, but it's home. And here — nothing but flat sand stretching for miles. No hills, no beauty, and the people are all idolaters. Should this Boy have to grow up without a synagogue, Joseph? Won't He ever get to go to the Temple in Jerusalem? What if we have to stay here and He can't even have a proper ceremony when He comes of age? Yet we still know we must keep believing, Joseph. He is the Messiah. The angel told us so.

"But things seemed to go wrong from the beginning. It's been hard. Even before He was born there was the gossip, the whispering among the women whenever I went out. You got it too. The old men that would shake their heads when they saw you at the market. Some of your customers even stopped coming to your shop. And then, when the time was near, Augustus made that decree about the census. It looked so impossible to make that trip. Weren't we most of the way there, before we realized how significant it was that we were going to be in Bethlehem when the Child was born?

"But we were about the only ones, Joseph. The rest of the world didn't care. We had to travel more slowly than the rest, and there weren't any rooms. You got so discouraged going from place to place and being told there was no room. I'll never forget the defeated look on your face when you came out from the inn and told me the only place we could go was the stable. The world didn't have room for the Messiah.

"There were the shepherds that first night. I can never forget how excited they were. You could almost see the glory of the angels still glistening in their eyes. They were so hushed as they gathered around the manger, like they were in a palace calling on the King. It was a wonder to them, that Messiah should come to a place where simple shepherds were at home. Didn't one of them whisper the passage about 'a root out of dry ground'? I know they told others. We could hear them giving the news to everyone they met as they went down the street. But no one else came, Joseph. I really thought they would. Didn't you?

"Yes, I remember the Magi from the East. They came a little later. They believed. It must have been the prophecies of Daniel that brought them. Surely God sent them. Without the gifts they left we could have never escaped. But they were from another country! Where were our people, our priests and elders? The Scribes know the Scriptures. Why didn't they come to see and receive Christ?

"That was when the danger came. The wise men made quite a stir when they came through Jerusalem. Herod really got jealous when he heard of the birth of the King. I still shake when I think of it. If it hadn't been for the angel that warned you, He would have been killed, Joseph. Rember how we had to leave in the middle of the night? Later we learned that every infant in Bethlehem had been killed by Herod's soldiers. Thank God we got Jesus away. But why should they try to kill Him, Joseph? He will bring salvation and peace to all mankind.

"Now here we are in Egypt and it is His birthday. Herod is getting old. Do you think someday we can go back, my husband? But, I don't understand. Why, Joseph? Why should it seem like all the world wants to ignore and reject Him? Why should they push Him out of their heart and out of their land? Will it always be this way?"

"He came unto His own, and His own received Him not. But as many as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God."

(John 1:12)

Where's good will toward men?

It's 'Joy to the World' vs. 'In Arms We Trust'

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Air Force magazine is to armaments what Playboy is to sex. Its centerfold features frontal shots of the B-1 bomber. Its readers get it on by viewing graphs of the balance of power. And each year around Christmas it dedicates itself to a pornographic review in the truest sense: an exhaustive listing of the military strengths of most of the world's nations.

It is a melancholy package for its readers. At best it serves to remind that "Joy to the World" has for the larger part been replaced by "In Arms We Trust." At a time when millions pause to reflect on peace on earth and human harmony, the military tabulation suggests such sentiments are of small practical moment.

The people of Saudi Arabia, for example, are currently spending nearly one-third of their gross national product on weaponry. In the U.S., as in the Soviet Union the national military expenditure approaches $500 per capita. Even in neutral Sweden, one of every six males serves in a reserve force capable of 48-hour mobilization.

But the most numbing statistics are the world totals. The magazine does not compile these figures, leaving this to readers with calculators. Thus at present, according to mathematics for nearly 100 nations, mankind is spending almost $350 billion annually to support some 25 million active and about 56 million standby soldiers.

It can be argued that these totals are somewhat exaggerated. Adding up militarism is not the same as counting apples. Because of state secrecy and other vagaries, some figuring is necessarily weak. Therefore, the expenditure totals may be several billion high, and maybe half of those listed as standby troops should not fairly be counted.

Then again, even an exaggerated list is in fact a conservative one where modern security is concerned. However much money is being spent, it purchases defenses of unprecedented sophistication. A plane today is equivalent to an entire air force of World War II, a single ship is more powerful than any fleet in history; and we have about 1,200,000 times the nuclear power that was dropped on Hiroshima.

And so it's clear this Christmas that civilization is separated into armed camps that have no historic comparison. In 1959, as the world was still working free from the Cold War, total military expenditure was about $97 billion. Since then, detente notwithstanding, international defense financing has almost quadrupled — and we now pay almost $1 billion a day in suspicion of one another.

There are other costs as well. Particularly those of a social nature. Each dollar spent in support of the world's 121,000 tanks means one less that could go to individual needs. In India, where people starve, the generals command 1.5 million soldiers. In Oman, where illiteracy is commonplace, per capita military spending is about $900. And in slum infested Egypt, almost half of the GNP is spent for guns.

Economist Ruth Leger Sivar says that nations now budget more for armies than for education. She says world health care receives only half the financing of world munitions. Her figures show the Middle East nations spending twice as much for defense as on education and health combined. Even the U.S. is guilty; it ranks first or second in war appropriations, but fourth in per capita cash for education.

Happy holidays? The compilations in Air Force Magazine this season go on for 66 pages. Russia has 41,500 tanks; Italy has as many reservists as does the U.S.; Zaire, which is landlocked, has 12 combat ships; Singapore, all 226 square miles of it, has 325 jet fighters; and East Germany, with a population of 17 million, budgets more for its arms than does India with 35 times the people.

Economist Sivar believes even a small portion of this gun money could wipe out illiteracy on the globe. Others are begging that nations put some of the 25 million troops to work building hospitals or helping with the harvests. Dreams, of course. Idle hope. Air Force Magazine is filled with references to bombs and bullets this Christmas, but there is no mention at all of good will toward men.

Vikings host Rams

Playoffs continue; Oakland hosts war

by CHRIS SCHERF
UPI Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Rams were reminded to take their mittens to Minnesota for Sunday's National Football Conference championship game against the Vikings.

It is expected to be considerably warmer in Oakland for the American Football Conference's championship game between the Raiders and the defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

With temperatures in the teens and wintry winds whipping across the Minnesota flatland, the visitors from sunny Southern California will have to battle the elements as well as the Vikings.

IN PAST years, the Vikings have moved their postseason practices to Tulsa, Okla., because of Minnesota's annual ice age. But this year Coach Bud Grant elected to remain in Bloomington and quarterback Fran Tarkenton believes it will help the Vikings.

"Staying here to practice has been a definite advantage for us," Tarkenton said. "That's not because of the cold, but because traveling is never an advantage. It's never a convenience. It wears you out."

"The cold weather doesn't hamper our practices," Grant said. "It's the snow that's the troublemaker."

It used to be the worse the weather, the bigger the advantage for the Vikings.

BUT THE Vikings have a new look this season with an explosive offense centered around Tarkenton and wide receivers Sammie White and Ahmad Rashad. Clearly, the Vikings will be hoping for dry weather Sunday in order to deploy their air attack.

Conversely, the Rams appear better suited for an "off-track" as running backs Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappelletti each gained 100 yards in a 10-10 tie against the Vikings earlier this season. In that game, Minnesota's Chuck Foreman and Brent McClanahan combined for only 59 yards.

While a good football game is expected in Minnesota, war is forecast for Oakland.

"I think people are expecting to see the Little Big Horn out there," Pittsburgh defensive end Dwight White said.

The Pittsburgh-Oakland rivalry has been pro football's bitterest since the immaculate reception by St. Franco in 1973 when Jack Tatum batted down a Terry Bradshaw pass which Franco Harris scooped up at his shoetops and carried into the end zone for the winning touchdown in the final seconds of a playoff game.

LAWSUITS are being served on Steeler Coach Chuck Noll for referring to the Raiders' defensive back George Atkinson as part of the "criminal element" in the NFL. Additionally, Atkinson gave the Steelers' top wide receiver, Lynn Swann, a concussion with a blow from behind in Pittsburgh's season-opening loss to the Raiders.

"I think it's going to be a high intensity game, with some vicious hitting out there," White said. But, he added, "That goes on every week.

"THEY'VE GOT too much to lose to worry about fighting. We've got too much to lose to worry about fighting. I think whoever does the most fighting is probably going to end up the loser."

Oakland Coach John Madden is more concerned with the Pittsburgh defense, which has been almost impenetrable during the Steelers' 10-game winning streak.

"They're red-dogging a little more than they used to and they're mixing up their defense a lot more," Madden said.

In losing four of their first five games, the Steelers yielded 95 points. In winning their final nine games, the Steelers gave up only two touchdowns and a total of 28 points while recording five shutouts. The Steelers then met Baltimore, the NFL's top offensive team, in the first round of the playoffs last week and routed the Colts, 40-14.

STEELER Linebacker Jack Ham and his wife Joanne hold no fears when it comes to hexes but aren't taking any chances as they hang hex sign with wreath attached to their door for Christmas. The Hams and other Steeler families had to celebrate Christmas a little early as they are in Oakland this weekend to play the Raiders for the AFC title.

Sometimes he runs 50 miles in a day.

"If I can run, that's just happiness for me," Rouiller says.

"It's really good for your ego. You get over 30 and you think you're going downhill. But stamina really doesn't deteriorate with age. I get a little stronger every year."

ROUILLER, 38, a bachelor, didn't start running until 1970, when he weighed 175 pounds. As a high school baseball pitcher, he recalls, he was one of the slowest runners on the team.

Today he is a 140-pound sophomore on a student athletic scholarship at Lewis University and one of the top members of the nation's only college marathon team.

"He's really phenomenal," says Lewis Coach Tom Brunick, 14 years Rouiller's junior. "I think probably his best event will be 50-mile runs. Just for a Sunday run he's run 50 miles in a day.

"If I can run, that's just happiness for me," Rouiller says.

"It's really good for your ego. You get over 30 and you think you're going downhill. But stamina really doesn't deteriorate with age. I get a little stronger every year."

ROUILLER, 38, a bachelor, didn't start running until 1970, when he weighed 175 pounds. As a high school baseball pitcher, he recalls, he was one of the slowest runners on the team.

Today he is a 140-pound sophomore on a student athletic scholarship at Lewis University and one of the top members of the nation's only college marathon team.

"He's really phenomenal," says Lewis Coach Tom Brunick, 14 years Rouiller's junior. "I think probably his best event will be 50-mile runs. Just for a Sunday run he's run 50 miles in a day.

"He's an example of how if you just put in a little bit of time maybe there's a sport you can excel at. Obviously, he's not the average guy you meet at that age. In some respects he's a very private person. Running

ROGER ROUILLER, 38, sophomore on a student athletic scholarship at Lewis University, has run 29,000 miles in the six years since he "discovered happiness." He often runs 50 miles in a day.

Merry Christmas from Herald sports

Was Santa good to you?

Now if you only had . . .

Art Mugalian
Staff Sportswriter

Some things we'd probably all like to get for Christmas:

An option to play out.

Bill Madlock's lifetime batting average (.337).

Reggie Jackson's contract.

Fred Biletnikoff's hands.

Sparky Anderson's job.

Howard Cosell's nerve (not to mention his tact).

The left arm of Kenny Stabler.

The thrill Brian Baschnagel must have every time he makes one of those diving catches.

The thrill Tarzan Wallis must have every time he makes one of those diving catches.

The ability to stuff like Julius Erving.

The ability to talk like Brent Musburger.

Dick Allen's ability.

O. J. Simpson's reputation.

O. J. Simpson's legs to go with it.

Chris Evert's ground strokes.

Jimmy Connors' net game.

Roscoe Tanner's serve.

An invitation to Forest Hills.

Fran Tarkenton's endurance.

Pat Haden's brains.

Golden Richards' hair (and his name).

Billy Williams' courage to quit while he's ahead.

George Blanda's courage to keep his chin up when nobody wanted him.

John Walker's time in the mile (3:49.4).

Anybody's time in the mile under 5:30.

The spunk of Nadia Comaneci.

The cool of Mark Fidyrich.

The class of Ara Parseghian.

The gate receipts from just one University of Michigan football game.

The concession receipts from just one University of Michigan football game.

Bill Veeck's inventiveness.

Randy Dean's guts.

Dave Corzine's raw talent.

Dorothy Hamill's grace.

Bruce Jenner's versatility.

Rod Laver's stamina.

Jack Nicklaus's money-winnings.

Ernie Banks' chances of making it to the Hall of Fame on the first ballot.

A look at Ernie Banks' expression when he finds out he made it.

Santa Claus's Christmas list.

Happy Holidays, everybody!

Preparation time concerns Sooners

TEMPE, Ariz. — If Oklahoma should happen to fall victim to underdog Wyoming in today's Fiesta Bowl, the Sooners could blame it on a lack of practice time.

But they won't.

"It certainly won't be a crutch for us," said Sooner coach Barry Switzer in explaining how semester exams cut into the Oklahoma practice sessions.

While Wyoming arrived here Dec. 16, the Sooners could not leave for Arizona until Tuesday night. To complicate matters further, their charter flight was delayed and the Sooners did not land until the wee hours Wednesday, forcing Switzer to call off one of the day's two scheduled practices.

"I'm very disappointed we haven't had what we would like to consider the proper preparation for a bowl game," Switzer said. "We practiced Monday and Tuesday when we found about an hour in the morning that we didn't have but about 15 no-shows for practice because of exams."

Wyoming's Fred Akers, who led the Cowbovs to an 8-3 mark and a share of the Western Athletic Conference title after a 2-9 mark in 1975, had no complaints about his team's preparations.

"We have been able to work out and work out effectively," he said.

All-Pro spot for Walter Payton

NEW YORK — The Bears' Walter Payton was named to the Professional Football Writers of American All-Pro team, joining O. J. Simpson of Buffalo and Bert Jones of Baltimore in the backfield.

Simpson was one of six players named for the third straight year.

Also selected all-pro for the third straight year was Minnesota offensive tackle Ron Yary, Miami center Jim Langer, Los Angeles defensive end Jack Youngblood, Pittsburgh linebacker Jack Ham, Washington safety Ken Houston and Oakland punter Ray Guy.

Simpson, who rushed for 1,503 yards, was joined in the backfield by the Bears' Payton and Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones. Also selected on the offensive were wide receivers Cliff Branch of Oakland and Drew Pearson of Dallas, tackle Dan Dierdoff of St. Louis, guars Joe DeLamielleure of Buffalo and John Hannah of New England, tight end Dave Casper of St. Louis and place kicker Jim Bakken of St. Louis.

Other defensive selections were end Tommy Hart of San Francisco, tackles Wally Chambers of Chicago and Jerry Sherk of Cleveland, linebackers Jack Lambert of Pittsburgh and Robert Brazile of Houston, cornerbacks Monte Johnson of Los Angeles and Roger Wehrli of St. Louis and safety Cliff Harris of Dallas.

Cy Young winner signs contract

SAN DIEGO — San Diego Padres pitcher Randy Jones, this year's Cy Young Award winner, signed a three-year contract after agent Jerry Kapstein entered into the negotiations on his behalf.

"It was just a matter of Randy Jones coming to his senses," Jones said. "I stopped comparing myself with other ballplayers. I finally realized I'm not in the same position as a free agent."

The team did not disclose Jones' salary, but it was unofficially reported at $140,000 a year.

Padres owner Ray Kroc called the final bargaining and agreement "beautiful."

"I talked to Buzzie (team president Buzzie Bavasi) about a good and reasonable figure, then Randy went to Jerry Kapstein for advice," Kroc said. "Would you believe he came up with the same figure? Kapstein is a good businessman."

Jones said earlier he hoped to become the highest paid member of the team, but since then Kapstein has negotiated multi-year million-dollar contracts with the Padres for free agents Rollie Fingers and Gene Tenace.

Colts' Thomas free to negotiate

BALTIMORE — Colts owner Robert Irsay has given general manager Joe Thomas permission to negotiate for a new job with other NFL clubs, it was reported Friday.

"I called the commissioner and told him that Joe could talk to anybody he wants," Irsay said. "Joe called me and said Rankin Smith (owner of the Atlanta Falcons) had called him and would I give him permission to talk to him. I told Joe I wanted him, but not on his terms."

Thomas has one more year on his $125,000 contract. Apparently he is asking for more money, although Irsay said the salary demand was not the only stumbling block.

"He knows I'm not a wealthy man," Irsay said. "I can't afford to lose money. I don't expect to make a large profit (off the team) but I do expect a profit and we have been making a small profit.

"Joe has to work in the framework of what we can can afford."

NCAA lifts Long Beach probation

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Long Beach State announced Friday that the NCAA has lifted its athletic probation effective Jan. 5, ending a three-year ban imposed in January of 1974 because of basketball and football violations.

The action means that Long Beach State will be eligible after Jan. 5 for postseason basketball and football competition and NCAA-sponsored television appearances.

The violations occurred under the coaching regimes of Jerry Tarkanian, now the head basketball coach at Nevada-Las Vegas, and Jim Stangeland, who resigned as the football coach here to go into the insurance business.

Identity crisis

Bulls showcase 'Mr. J'

Recently a visiting broadcaster watched a young forward score a game high 29 points to defeat his club, and when approached for a possible post-game interview he scribbled the player's name down, paused a moment, then scratched out the name and asked for 7-2 center Artis Gilmore.

That pretty well sums up the identity crisis facing a 24-year-old 3rd year NBA forward who's averaging better than 17 points and 10 rebounds a game, and in his brief career has blocked stuff shots by Kareen Abdul-Jabbar, Elvin Hayes and Julius Erving.

The Bulls' "Mr. J," better known as Mickey Johnson, doesn't seem to mind playing second fiddle, but seems to deserve a better fate in the opinion of many who watched him mature in the last two seasons. For five straight games Johnson has paced the Bulls in scoring.

FORMER BULLS' Coach Johnny "Red" Kerr, now doing color commentary on Chicago's radio and TV games, said, "He may turn out to be the best player to come from the Chicago Public League, except they can't claim him since he couldn't make the varsity at Lindblom High School on the city's south side.

That's a powerful compliment coming from a fellow southsider who left Tilden Tech to become the "Ironman of the NBA" and a member of the 10,000 point - 10,000 rebound club.

Johnson left Lindblom minus the usual offers that go to young men 82 inches high and enrolled at tiny Aurora College, 30 miles west of Chicago, where he shattered all the school's scoring records and was named an NAIA All-American.

IT LOOKED like things might change for him when he was drafted by Portland in the 3rd-round of the 1974 draft. However, after a few days of the rookie camp the Blazers decided that Bill Walton was the only newcomer worth keeping, and Johnson was put on waivers.

Fortunately for Johnson and the Bulls, he had spent his summers working at then Bulls' Coach Dick Motta's summer camp on the Aurora campus. Motta called Portland, and for a 3rd-round pick obtained his rights.

Mickey Johnson

On the roster of the Bulls' that season were All-Star forwards Chet Walker and Bob Love plus veterans Rowland Garrett, Bill Hewitt and number 1 draft pick Cliff Pondexter. Johnson's chance to stick seemed slim except that Love was a holdout for 20 games, and Walker was late reporting to the team. When tranquility returned to the Bulls', Johnson had shown enough to remain on the roster as a little-used sub on team which won the Midwest Division title.

The highlight of a season in which he saw 291 minutes of action in 38 games came when he started at forward against the Washington Bullets and scored 16 points against an astounded Elvin Hayes.

LAST SEASON Johnson began the year playing behind Love and the more experienced Garrett, but gained a starting berth early in the season and went on to lead the club in games played, and blocked shots and ranked second in field goal percentage (46%), free throw percentages (79%), rebounds (9.4), steals (1.2) and scoring average (15.3).

"My stats don't mean a thing except when they help the Bulls win," Mickey said following a recent game. He chuckled when told he'd been stuck on a career high of 30 points which he's reached four times. "I'm saving a new high for the playoffs when it counts."

So America, what more can you say about a relatively unknown young player who likes to knit on road trips, drives a 2-year-old Volkswagen, and still lives in the same West Side neighborhood where he was raised, and where he now keeps in shape during the summer by playing on the concrete with youngsters who take their "Mr. J" to "Dr. J" anytime.

Will Rose Bowl determine No. 1?

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — As far as their coaches are concerned, second-ranked Michigan and third-ranked Southern California will decide the national championship when they collide in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

The Wolverines' Bo Schembechler and the Trojans' John Robinson say their game-not the Sugar Bowl matchup between No. 1 Pittsburgh and No. 4 Georgia — should be for all the marbles.

"I have to think that way," said Robinson. "If we win, then I can claim it. We've earned the right to be considered. I'm sure of one thing. The team that wins the game will run off the field hollering and sticking their fingers up in the air."

REMARKED Schembecheler, "I think it should be for No. 1. I think most knowledgeable college football people would agree with me."

Michigan, which was upset by Purdue 16-14 in its ninth game of the regular season, has been installed as a six-point favorite to break USC's 10-game winning streak.

"That's the way we like it," said quarterback Vince Evans of the Trojans' underdog role. "We like to know the other team is favored. That gives us an extra incentive."

AFTER AN opening season 46-25 loss to Missouri, the Trojans have been outsanding. They clinched the Pacific-8 championship by beating UCLA 24-14 and then knocked off Notre Dame 17-13 in their regular-season finale.

The game will match two All-America running backs in USC's Ricky Bell, who was runner-up to Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh in the Heisman Trophy voting, and Rob Lytle of the Wolverines.

Bell rolled up 1,008 yards in his first five games this season but, hampered by injuries, was restricted to 409 in his last five. That gave him 1,417 yards on 276 carries, a 5.2 average.

LYTLE, A 6-foot-1, 195-pound senior, had a better average than Bell this season. He piled up 1,402 yards on 203 attempts for a 6.9 average.

"I think Lytle is a great back," said Robinson. "He, Bell and Dorsett were the three class backs in the country this seaeon. They'll be the three backs who''ll be drafted highest by the pros. Of those three, Lytle may be the fastest."

"They're going to be tough, very tough," added Evans, a 31 per cent passer as a junior who improved to a 51.6 per cent passer as a senior. "From the films, we can see they hit real quick and they hit awfully hard. They're typical of a Big Ten team. Purdue hit awfully hard, too. We'll just have to come out and play our game. In other words, we're going to have to go out and control the ball."

MICHIGAN will be trying to give Schembechelr his first Rose Bowl win. Before the 1970 Rose Bowl game with USC, a game the Trojans won 10-3, Schembechler his first Rose Bowl win. Stanford nipped the Wolverines 13-12 in 1972.

"Maybe," Schembechler laughed, "the third time will be the charm. But, seriously, we haven't exactly disgraced ourselves out here.

Marathon man at Lewis

is just sort of a way of life for him."

ROUILLER'S life changed one day in 1970 when he was playing tennis at his hometown of Parkersburg, W. Va.

"The best runner in West Virginia happened to move to my hometown," he recalled, "and he started to have some fitness runs around the tennis courts. I decided to join one and I did pretty well."

Before he knew it, Rouiller was hooked on running.

"I read an article by Kenny Moore, one of the best marathon runners," he said, "and he said that once a week you should try to run a real long distance. I built up until I was going about five miles a day. Then every Sunday I tried to run a couple miles more. In five months I got up to 26 miles."

FINALLY, Rouiller decided he wanted to run seriously. With a high school diploma his only education, he wrote in 1974 to college athletic departments across the nation. His only response came from St. Francis College, where Brunick had established a marathon team.

A year later at St. Francis in Joliet, Ill., Rouiller beat 159 other runners to win a marathon and finished seventh in the national NAIA marathon championships. This year he followed Brunick to Lewis when St. Francis dropped its program, and now he wants to finish higher at this year's NAIA meet.

Practicing against his younger teammates, Rouiller is like the tortoise against the hare. Most of the youngsters can outrun him over a short distance but he leaves them panting over the long haul.

"In the short races, like five miles, I haven't improved a bit," Rouiller said. "My best time for a mile is 4:52.8 and I haven't improved on that in five years. But in the marathon my time keeps getting a little better.

"I'M HOPING to improve until I'm in my early 40s anyway. It is something that just gets in your blood. You kind of make a big deal out of trying to reach your ultimate potential.

"I just enjoy feeling so healthy being able to go out there and do it every day. It's something that I can't seem to justify.

"But it's something I want to keep doing. I want to go out there and beat somebody."

Fortunately for Johnson and the Bulls, he had spent his summers working at then Bulls' Coach Dick Motta's summer camp on the Aurora campus. Motta called Portland, and for a 3rd-round pick obtained his rights.

On the roster of the Bulls' that season were All-Star forwards Chet Walker and Bob Love plus veterans Rowland Garrett, Bill Hewitt and number 1 draft pick Cliff Pondexter. Johnson's chance to stick seemed slim except that Love was a holdout for 20 games, and Walker was late reporting to the team. When tranquility returned to the Bulls', Johnson had shown enough to remain on the roster as a little-used sub on team which won the Midwest Division title.

Mickey Johnson

The highlight of a season in which he saw 291 minutes of action in 38 games came when he started at forward against the Washington Bullets and scored 16 points against an astounded Elvin Hayes.

LAST SEASON Johnson began the year playing behind Love and the more experienced Garrett, but gained a starting berth early in the season and went on to lead the club in games played, and blocked shots and ranked second in field goal percentage (46%), free throw percentages (79%), rebounds (9.4), steals (1.2) and scoring average (15.3).

"My stats don't mean a thing except when they help the Bulls win," Mickey said following a recent game. He chuckled when told he'd been stuck on a career high of 30 points which he's reached four times. "I'm saving a new high for the playoffs when it counts."

So America, what more can you say about a relatively unknown young player who likes to knit on road trips, drives a 2-year-old Volkswagen, and still lives in the same West Side neighborhood where he was raised, and where he now keeps in shape during the summer by playing on the concrete with youngsters who take their "Mr. J" to "Dr. J" anytime.

Will Rose Bowl determine No. 1?

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — As far as their coaches are concerned, second-ranked Michigan and third-ranked Southern California will decide the national championship when they collide in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

The Wolverines' Bo Schembechler and the Trojans' John Robinson say their game-not the Sugar Bowl matchup between No. 1 Pittsburgh and No. 4 Georgia — should be for all the marbles.

"I have to think that way," said Robinson. "If we win, then I can claim it. We've earned the right to be considered. I'm sure of one thing. The team that wins the game will run off the field hollering and sticking their fingers up in the air."

REMARKED Schembecheler, "I think it should be for No. 1. I think most knowledgeable college football people would agree with me."

Michigan, which was upset by Purdue 16-14 in its ninth game of the regular season, has been installed as a six-point favorite to break USC's 10-game winning streak.

"That's the way we like it," said quarterback Vince Evans of the Trojans' underdog role. "We like to know the other team is favored. That gives us an extra incentive."

AFTER AN opening season 46-25 loss to Missouri, the Trojans have been outsanding. They clinched the Pacific-8 championship by beating UCLA 24-14 and then knocked off Notre Dame 17-13 in their regular-season finale.

The game will match two All-America running backs in USC's Ricky Bell, who was runner-up to Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh in the Heisman Trophy voting, and Rob Lytle of the Wolverines.

Bell rolled up 1,008 yards in his first five games this season but, hampered by injuries, was restricted to 409 in his last five. That gave him 1,417 yards on 276 carries, a 5.2 average.

LYTLE, A 6-foot-1, 195-pound senior, had a better average than Bell this season. He piled up 1,402 yards on 203 attempts for a 6.9 average.

"I think Lytle is a great back," said Robinson. "He, Bell and Dorsett were the three class backs in the country this seaeon. They'll be the three backs who''ll be drafted highest by the pros. Of those three, Lytle may be the fastest."

"They're going to be tough, very tough," added Evans, a 31 per cent passer as a junior who improved to a 51.6 per cent passer as a senior. "From the films, we can see they hit real quick and they hit awfully hard. They're typical of a Big Ten team. Purdue hit awfully hard, too. We'll just have to come out and play our game. In other words, we're going to have to go out and control the ball."

MICHIGAN will be trying to give Schembechelr his first Rose Bowl win. Before the 1970 Rose Bowl game with USC, a game the Trojans won 10-3, Schembechler his first Rose Bowl win. Stanford nipped the Wolverines 13-12 in 1972.

"Maybe," Schembechler laughed, "the third time will be the charm. But, seriously, we haven't exactly disgraced ourselves out here.

is just sort of a way of life for him."

ROUILLER'S life changed one day in 1970 when he was playing tennis at his hometown of Parkersburg, W. Va.

"The best runner in West Virginia happened to move to my hometown," he recalled, "and he started to have some fitness runs around the tennis courts. I decided to join one and I did pretty well."

Before he knew it, Rouiller was hooked on running.

"I read an article by Kenny Moore, one of the best marathon runners," he said, "and he said that once a week you should try to run a real long distance. I built up until I was going about five miles a day. Then every Sunday I tried to run a couple miles more. In five months I got up to 26 miles."

FINALLY, Rouiller decided he wanted to run seriously. With a high school diploma his only education, he wrote in 1974 to college athletic departments across the nation. His only response came from St. Francis College, where Brunick had established a marathon team.

A year later at St. Francis in Joliet, Ill., Rouiller beat 159 other runners to win a marathon and finished seventh in the national NAIA marathon championships. This year he followed Brunick to Lewis when St. Francis dropped its program, and now he wants to finish higher at this year's NAIA meet.

Practicing against his younger teammates, Rouiller is like the tortoise against the hare. Most of the youngsters can outrun him over a short distance but he leaves them panting over the long haul.

"In the short races, like five miles, I haven't improved a bit," Rouiller said. "My best time for a mile is 4:52.8 and I haven't improved on that in five years. But in the marathon my time keeps getting a little better.

"I'M HOPING to improve until I'm in my early 40s anyway. It is something that just gets in your blood. You kind of make a big deal out of trying to reach your ultimate potential.

"I just enjoy feeling so healthy being able to go out there and do it every day. It's something that I can't seem to justify.

"But it's something I want to keep doing. I want to go out there and beat somebody."

Heavy schedule of shows on sportsman's calendar

Outdoors
Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

Throughout the course of a season, this department is called upon to field questions from puzzled outdoor enthusiasts.

Many inquiries deal with product endorsements or subjective responses to favorite fishing areas, resorts, lodges and campsites.

But occasionally there are requests for rules interpretations, important telephone numbers or misplaced dates.

HERE ARE SOME of the most common questions:

• When are the big outdoor shows coming to Chicago and Arlington Park this year?

The Chicago Boat, Sports and RV Show will be staged at McCormick Place, Jan. 5-9. Hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday; from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday. Adults are $2.75 and children 12 and under are free if accompanied by an adult.

America's Fishing and Sports Show is scheduled for Arlington Park, Jan. 20-23. Emphasis will be on fishing with seminars and demonstrations. Boats displayed will be only those associated with fishing.

THE 9TH ANNUAL Camping and Travel Show appears at Arlington Park, Jan. 28-Feb. 6. Weekday hours are 3 p..m. to 10 p.m., Saturdays and Sunday (Jan. 30) from noon to 10 p.m. and Feb. 6 from noon to 8 p.m. Adults are $1.75 on weekdays, $2.50 on weekends.

The Sportsman's Show with host John Bromfield will be conducted at the Amphitheatre, Feb. 18-27. No additional details are available.

The 8th annual Midwest Boat Show at Arlington Park is slated for March 11-20.

• Who is exempt from purchasing an Illinois hunting or fishing license?

No fishing license, including a Salmon Stamp, is required of an Illinois resident if the person is: 65 years of age or more; under 16; fishing at daily fee fishing areas licensed by the Illinois Dept of Conservation; an ordinary leave from the U.S. Armed Forces; blind; disabled or owners tenants or members of private clubs.

NO HUNTING licenses, including a State Migratory Waterfowl Stamp, is required of an Illinois resident if a person is on ordinary leave from the U.S. Armed Forces; the owners residing on huntable lands; a person is 65 years of age or more or disabled.

• What is the hunter orange requirement during the shotgun deer season?

It is unlawful for any person to take deer unless he is wearing, while in the field, a cap and upper outer garment of solid blaze orange color of at least a total of 400 square inches. This clothing requirement applies to both hunters and non-hunters in the field.

• Where can I reserve a charter fishing boat for Lake Michigan?

THE HEADQUARTERS out of Burnham Harbor in Chicago is Chicago Sport Fishing Assn. The number is 922-1100. The Waukegan Charter Boat Assn. number is B-I-G-F-I-S-H, 244-3474.

• I'm interested in teaching my son how to use a shotgun and rifle. Is there any supervised area available?

Fox Valley Rifle Range, Inc. in Dundee, Ill., is open year-round. You can reach it by driving west on the Northwest Tollway to Elgin. Exit at Rte. 25. Drive north through Meadowdale to Bolz Road, turn west and drive ¾ mile to range.

A stringent set of rules prevents accidents. The range has 200 shooting benches and targets, 1,000 feet of firing line and 24 clay bird traps.

Reduced fees at many facilities

Campers discover limited services

Some camping areas and other facilities at 15 state parks have been closed for the winter to prevent damage to equipment, roads, or the natural resources.

While the shutdown reduces the number of pads or services available at these sites, it does not eliminate camping entirely at any of the 15 parks.

In cases where a Class A campground remains open, but some of its facilities have been closed, fees have been reduced.

Parks affected, facilities closed and anticipated re-opening dates are:

ILLINI—Dumping stations, flush toilets and water service are closed until April 1. However, primitive camping areas with electricity and pit toilets will remain open. Camping fee is $2.

Jubilee College—Modern restrooms are closed through April 15 and trailer camping is limited to a small area adjacent to the park office until May 1. The Class C campground and the walk-in camping area remain open. Class B camping fee is $2, Class C will be $1.

Lake Le-Aqua-Na—Shower building closed until May. Class A camping fee is reduced to $2.

Mississippi Palisades—The shower building is closed until May 1. The Class A camping fee is reduced to $2.

Rock Cut—Shower building is closed until May 1 and the camping fee is reduced to $2.

CHAIN O'LAKES—Turner Lake South and Prairie View camping areas are closed until construction in the area has been completed. Oak Point picnic area and the boat access ramp are closed until April 15. Honeysuckle Hollow campground and its utility building are open year 'round. The camping fee remains $3.

Illinois Beach—One utility building, all ivies and freeze-proof water hydrants will remain open. The camping fee is $2.

Kankakee River — Flush toilets are closed until April 1, but pit toilets and electrical service are available. The camping fee is $2.

Eagle Creek—The campground is closed until March 1, but equestrain, walk-in, tent and youth camping areas will remain open. There is no change in fees.

FOX RIDGE—The park pavilion, with its flush toilets and showers, is closed until March 31. Electrical service also has been shut down. However, primitive camping areas and pit toilets are open. The camping fee is $2.

Lincoln Trail—Campground shower building is closed until March 15, but pit privies and electrical service are available. The camping fee is reduced to $2.

Wolf Creek—Showers are closed until March 1 at the main campground, but pit privies and electricity are available. The camping fee is $2. Equestrian, walk-in, tent and youth camping areas also are open.

Beaver Dam—Drinking fountains in the campgrounds are shut off until March 31. The camping fee is $2.

CARYLE RESERVOIR—Shower buildings are closed until April 1. The camping fee is reduced to $2.

Siloam Springs—Water at the campgrounds and sanitary dumping stations has been shut off until April 1. A new campground with all-weather pads is scheduled to open this winter. At that time, the old campgrounds will be closed and users will be directed to the new facility.

Ice fishing success warms in Wisconsin

Recreation in our northern neighbor of Wisconsin will draw mixed reviews this weekend, depending on what activities you enjoy.

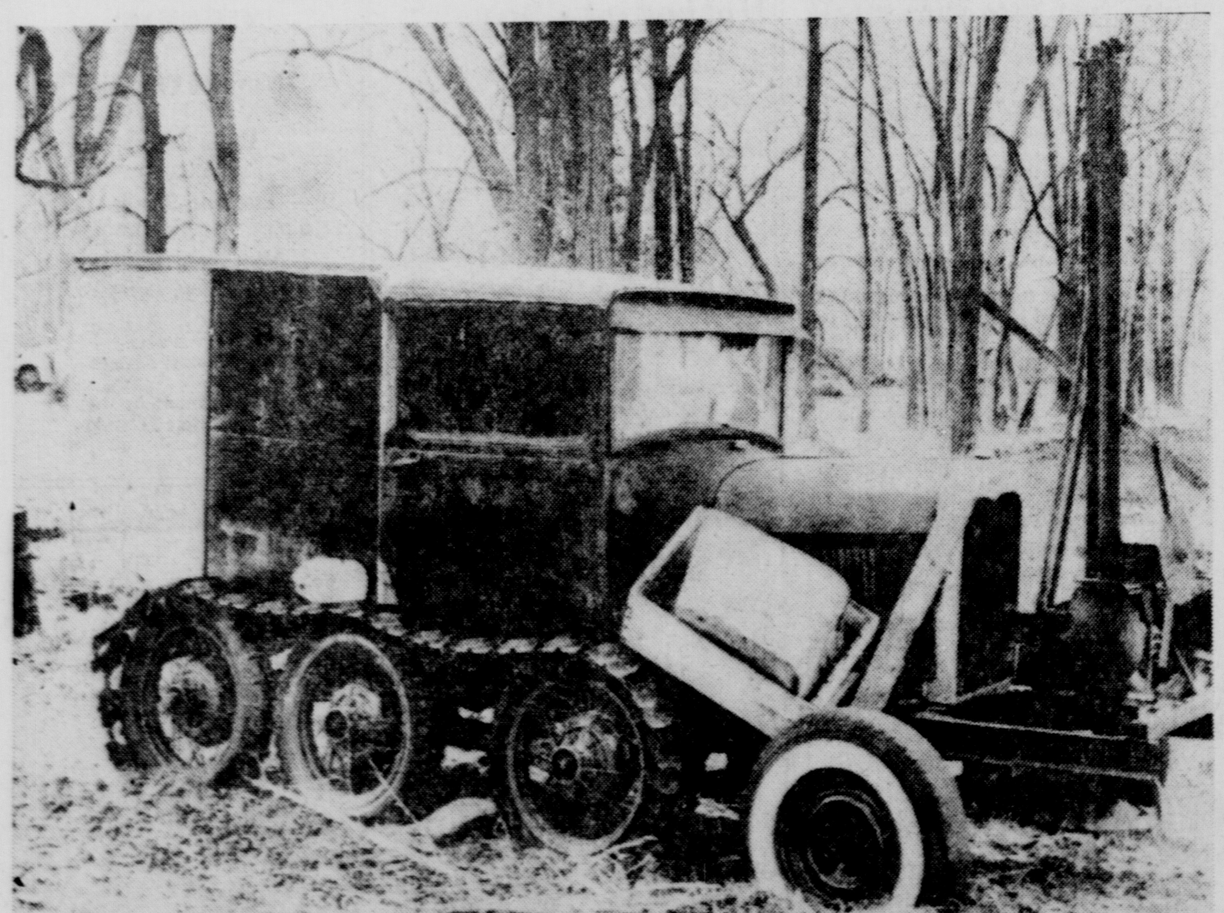
Snowmobile trails are worn and in poor condition in the southeastern counties, but ice fishing is generally good.

Perch are hitting on Lake Kegonsa and Lake Waubesa at the 30 foot level in the middle of the lake. They are biting best on maggots. A nine and one-quarter pound walleye was taken recently in Waubesa.

In the center of the lake, nice catches of bluegills are being taken from 3 p.m. on. Bluegills and crappies are slow on Upper Mud Lake.

Walleyes are striking in Pike Lake, Nagawicka Lake, Powers Lake and on Wind Lake. Northern fishing is good on most inland lakes. Reportedly good catches have been made on Big Cedar Lake and on Phantom and La Belle lakes.

Whatever your interests, be careful and have a Merry Christmas.



WINTER WAGON. The over-50 crowd will recognize the model A Ford body, but Ray Tuttle customized the vehicle into a snow-icemobile. The contraption is equipped with a fishing shack in the rear and a mechanism on the front for drilling holes through the ice.

Reduced fees at many facilities

Campers discover limited services

Some camping areas and other facilities at 15 state parks have been closed for the winter to prevent damage to equipment, roads, or the natural resources.

While the shutdown reduces the number of pads or services available at these sites, it does not eliminate camping entirely at any of the 15 parks.

In cases where a Class A campground remains open, but some of its facilities have been closed, fees have been reduced.

Parks affected, facilities closed and anticipated re-opening dates are:

ILLINI—Dumping stations, flush toilets and water service are closed until April 1. However, primitive camping areas with electricity and pit toilets will remain open. Camping fee is $2.

Jubilee College—Modern restrooms are closed through April 15 and trailer camping is limited to a small area adjacent to the park office until May 1. The Class C campground and the walk-in camping area remain open. Class B camping fee is $2, Class C will be $1.

Lake Le-Aqua-Na—Shower building closed until May. Class A camping fee is reduced to $2.

Mississippi Palisades—The shower building is closed until May 1. The Class A camping fee is reduced to $2.

Rock Cut—Shower building is closed until May 1 and the camping fee is reduced to $2.

CHAIN O'LAKES—Turner Lake South and Prairie View camping areas are closed until construction in the area has been completed. Oak Point picnic area and the boat access ramp are closed until April 15. Honeysuckle Hollow campground and its utility building are open year 'round. The camping fee remains $3.

Illinois Beach—One utility building, all privies and freeze-proof water hydrants will remain open. The camping fee is $2.

Kankakee River — Flush toilets are closed until April 1, but pit toilets and electrical service are available. The camping fee is $2.

Eagle Creek—The campground is closed until March 1, but equestrain, walk-in, tent and youth camping areas will remain open. There is no change in fees.

FOX RIDGE—The park pavilion, with its flush toilets and showers, is closed until March 31. Electrical service also has been shut down. However, primitive camping areas and pit toilets are open. The camping fee is $2.

Lincoln Trail—Campground shower building is closed until March 15, but pit privies and electrical service are available. The camping fee is reduced to $2.

Wolf Creek—Showers are closed until March 1 at the main campground, but pit privies and electricity are available. The camping fee is $2. Equestrian, walk-in, tent and youth camping areas also are open.

Beaver Dam—Drinking fountains in the campgrounds are shut off until March 31. The camping fee is $2.

CARYLE RESERVOIR—Shower buildings are closed until April 1. The camping fee is reduced to $2.

Siloam Springs—Water at the campgrounds and sanitary dumping stations has been shut off until April 1. A new campground with all-weather pads is scheduled to open this winter. At that time, the old campgrounds will be closed and users will be directed to the new facility.

Ice fishing success warms in Wisconsin

Recreation in our northern neighbor of Wisconsin will draw mixed reviews this weekend, depending on what activities you enjoy.

Snowmobile trails are worn and in poor condition in the southeastern counties, but ice fishing is generally good.

Perch are hitting on Lake Kegonsa and Lake Waubesa at the 30 foot level in the middle of the lake. They are biting best on maggots. A nine and one-quarter pound walleye was taken recently in Waubesa.

In the center of the lake, nice catches of bluegills are being taken from 3 p.m. on. Bluegills and crappies are slow on Upper Mud Lake.

Walleyes are striking in Pike Lake, Nagawicka Lake, Powers Lake and on Wind Lake. Northern fishing is good on most inland lakes. Reportedly good catches have been made on Big Cedar Lake and on Phantom and La Belle lakes.

Whatever your interests, be careful and have a Merry Christmas.

World of religion

Memoir explains one man's conversion to Anglicanism

Early next month, Christians around the world will meet together, talk together and pray together in the annual observance of the "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity."

Sponsored by the Atonement Friars at Graymoor Ecumenical Institute, the week serves as a potent reminder that "God continues to reconcile the world to Himself in Jesus Christ by the power of the Holy Spirit" and that in this knowledge is the Christian's hope, courage and strength "to work for greater and more manifest signs of the unity of the Christian Church . . ."

The ecumenical movement is considered to be in general disarray at the particular moment — particularly on the official level between denominations.

To cite just one example, the Episcopal Church's decision to permit the ordination of women has affected not just that denomination, but has resonated throughout most of "catholic" Christendom.

The Polish National Catholic Church has broken sacramental relations with the Episcopalians, has "bewildered" the Orthodox churches and called into question their relations and created "obstacles" for the dialogue between Roman Catholics and Episcopalians.

In the midst of this turmoil has come John Cogley's posthumous memoir, "A Canterbury Tale" (Seabury), in which Cogely details some of the reasons for his personal journey from Roman Catholicism — Rome — to Anglicanism — Canterbury.

One of the best known lay Roman Catholics in the United States, Cogely's announcement of his conversion to Anglicanism in September 1973, hit the religious world with a shattering impact.

Cogely, best known as a journalist and called by many the "pope of 'commonweal' Catholics," was one of the most influential liberal Catholics on the American scene: an activist in the Catholic Worker movement during the Depression, columnist and editor at the highly respected lay publication "Commonweal," religion editor for New York Times and editor of the respected "Center Magazine" of the Center for Study of Democratic Institutions.

In his memoir, Cogely details his experiences at all of these various institutions, offering "reflections" along the way about his movement into American Episcopalianism.

Cogely's "trouble" with Catholcism in the post-Vatican II era was neither bitter nor unique, but a problem shared with many other liberal Catholics seeking to reconcile their inherited faith and the new movemests — sometimes agonizingly slow — that seem implied by the Council.

His reflections will have particular urgency for Roman Catholics and Protestants, who, after rising from their prayers for unity, must deal with the nitty-gritty of how to bring about that unity in this world.

Memoir explains one man's conversion to Anglicanism

Early next month, Christians around the world will meet together, talk together and pray together in the annual observance of the "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity."

Sponsored by the Atonement Friars at Graymoor Ecumenical Institute, the week serves as a potent reminder that "God continues to reconcile the world to Himself in Jesus Christ by the power of the Holy Spirit" and that in this knowledge is the Christian's hope, courage and strength "to work for greater and more manifest signs of the unity of the Christian Church . . ."

The ecumenical movement is considered to be in general disarray at the particular moment — particularly on the official level between denominations.

To cite just one example, the Episcopal Church's decision to permit the ordination of women has affected not just that denomination, but has resonated throughout most of "catholic" Christendom.

The Polish National Catholic Church has broken sacramental relations with the Episcopalians, has "bewildered" the Orthodox churches and called into question their relations and created "obstacles" for the dialogue between Roman Catholics and Episcopalians.

In the midst of this turmoil has come John Cogley's posthumous memoir, "A Canterbury Tale" (Seabury), in which Cogely details some of the reasons for his personal journey from Roman Catholicism — Rome — to Anglicanism — Canterbury.

One of the best known lay Roman Catholics in the United States, Cogely's announcement of his conversion to Anglicanism in September 1973, hit the religious world with a shattering impact.

Cogely, best known as a journalist and called by many the "pope of 'commonweal' Catholics," was one of the most influential liberal Catholics on the American scene: an activist in the Catholic Worker movement during the Depression, columnist and editor at the highly respected lay publication "Commonweal," religion editor for New York Times and editor of the respected "Center Magazine" of the Center for Study of Democratic Institutions.

In his memoir, Cogely details his experiences at all of these various institutions, offering "reflections" along the way about his movement into American Episcopalianism.

Cogely's "trouble" with Catholcism in the post-Vatican II era was neither bitter nor unique, but a problem shared with many other liberal Catholics seeking to reconcile their inherited faith and the new movemests — sometimes agonizingly slow — that seem implied by the Council.

His reflections will have particular urgency for Roman Catholics and Protestants, who, after rising from their prayers for unity, must deal with the nitty-gritty of how to bring about that unity in this world.

Superblock, bank building take shape

Shopping center opens mid 1977 . . .

Des Plaines' $15 million Superblock project will have "one of the most modern shopping center designs in the suburbs" featuring a 10-story building to open Jan. 1 and an enclosed three-story shopping center to open in mid-1977.

J. R. Gottlieb & Associates is partner in the joint venture with Erickson & Stevens, a Des Plaines Archinis Stevens, architect said.

Spiegler's department store will be the first major tenant to move into the enclosed mall designed by Erickson & Stevens.

THE SHOPPING CENTER will have two major atriums with natural skylights, stairs at each end of the corridors and escalators in the middle. The inside of the mall will be open three stories up to the skylights, Dennis Stevens, architect said.

"The emphasis will be on natural light, natural woods and natural plants; smaller, more personal walkways; open storefronts wherever possible," he said. "It will be one of the most modern shopping center designs in the suburbs today. It's patterned, traffic-wise, after the more sophisticated shopping centers without losing the personality of people on a one-to-one basis."

"We're having rough-sawn timbers for the inside of the center shipped in from the coast. The woods will be handstained, not painted. There will be no smooth, slick surfaces. Everything will have a real, natural earthy look to it. The center will be textured with such materials to have warm, friendly edges. People will feel like they're shopping in their own neighborhood," Stevens said.

Center Street, one of Des Plaines oldest streets, will be renovated andl landscaped to lead up to the new shopping center's door.

THERE WILL BE AN entrance to the center through the new office building, to be named the First National Bank Building after its major tenant, as well as through Center Street and on Prairie Avenue.

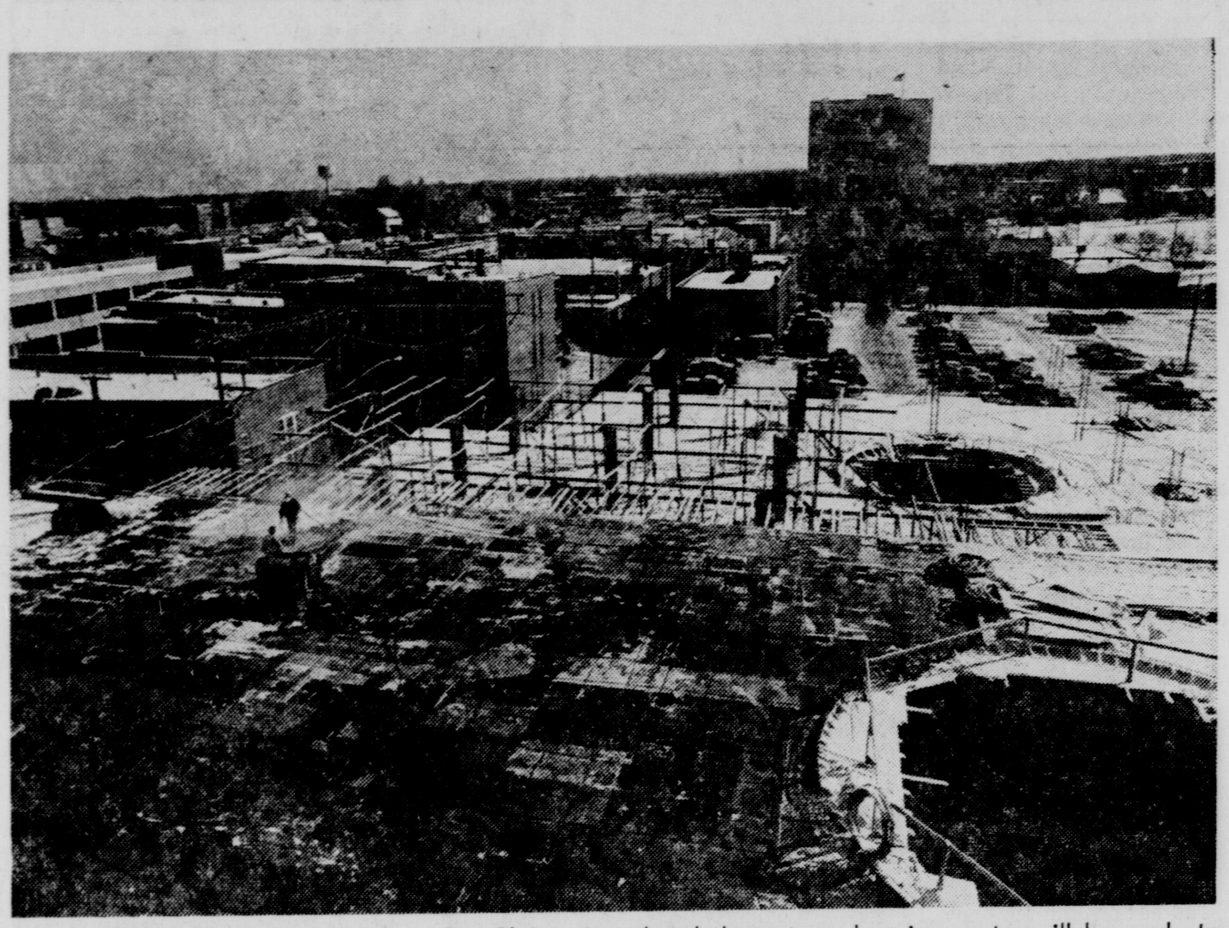
The new downtown mall, which will cover several square blocks bounded by Lee, Prairie, Pearson and Ellinwood streets, is one of the city's major, most involved and sophisticated building projects in years. It will result in the complete renovation of the downtown center, Jerry Gottlieb said.

Shoppers will be able to use the several adjacent parking facilities within close reach of the center. Commuter train transprtation to and from Chicago's Loop is located at the back door of the mall.

The city plans to expand Prairie Avenue, which runs in front of the bank building and the shopping center, into a four-lane boulevard with a paseo.

Spiegler's department store will occupy about 22,000 square feet on all three floors and Gottlieb is negotiating with other businesses for another 30,000 square feet of space in the center, Gottlieb said.

Gottlieb & Assoc. is leasing and managing agent also for office space and retail space in the project. The company is a fully-diversified real estate firm with 20 years experience in commercial property development.



THE SUPERBLOCK mall in downtown Des Plaines is shaping up fast and architects estimate the enclosed three-story shopping center will be ready to open in mid 1977.

THE FIRST National Bank Building of Des Plaines, the first building in the $15 million downtown redevelopment project, is scheduled to be ready for occupancy Jan. 1.

. . . Bank office building ready Jan 1.

A Jan. 1 date has been set for the First National Bank Building of Des Plaines to be ready for occupancy.

The building is the first in the $15 million Des Plaines downtown redevelopment project to be ready for tenants.

The 10-story building is downtown Des Plaines' first highrise office building and will offer tenants from 500 square-feet to eight floors, each averaging 16,500 square feet of rentable space. Cost is $8.50 per square feet and up.

The bank, as one of the major tenants, will occupy 36,000 square feet of the building.

Adjacent to the new building will be a multi-level parking deck for use by only office tenants. Additional on and off-street parking is also planned as well as bus transportation and a regular commuter line, the Chicago & North Western Ry., which stops at the building's back door 56 times a day.

The office building has four, high-speed, solid state banks of elevators. Building standard includes choice of carpeting, five-day janitorial, vertical-louvered blinds, free parking and executive washrooms on every floor. A variable-volume heating and air conditioning system gives maximum comfort for each office suite.

Extra interior office space will be created by a unique diagonal column grid system which will lend flexibility to office layouts and decorating.

The new office building is part of a $15 million downtown mall program for Des Plaines. Part of the program includes a new $7 million enclosed mall shopping center which will be ready by June 1, 1977.

The new shopping center will offer 200,000 square feet of space for chain stores, speciality shops and restaurants.

There is a covered walkway from the parking facility to the office building and from the office building to the shopping center so a person could conceivably park, walk to work and shop on a lunch hour without ever having to go outside.

The First National Bank Building is the largest, tallest building to be built in this area.

For companies thinking of employe recruitment, the building will offer many additional advantages including mall shopping, door-to-door trains and bus transportation by major lines, parking and nearby neighboring shops and restaurants.

The building is of pre-cast concrete with bronze-tinted windows. The free louvered blinds are provided with each office to standardize the outside look of the building.

Some 30,000 square feet of office space is already under negotiation with major companies in the area and elsewhere. J. R. Gottlieb — Associates is developer of the complex. The real estate firm is a partner in a joint venture with Erickson & Stevens, a Des Plaines architectural firm, to develop the new complex.

Basic black and white theme adds intimacy to seating

Your home

by Carolyn Murray

It's all so enticing. The upholstery coddles your body. The fabric tantalizes your fingertips. The scale is right for junior-and senior-size spaces. And the total is even more than the sum of its parts!

When a seating group answers all those prerequisites you know you're on the right track. And the furniture illustrated today seems to reflect those guidelines.

The pieces shown come from the company that invented the original trademarked concept called playpen. There have been many playpen imitators, since its introduction about three years ago, but Selig Manufacturing Co. Inc. of Leominster, Maine, rides the crest of the wave when it comes to seating innovations.

ACCORDING TO Elroy Edson, vice president of Selig and head of the interior design department, "We want to reinforce our commitment to contempoary design by producing units suited to informality and young ideas. We keep our silhouettes low, our upholstery luscious and relaxed. There's a casual ease, but nothing casual about the way we put the concepts together."

It hasn't been easy for any manufacturer to stay with contemporary concepts. Especially in the recent barrage of Bicentennial entries. But Selig produces more contemporary furniture than any other United States-based firm.

The setting illustrated today shows a medley of textures within a basic black and white theme. The intimate seating arrangement features two sofas and one armless settee covered in white chenille. More white and more texture appears in the shag carpeting and the chenille-upholstered mirror.

Then there's the glitter of Selig's chrome and glass tables and Kirk-Brummel's black and white wall covering, plus the sharp contrast of black and white printed pillows and wall art which is a study in zebras.

It's a room you can walk though without disturbing seated guests, because they're comfortably sheltered within the Selig cove. Yet any time there's an opportunity to move on to bigger quarters, the furniture recomposes for its new environment.

Today is Saturday, Dec. 25, the 360th day of 1976, with six to follow. This is Christmas Day.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

American singer Tony Martin was born Dec. 25, 1913.

On this day in history:

• Between 4B.C. and 4 A.D., Jesus Christ was born in Bethlehem. Early day calendar miscalculations make it impossible to pinpoint the exact year.

• In 1818, the first Christmas carol was sung at Oberndorf, Austria. It was "Silent Night, Holy Night," composed by organist Franz Gruber and Father Joseph Mohr.

• In 1971, more than 160 persons died in Seoul, South Korea, in history's worst hotel fire.

• In 1974, Cyclone Tracy, packing 160-mile-an-hour winds, devastated Darwin, Australia, killing more than 40 persons.

A thought for the day: English author Thomas Tusser said, "At Christmas play and make good cheer, for Christmas comes but once a year."

Spiders keep plants bug-free

ARE THE BLACK AND YELLOW GARDEN SPIDERS BENEFICIAL TO GARDENS?

The pretty black and yellow, or black and orange, spiders that you saw in your garden during the summer and early fall months are no longer with us. But you can bet that before they fell victim to the chill of winter they did their best to keep your garden free of many insect pests. As you may know, spiders are carnivorous meat-eaters, and among their favorite foods are many of the free-loading insects that invade our prized plants.

Most all spiders can spin silk of one kind or another. Some of them use their silk to line underground burrows or make egg cases. The master spinners use their silk to spin webs to catch their prey, and the webs range greatly in size, shape and beauty.

Perhaps one of the champion spinners is the garden spider. Her web is generally two to three feet across, although occasionally one will be even larger. When she is finished with her spiraled orb, she affixes her signature — a zigzag band of silk running vertically through the center. Each evening she repairs her web, but if the traffic has been too heavy and damaging she builds anew.

In the fall, as cold weather begins to set in, she searches for a place to lay her eggs. A roof of silken threads is spun in which she deposits some 500 golden eggs. Gently she pushes them together to form a neat pearl-shaped ball. Now she spins winding strands of silk back and forth, until her golden treasure is almost hidden in a sturdy silken cocoon.

The garden spider makes only one egg case, but the effort leaves her weak and tired. As the cold of October creeps in she drops to the ground and dies.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy: Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Pop-Up Placecards

Did you get Christmas cards that are too pretty to throw away? Here's a good way to use them.

Cut snowmen or other figures from the cards. Cut a sheet of red or green construction paper into four parts. Fold each part in half across the width. Stand it up to make a placecard for your table. Glue a cutout to each placecard.

Pack these cards away with your Christmas ornaments. They'll be ready for your holiday table next year!

Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Saturday, Dec. 25, the 360th day of 1976, with six to follow. This is Christmas Day.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

American singer Tony Martin was born Dec. 25, 1913.

On this day in history:

• Between 4B.C. and 4 A.D., Jesus Christ was born in Bethlehem. Early day calendar miscalculations make it impossible to pinpoint the exact year.

• In 1818, the first Christmas carol was sung at Oberndorf, Austria. It was "Silent Night, Holy Night," composed by organist Franz Gruber and Father Joseph Mohr.

• In 1971, more than 160 persons died in Seoul, South Korea, in history's worst hotel fire.

• In 1974, Cyclone Tracy, packing 160-mile-an-hour winds, devastated Darwin, Australia, killing more than 40 persons.

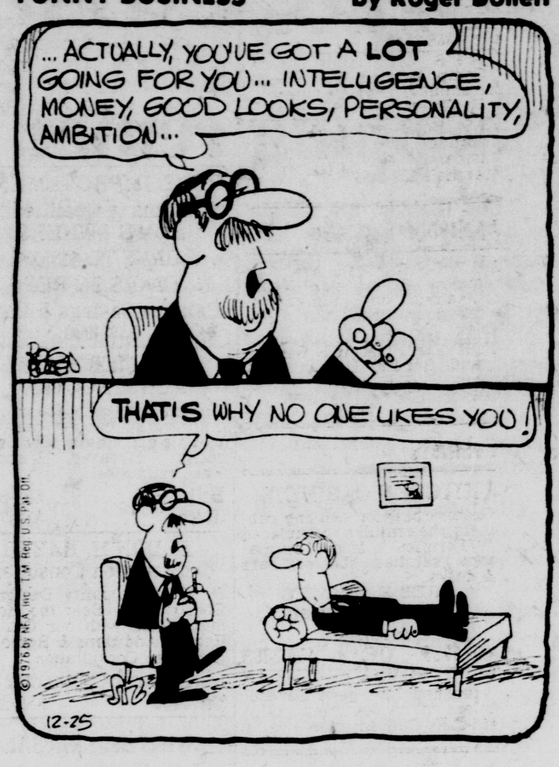
FUNNY BUSINESS by Roger Bollen



Spiders keep plants bug-free

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbrook of Science and the Future to Linda Susan Wallace, of Sinks Grove, W.Va., for her question:

ARE THE BLACK AND YELLOW GARDEN SPIDERS BENEFICIAL TO GARDENS?

The pretty black and yellow, or black and orange, spiders that you saw in your garden during the summer and early fall months are no longer with us. But you can bet that before they fell victim to the chill of winter they did their best to keep your garden free of many insect pests. As you may know, spiders are carnivorous meat-eaters, and among their favorite foods are many of the free-loading insects that invade our prized plants.

Most all spiders can spin silk of one kind or another. Some of them use their silk to line underground burrows or make egg cases. The master spinners use their silk to spin webs to catch their prey, and the webs range greatly in size, shape and beauty.

Perhaps one of the champion spinners is the garden spider. Her web is generally two to three feet across, although occasionally one will be even larger. When she is finished with her spiraled orb, she affixes her signature — a zigzag band of silk running vertically through the center. Each evening she repairs her web, but if the traffic has been too heavy and damaging she builds anew.

In the fall, as cold weather begins to set in, she searches for a place to lay her eggs. A roof of silken threads is spun in which she deposits some 500 golden eggs. Gently she pushes them together to form a neat pearl-shaped ball. Now she spins winding strands of silk back and forth, until her golden treasure is almost hidden in a sturdy silken cocoon.

The garden spider makes only one egg case, but the effort leaves her weak and tired. As the cold of October creeps in she drops to the ground and dies.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy: Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Prince hunting queen?

Charles in no rush to marry

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, delight of the debutantes, despair of the dowagers, is officially out of the Navy at the end of the year but royal circles said this does not mean his thoughts will now turn seriously to choosing a future queen.

Among the hearts the handsome 28-year-old heir to the throne has broken are those of all the unofficial matchmakers who have hopefully linked him over the years with the most eligible girls of the realm. He has dillied here and dallied there but he has tarried nowhere long enough to give rumor a firm foundation.

Even his present girl friend, the blonde and breezy Davina Sheffield, 25, is now considered by the Buckingham Palace crowd to be simply an exceptionally pretty and vivacious companion.

"I THINK THEY just enjoy each other's company," said a palace source. "It doesn't appear to be any more serious than that."

Ever since Charles was 21, mothers great of title and fortune have steered their daughters to a meeting with the most eligible young man in their world.

But the daughters of aristocratic families have a comparatively short season in thefsun and traditioally marry early. So when the son of Queen Elizabeth showed no sign of settling down they wed elsewhere. One by one the prince has thus waved farewell to most of the girls of his own generation who logically could have fitted his recipe for a queen.

AS HE ONCE said, she would have to be a girl used to life in stately homes or palaces and public scrutiny since there is so much ceremonial to the position a queen sometimes feels she is living in a pageant. Not everyone is suited to or can adjust to this regime. The prince thus narrowed his choice to a modest number of young ladies.

That is, unless he marries a foreign princess and there are very few of these in the right age group.

Last week Prince Charles gave up command of the minesweeper Bronington which he had commanded in a series of NATO and British war exercises since February. He joined the navy in 1971 and would like to have stayed on but his royal duties intervened.

Queen Elizabeth celebrates 1977 as the Silver Jubilee of her accession to the throne — she succeeded her father, King George VI, on Feb. 6, 1952 and was crowned at Westminster Abbey June 2, 1953. One of the major undertakings is a fund to be called "The Queen's Silver Jubilee Appeal" and Prince Charles will be in charge of it.

PRINCE CHARLES

THE FUND WILL be used to finance youth projects.

Charles is involved in many other of the multitude of events planned for the year and is also chairman of the committee which will select the jubilee souvenirs in March. He will, as heir to the throne, be prominently among those at the main celebration of the year, a national Thanksgiving Service at St. Paul's Cathedral on June 7.

The queen will walk from the great church to the ancient Guildhall of the City of London through streets lined by multitudes for lunch and then a broadcast to the Commonwealth.

With all this on his shoulders the prince will obviously not have much time for courtship. That's why the dowagers, anxious for their aging candidates, are in despair. Not so the prince of the roving eye. He knows better than most that there's a beautiful new generation growing up.

Stargazers claim queen will resign

by MICHAEL DENNIGAN

LONDON (UPI) — The longest running stargazers in the business have looked into their computers and decipher, predictably, that 1977 will be a year of floods, earthquakes, bank crashes, political and military turmoil and other disasters just about everywhere.

Also that Queen Elizabeth II will make up her mind to step down in favor of her son, Prince Charles, in a unique constitutional action in the history of the British monarchy. And that Charles will pick a bride in readiness to assume the throne.

The predictions are contained in the 280th edition of Old Moore's Almanack, the brainchild of Dr. Francis Moore in 1697 and appearing without a break every year since, according to the present publishers.

IT CURRENTLY enjoys a world sale of 1.5 million copies a year, and is growing all the time, says spokesman David Richardson. He says this is because the successors of Dr. Moore can claim a 90 per cent success rate in their soothsaying.

And they never have been more confident about anything than about the queen's plans in her Jubilee Year, he says.

"They are adamant that the queen is stepping down. They are putting their credibility at stake. They are quite definite about it," says Richardson.

However, the six astrologers who in former times would doubtlessly be putting their necks on the blocks for such temerity, stick by their refusal to be publicly identified.

EXCEPT FOR saying that one of them "was a secret adviser to (Sir Winston) Churchill on astrological matters during the second world war," Richardson says "they insist on remaining anonymous, to avoid pestering by their readers all over the world."

But where the original Dr. Moore might have studied chicken entrails and other auguries of future shock, his 20th century successors are "very scientific." Says Richardson "they deal with computer printout in their researches into the planets."

And what's more every prediction is prepared two years in advance.

Richardson said that they correctly foresaw in 1974 the 1976 resignation of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, the West Point cheating scandal, the Northern Ireland Women's Peace movement and the arrival of Punk Rock, among others.

THIS WINTER alone, the 1977 edition that went to press last September has warned of the fall of the Japanese government, the recent Turkish earthquakes and says, against the odds, that there is going to be a reduction in real oil prices.

A selection of predictions for 1977:

- January — Scottish nationalist violence, a possible coup in Iraq and renewed Lebanese fighting.
- February — Soviet intervention "to suppress uprisings in her satellites and Hungary and Yugoslavia."
- March — Possible general election in Britain.
- April — "Tense and dangerous international conflict" focused on Yugoslavia.
- May — New earthquakes in Turkey.
- June — Middle East tension, oil prices up and South Africa eases racial laws.
- July — Sino-Soviet border tension. "The USA could be suddenly involved in a critical world confrontation possibly over the Middle East or Africa."
- August — "Key Soviet administrator" defects to West, revealing Warsaw Pact military strategy.
- September — Internal tensions in China, problems between the United States and Japan.
- October — Cases of rape against women increase.
- November — "Sensational news on the stock market and dramatic frauds" in Australia.
- December — Renewed tensions in Hungary and Yugoslavia.

Prince hunting queen?

PRINCE CHARLES

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, delight of the debutantes, despair of the dowagers, is officially out of the Navy at the end of the year but royal circles said this does not mean his thoughts will now turn seriously to choosing a future queen.

Among the hearts the handsome 28-year-old heir to the throne has broken are those of all the unofficial matchmakers who have hopefully linked him over the years with the most eligible girls of the realm. He has dillied here and dallied there but he has tarried nowhere long enough to give rumor a firm foundation.

Even his present girl friend, the blonde and breezy Davina Sheffield, 25, is now considered by the Buckingham Palace crowd to be simply an exceptionally pretty and vivacious companion.

"I THINK THEY just enjoy each other's company," said a palace source. "It doesn't appear to be any more serious than that."

Ever since Charles was 21, mothers great of title and fortune have steered their daughters to a meeting with the most eligible young man in their world.

But the daughters of aristocratic families have a comparatively short season in thefsun and traditioally marry early. So when the son of Queen Elizabeth showed no sign of settling down they wed elsewhere. One by one the prince has thus waved farewell to most of the girls of his own generation who logically could have fitted his recipe for a queen.

AS HE ONCE said, she would have to be a girl used to life in stately homes or palaces and public scrutiny since there is so much ceremonial to the position a queen sometimes feels she is living in a pageant. Not everyone is suited to or can adjust to this regime. The prince thus narrowed his choice to a modest number of young ladies.

That is, unless he marries a foreign princess and there are very few of these in the right age group.

Last week Prince Charles gave up command of the minesweeper Bronington which he had commanded in a series of NATO and British war exercises since February. He joined the navy in 1971 and would like to have stayed on but his royal duties intervened.

Queen Elizabeth celebrates 1977 as the Silver Jubilee of her accession to the throne — she succeeded her father, King George VI, on Feb. 6, 1952 and was crowned at Westminster Abbey June 2, 1953. One of the major undertakings is a fund to be called "The Queen's Silver Jubilee Appeal" and Prince Charles will be in charge of it.

THE FUND WILL be used to finance youth projects.

Charles is involved in many other of the multitude of events planned for the year and is also chairman of the committee which will select the jubilee souvenirs in March. He will, as heir to the throne, be prominently among those at the main celebration of the year, a national Thanksgiving Service at St. Paul's Cathedral on June 7.

The queen will walk from the great church to the ancient Guildhall of the City of London through streets lined by multitudes for lunch and then a broadcast to the Commonwealth.

With all this on his shoulders the prince will obviously not have much time for courtship. That's why the dowagers, anxious for their aging candidates, are in despair. Not so the prince of the roving eye. He knows better than most that there's a beautiful new generation growing up.

Stargazers claim queen will resign

by MICHAEL DENNIGAN

LONDON (UPI) — The longest running stargazers in the business have looked into their computers and decipher, predictably, that 1977 will be a year of floods, earthquakes, bank crashes, political and military turmoil and other disasters just about everywhere.

Also that Queen Elizabeth II will make up her mind to step down in favor of her son, Prince Charles, in a unique constitutional action in the history of the British monarchy. And that Charles will pick a bride in readiness to assume the throne.

The predictions are contained in the 280th edition of Old Moore's Almanack, the brainchild of Dr. Francis Moore in 1697 and appearing without a break every year since, according to the present publishers.

IT CURRENTLY enjoys a world sale of 1.5 million copies a year, and is growing all the time, says spokesman David Richardson. He says this is because the successors of Dr. Moore can claim a 90 per cent success rate in their soothsaying.

And they never have been more confident about anything than about the queen's plans in her Jubilee Year, he says.

"They are adamant that the queen is stepping down. They are putting their credibility at stake. They are quite definite about it," says Richardson.

However, the six astrologers who in former times would doubtlessly be putting their necks on the blocks for such temerity, stick by their refusal to be publicly identified.

EXCEPT FOR saying that one of them "was a secret adviser to (Sir Winston) Churchill on astrological matters during the second world war," Richardson says "they insist on remaining anonymous, to avoid pestering by their readers all over the world."

But where the original Dr. Moore might have studied chicken entrails and other auguries of future shock, his 20th century successors are "very scientific." Says Richardson "they deal with computer printout in their researches into the planets."

And what's more every prediction is prepared two years in advance.

Richardson said that they correctly foresaw in 1974 the 1976 resignation of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, the West Point cheating scandal, the Northern Ireland Women's Peace movement and the arrival of Punk Rock, among others.

THIS WINTER alone, the 1977 edition that went to press last September has warned of the fall of the Japanese government, the recent Turkish earthquakes and says, against the odds, that there is going to be a reduction in real oil prices.

A selection of predictions for 1977:

- January — Scottish nationalist violence, a possible coup in Iraq and renewed Lebanese fighting.
- February — Soviet intervention "to suppress uprisings in her satellites and Hungary and Yugoslavia."
- March — Possible general election in Britain.
- April — "Tense and dangerous international conflict" focused on Yugoslavia.
- May — New earthquakes in Turkey.
- June — Middle East tension, oil prices up and South Africa eases racial laws.
- July — Sino-Soviet border tension. "The USA could be suddenly involved in a critical world confrontation possibly over the Middle East or Africa."
- August — "Key Soviet administrator" defects to West, revealing Warsaw Pact military strategy.
- September — Internal tensions in China, problems between the United States and Japan.
- October — Cases of rape against women increase.
- November — "Sensational news on the stock market and dramatic frauds" in Australia.
- December — Renewed tensions in Hungary and Yugoslavia.

Claudine Longet's murder trial begins next month

by DEBORAH FRAZIER

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Nine months and two Colorado Supreme Court appeals later, Frenchborn singer Claudine Longet will stand trial next month in the slaying of her lover, ex-ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

The former wife of singer Andy Williams has been charged with felony manslaughter for allegedly shooting Sabich March 21, 1976, with a .22-caliber pistol in the posh $250,000 home they had shared for almost two years.

Miss Longet, 35, called authorities to the natural stone and glass home overlooking this Rockies resort town on a sunny Sunday afternoon. They found Sabich, clad only in his underwear, fatally wounded in the stomach.

AS SABICH LAY dying on the ambulance ride into town, petite Claudine cradled his head in her lap and cried. She later told officials he was showing her how to use a gun when the safety catch released.

Miss Longet, a one-time Las Vegas showgirl who has retained a strong French accent, pleaded innocent to the charges June 10. If convicted in the trial set for Jan. 3, she would face a sentence of up to two years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

The trial first was scheduled Aug. 30 but was delayed because the prosecution appealed an order by District Judge George Lohr to suppress Miss Longet's diary and medical tests.

The red bound volume was confiscated from Sabich's house as evidence. In her diary, Miss Longet allegedly detailed the cooling of her love affair with Sabich and discussed her feelings about an April 1 deadline he set for her to move out.

BLOOD AND URINE tests were performed on Miss Longet the night of the slaying to determine if she had used alcohol or narcotics.

That court appeal (which barred the diary and urine evidence), was the second legal battle brought in the case. The first was filed by more than a dozen news media organizations to gain admission to a closed evidentiary hearing.

Although the first appeal reached the U.S. Supreme Court, reporters were denied access to the hearing. However, Lohr later released a transcript of the hearing.

Lohr has reserved his walnut paneled courtroom in a restored Victorian era court building for a month for the trial. Other estimates on trial duration range from two days to two weeks.

Since she was charged, Miss Longet has purchased a $153,000 home in town with a clear view of Red Mountain where she lived with Sabich. She teaches twice-weekly French lessons to second graders, continues a busy social life and attends local parties with a variety of escorts.

SABICH'S HOME, located in an exclusive development also inhabited by singer John Denver and writer Hunter Thompson, has been taken over by the skier's brother Stefan, 29, who owns a construction business in Aspen.

Sabich won the World Pro crown in 1971 and 1972. He competed in the 1968 Olympics, but was plagued by injuries in recent years.

The Placerville, Calif., native won less than $700 on the tour in 1975 and supplemented his income by lending his name and handsome face to car, ski equipment and clothing ads.

Miss Longet's three children by her marriage to Williams lived with the couple in their mountain love nest and Sabich was close to the youngsters, often preferring their company on the slopes to that of fellow racers.

Noelle Williams, 13, reportedly was in the house when Sabich was killed, but she was not listed among the 36 witnesses District Attorney Frank Tucker said he planned to call.

BOB BEATTIE, coach of the Pro Cup Tour and a close friend of Sabich, will be called as a witness as will 11 sheriff's deputies, Stefan Sabich and numerous friends and neighbors.

Charles Weedman, Miss Longet's attorney who defended a member of the Charles Manson gang on murder charges in 1971 in Los Angeles, has not released his list of witnesses.

FRENCH-BORN SINGER Claudine Longet and former ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich were arm-in-arm at ski races in Aspen in December, 1975. Miss Longet will stand trial next month in the slaying of her lover, Sabich, for allegedly shooting him with a .22 caliber pistol in the posh $250,000 home they shared for almost two years.

Instant death returning to world's roads: survey

PARIS (UPI) — Speed limits and seat belts may have checked the rate of highway death for a while, but recent reports show that with an ever-increasing number of automobiles on the world's roads, accidents are on the upswing.

Two international conferences on the growing problem of the polluting, noisy, death-dealing automobile in industrialized countries were held in Paris recently by the U.N. Environment Program and European Ministers of Transportation.

The European ministers heard results of a survey of most industrailized countries showing that the number of persons killed or injured in road accidents in 1975 dropped or leveled off for the second year in a row.

But other reports inicated that highway death really isn't taking much of a holiday.

A REPORT prepared by Belgium and based on the curve of the trends plus what is known so far about 1976 predicted, "the leveling off of the number of casualties, possibly even an increase, in 1976."

And France already is among countries that have registered an increase in highway death so far this year.

"This is not a cheerful prospect now that we have become accustomed to a regular decline in the number of casualties," the Belgian report said. "There will be reason for disquiet about the future if governments fail to take strong action forthwith to curb any sign of laxity" on speed limits, safety belts and other measures.

THE U.N. REPORT prepared by speed limits brought on by booming oil prices, the introduction of seat belts and road improvements can be credited with lowering the number of highway fatalities.

THE UN.N REPORT prepared by the Swedish delegation emphasized that "there is no single factor that so radically can reduce the number of victims in traffic accidents as the common use of safety belts."

And France, Sweden and the United States reported that speed limits applied since the 1973 energy crisis saved tens of thousands of lives in their countries.

The transportation ministers examined these 1975 trends for highway deaths:

- Downward trend: Belgium, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Canada, France.
- Leveling off: West Germany, Luxembourg, Sweden, the United States, Australia.
- Upward trend: Norway, Spain, Turkey, Greece.
- Traffic deaths are increasing in countries which are developing rapidly, causing a rush to buy cars. The number of automobiles has almost doubled in Spain and Greece and nearly tripled in Portugal and Japan since 1970, the report said.

"All countries show a continuing increase in the number of vehicles . . . the auto trade does not seem to be feeling the effects of the recession," the Belgian report said.

The United States still holds the record for car ownership, with 500 cars per 1,000 population followed by Canada with 372 and Australia with 363.

THE U.N. CONFERENCE discovered that there are now 300 million motor vehicles in the world and half a billion will spread out over the earth by the year 2000. Conference speakers said they were deeply concerned over what this will mean in terms of pollution, noise, accidents, depletion of raw materials and traffic jams.

"By 1980 more than 50 per cent of city residents may be exposed to an excessive noise level," one speaker said.

Radical engine design changes could cut down noise but the effects on air pollution and gasoline consumption are not known yet. Meanwhile city dwellers will have to better insulate their buildings, speakers said.

The U.N. conference decided that although 90 per cent of highway accidents are blamed on the driver, "investigations show that the role of the vehicle is far greater than statistics show."

SPEAKERS CREDITED auto makers with "remarkable development towards increased safety during the last decades" but complained of shortcomings, for example, such as "brake tubes in many cases are still not made of corrosion-resistant material."

The conference worried about how to recover metals from old cars, as from now until the year 2000 about 850 million vehicles will be scrapped.

The conference urged the automobile industry to make a "long life" car to last 200,000 miles, cause less pollution and noise, use less fuel and have improved safety features.

The conference added that cities should develop more mass transportation and "restrict the undisciplined behavior of drivers" through education.

7:00 11 BALLET SHOES
Part One. Tonight we meet three orphan girls who live in genteel poverty in a boarding house peopled by a varied group of characters.

Mac Stevenson: prototype of an average American schnook

By Vernon Scott

McLean Stevenson, who looks and suffers like the guy next door, doesn't work at this illusion. He is, indeed, the prototype of the average schnook.

At least that's how Mac sees himself.

Mac is back this month with his own half-hour series playing much the same character he did for two years on Doris Day's sitcom and for three years in "M-A-S-H" — the nice guy beset by problems with which he can almost cope.

Stevenson himself regularly faces almost insurmountable confrontations.

Just getting "The McLean Stevenson Show" on the air was enough to give most actors a terminal case of the bends.

It started with deceptive simplicity. After two years of Doris Day and a like sentence in "M-A-S-H," Mac wearied of ensemble acting in situation comedy.

He was prevailed upon to devote another year to "M-A-S-H" while NBC waited in the wings with a pair of hot producers ready to role an exciting variety show.

"Before we could get the variety show going, the producers split up and NBC dropped the project," said Mac during a rehearsal break at the network. His basset-like face mirrored a long acquiescence to the fickleness of fortune. "I was left out in the cold.

"But NBC still wanted me. They signed me to a one-year contract. I did a variety special which might have worked into a weekly series. But it didn't pan out."

The show, in fact, was panned on all sides. Mac unconsciously gave a perfect imitation of a man whose undergarments are too tight.

"So I wound up doing guest shots. I made a nice weekly income on talk programs and game shows. Last spring they brought this situation comedy to me."

What they brought him was almost a mirror. Stevenson could see himself as Mac Ferguson, a Midwestern hardware store owner assailed by vexations large and small.

In his new series Mac is bedeviled by a snide old mother-in-law, a loving wife, and oversexed teen-age son, a divorced daughter and two grandchildren.

"We shot the first seven episodes," he said. "Then NBC changed program executives. The new guys didn't like one of the actors and replaced him with another.

"They scrapped the first seven episodes and started from scratch. Do you know what that does to a cast!

"Still, we weren't too upset. We thought we had plenty of time because we were going on the air in January. Suddenly they told us we'd go on Dec. 1.

"We've been working morning, noon and night ever since. The minute we finish a show it's on the air. We're running as fast as we can. Nobody knows when or if we'll ever catch up."

Happily, Stevenson is accustomed to adversity. He invaded the nightclub field last year as the opening act for Glen Campbell at the Las Vegas Hilton.

He was as successful on stage as he had been in his variety special. Mac's not a stand-up comic. He doesn't sing, dance or do card tricks. After a few performances things went so badly he informed the hotel he was quitting.

"Backstage I said I was packing and leaving immediately," Stevenson recalled. "Then Baron Hilton, president of the Hilton chain, came to my dressing room to ask why I was leaving.

"I spent an hour raving about how I didn't like what I was doing, my act was terrible and that I was quitting. Mr. Hilton asked me one favor — to go on stage the next show and repeat exactly what I told him.

"That's what I did. I got laughs you wouldn't believe. I was on for almost an hour. Fortunately, Mr. Hilton taped the performance. I ran it back, patched it up and it became a hit opening act. I quit for different reasons on stage every night. The audience loved it."

Stevenson and Campbell, moreover, drew record-breaking crowds.

Mac sees himself as the classic man caught in the middle, a chronic victim of circumstances.

As Lt. Col. Henry Blake in "M-A-S-H," Mac was confounded by the troops. Now as Mac Ferguson, he is at the mercy of a feckless family.

McLean Stevenson has a new series but the same image that made him a favorite in his two previous sitcoms.

"I chose to play Colonel Blake as Everyman instead of making him a buffoon," Stevenson said. "I'm doing the same thing with Ferguson. He tries to cope.

"The truth is, it doesn't take much acting on my part. Both Blake and Ferguson are really me."

Eve Plumb

Q. On "The Brady Bunch Variety Hour" why wasn't Eve Plumb on as Jan instead of Geri Reichel? D.C.

A. One of the stipulations ABC made to the "Bunch" was that they would be available for future programs if the network saw fit to produce any. Eve had prior commitments and couldn't sign that type of contract so Geri Reichel who looks like a grown-up Jan was chosen to play the part. As it turns out the "Variety Hour" will be on every fifth Sunday early next year.

Q. One of my friends told me that Paul Michael Glaser has leukemia. Is that true? Also, how are Starsky and Hutch's ratings doing? J.J.

A. No, Paul doesn't have leukemia, but it's not uncommon for all kinds of rumors to get started about celebrities. About the ratings, for the week ending November 28th (the last time the show was measured since it has been pre-empted the last two weeks) it was No. 8. But . . . its season's average to date is No. 53. That's out of 71 shows rated.

Paul Michael Glaser

David Soul

Q. I heard David Soul made a record album. Can you tell me the name of the album and when it will be released. Also how can I write him.? K.R.

A. You're right. He did cut an album and it's simply titled "David Soul." The album is available now at most record stores. You can write both Starsky (Glaser) and Hutch (Soul) at ABC Press Relations, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10019.

As it turns out the "Variety Hour" will be on every fifth Sunday early next year.

Q. One of my friends told me that Paul Michael Glaser has leukemia. Is that true? Also, how are Starsky and Hutch's ratings doing? J.J.

A. No, Paul doesn't have leukemia, but it's not uncommon for all kinds of rumors to get started about celebrities. About the ratings, for the week ending November 28th (the last time the show was measured since it has been pre-empted the last two weeks) it was No. 8. But . . . its season's average to date is No. 53. That's out of 71 shows rated.

Paul Michael Glaser

David Soul

Q. I heard David Soul made a record album. Can you tell me the name of the album and when it will be released. Also how can I write him.? K.R.

A. You're right. He did cut an album and it's simply titled "David Soul." The album is available now at most record stores. You can write both Starsky (Glaser) and Hutch (Soul) at ABC Press Relations, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10019.

Touring Lincolnwood Towers

'Tis the season of light in Lincolnwood - a small suburb where massive Christmas displays are more than tradition.

by Diane Mermigas

The fantasy of a candy cane lane, the reverence of the nativity and the serenity of a choir singing carols: that is what Christmas is all about in Lincolnwood Towers.

The wooded subdivision of 350 lavish homes on Lincolnwood's western edge is a page out of old-fashioned, fairy tale Christmases gone by where anything but the usual holiday displays are constructed on massive front lawns.

Since the 1930s, holiday decorating has been a fetish with most of the homeowners there who spend thousands of dollars and untold hours each December turning their homesteads into a Christmas fantasia.

Mechanical elves work in a candy cane forest, angels flap their wings while swinging from the rooftops, a choir of sixty fills the air with song and a life-sized nativity with real animals reminds us of the holiday's holy meaning.

It's a big show of lights that extends block after block, house after house, and attracts droves of Chicago area residents the weeks before and after Christmas.

"All of us who live here have to wait in line to get into our driveways at night. The lines of tourists begin at sundown and go on until late at night. This is a showplace at Christmas," said George G. Rowell, a Lincolnwood trustee who has lived in the Towers area for 26 years.

But the hassle with visitors is insignificant when compared to the joy that comes from seeing the faces of youngsters and their parents light up when touring the displays, he said.

"Most of us consider what goes on here at Christmas as an attractive nuisance. It's always been our way of celebrating the holidays and sharing it with others," Rowell said.

Like most of his neighbors, Rowell has become associated over the years with a particular kind of display. His trademark for years was a 35-foot Christmas tree he made from forty real trees on his front lawn.

The tree was decorated with bright lights, giant ornaments and shiny tinsel. But, the novelty of the tree was a 5-foot hole cut out of its base that allowed visitors to walk beneath it to get to the house from the street.

"For years I put up that tree. It usually

Christmas is a time of magic, of joy and hope and of children

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given..."
Isaiah, Chapter Nine

There is a magic in Christmas
The magic of hope.
The magic of faith.
Of a small child.

It is so right that Christmas is a celebration of the birth of a child, for Christmas is so much children.

It is a rosy-cheeked child wandering through a Christmas tree lot as excited by a scrawny seedling just his height as the ten footer that would curve across the family room ceiling.

It is the cherub in the elementary school pageant wearing little brown antlers and a red construction paper nose for her rendition of "Rudolph, The Red-Nosed Reindeer."

It is the ardent shopper with his fist full of pennies and nickels, hopeful of finding diamond earrings for mother.

It is a little one staring in wonder at the Nativity questioning why all this fuss is made over someone even smaller than she, and a boy at that.

And it is the shy pixie who gives up his place in line three times over until he has built up sufficient courage to confront the velvet-suited Santa and whisper his dreams in the old man's ear.

The message of Christmas is hope.

And it is our children who carry that message.

movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Pink Panther Strikes Again" — Sequel to the bumbling inspector Clouseau's escapades chasing the most highly wanted jewel thief in Europe. Stars Peter Sellers, Leonard Rossiter, Herbert Lom, Colin Blakely. (PG).

"Bugsy Malone" — Ingeniously conceived, beautifully mounted musical parody of the 1930s gangster film genre, played in perfect scale by an all juvenile cast. A great technical achievement with a rousing musical score by Paul Williams. Should delight adult and child alike. (G).

"King Kong" — Multi-dollar remake of the 1933 "King Kong" classic in which the giant ape commutes downtown from the Empire State Building to the twin towers of the World Trade Center. Stars Jeff Bridges, Charles Grodin and Jessica Lange. (PG).

"Network" — The quartet of award-caliber performances by Peter Finch, Faye Dunaway, Robert Duvall and William Holden is a whopping show in itself in this biting look at a television network, the cut throat tactics rampant behind-the-scenes and the questionable message delivered by the medium to its viewers. (R).

"A Star Is Born" - The eternal show business classic, originally starring Janet Gaynor and Frederic March and later remade with Judy Garland and James Mason, surfaces for the third time, this time transposing Barbra Streisand and Kris Kristofferson into a Rock and Roll setting.

"Shaggy D.A." — In a sequel to the 1959 hit, a canine-inclined hero runs for District Attorney, but his campaign hits a snag when a magical ring that turns hims into a sheep dog is found. Stars Dean Jones, Suzanne Pleshette, Tim Conway. (G).

ARLINGTON — Arlington Heights — 255-2125 — "Shaggy D.A." (G).

CATLOW — Barrington — 381-0777 — "A Star Is Born" (R).

MOUNT PROSPECT CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-7070 — Theater 1: "Shaggy D.A." (G); Theater 2: "Small Change" (PG).

DES PLAINES — Des Plaines — 824-5253 — "The Ritz" (R) plus "Twelve Chairs" (R).

GOLF MILL — Niles — 296-4500 — Theater 1: "The Pink Panther Strikes Again" (PG); Theater 2: "Network" (R); Theater 3: "Silver Streak" (PG).

PROSPECT — Mount Prospect — 253-7435 — "Marathon Man" (R).

RANDHURST CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-9393 — "Nickelodeon" (PG).

WILLOW CREEK — Palatine — 358-1155 — "The Pink Panther Strikes Again" (PG).

WOODFIELD — Schaumburg — 882-1620 — Theater 1: "Silver Streak" (PG); Theater 2: "King Kong" (PG).

movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Pink Panther Strikes Again" — Sequel to the bumbling inspector Clouseau's escapades chasing the most highly wanted jewel thief in Europe. Stars Peter Sellers, Leonard Rossiter, Herbert Lom, Colin Blakely. (PG).

"Bugsy Malone" — Ingeniously conceived, beautifully mounted musical parody of the 1930s gangster film genre, played in perfect scale by an all juvenile cast. A great technical achievement with a rousing musical score by Paul Williams. Should delight adult and child alike. (G).

"King Kong" — Multi-dollar remake of the 1933 "King Kong" classic in which the giant ape commutes downtown from the Empire State Building to the twin towers of the World Trade Center. Stars Jeff Bridges, Charles Grodin and Jessica Lange. (PG).

"Network" — The quartet of award-caliber performances by Peter Finch, Faye Dunaway, Robert Duvall and William Holden is a whopping show in itself in this biting look at a television network, the cut throat tactics rampant behind-the-scenes and the questionable message delivered by the medium to its viewers. (R).

"A Star Is Born" - The eternal show business classic, originally starring Janet Gaynor and Frederic March and later remade with Judy Garland and James Mason, surfaces for the third time, this time transposing Barbra Streisand and Kris Kristofferson into a Rock and Roll setting.

"Shaggy D.A." — In a sequel to the 1959 hit, a canine-inclined hero runs for District Attorney, but his campaign hits a snag when a magical ring that turns hims into a sheep dog is found. Stars Dean Jones, Suzanne Pleshette, Tim Conway. (G).

ARLINGTON — Arlington Heights — 255-2125 — "Shaggy D.A." (G).

CATLOW — Barrington — 381-0777 — "A Star Is Born" (R).

MOUNT PROSPECT CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-7070 — Theater 1: "Shaggy D.A." (G); Theater 2: "Small Change" (PG).

DES PLAINES — Des Plaines — 824-5253 — "The Ritz" (R) plus "Twelve Chairs" (R).

GOLF MILL — Niles — 296-4500 — Theater 1: "The Pink Panther Strikes Again" (PG); Theater 2: "Network" (R); Theater 3: "Silver Streak" (PG).

PROSPECT — Mount Prospect — 253-7435 — "Marathon Man" (R).

RANDHURST CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-9393 — "Nickelodeon" (PG).

WILLOW CREEK — Palatine — 358-1155 — "The Pink Panther Strikes Again" (PG).

PALWAUKEE MOVIES — Prospect Heights — 541-7530 — "The Amazing Dobermans" (G).

took me three days to do it, every day after work. Then, one year I decided it was too much and that I wouldn't do it anymore.

"With the response I got from my family and friends, why you'd think I just killed Santa Claus. But it really was a big job and my decorations are less elaborate now," Rowell said.

The exclusive subdivision is bounded by Devon Avenue on the south, Central Road on the west, Pratt Avenue on the north, and Cicero Avenue and Edens Expressway on the east. The main arteries of Lincolnwood Towers — like Sauganash Avenue and Tower Circle Drive — have always been "ablaze" at Christmas, Rowell said.

Since the energy crunch in 1973, fewer homeowners have been erecting as elaborate displays as they once did.

"Our heyday was in the 1950s and 1960s. Every home had something different then. It was just a magnificent show. Since then, a lot of us have gotten older and a lot of the old-timers have left," Rowell said.

"There are still a good number of homes decorated, and there are still lines of traffic filling the streets. But, if 10 per cent of the homes are decorated this year, that will be a lot."

The "good ol' days" in Lincolnwood Towers saw one homeowner build a life-size nativity on his front lawn with real animals in it. Residents recall that the village police were required to stand guard at the display to keep the animals from wandering off and to keep curious children from getting too close.

Another homeowner always dressed like Santa Claus and stood for hours outside his home distributing candy to the children who passed by.

Even though the Lincolnwood Chamber of Commerce once awarded prizes to the most elaborate displays each Christmas, the motivation behind the artistic efforts was never competitive, residents say.

The homeowners agree they decorate so creatively out of sheer joy and love of the holidays.

Gus Bongi is one long-time Towers resident who still spends week before Christmas putting the final touches on his homemade decorations.

There is an early American garbed couple standing in the front window of the family home. The mannequins are handing ornaments to each other and placing them on a tree.

There is a crib scene with the infant Jesus at one end of the front lawn while dwarfs and angels prance around the rest of the property amid twinkling Christmas lights.

Bongi has collected the moving dolls over the years, purchasing them from places like Amlings or Silvestri's, floral and decoration display firms based in Chicago.

"My husband does it for the children, for the public — because he's in the spirit of Christmas. He spends three weeks just getting the things out of the attic and getting them prepared — but he loves it, and he does it mostly by himself with the help of some friends," said Norma Bongi.

The thousands of tiny lights and the twenty or so electronically moving dolls that fill the Bongi's front lawn result in a rather high electric bill for the month of December, Mrs. Bongi said.

"But, it's worth it. The children love it. They come up to our door and ring our bell to say thank you. Parents bring their cameras and take pictures of their children by the dwarfs."

Salvatore Lipomi, who lives just across the street from the Bongis on Sauganash Avenue, still puts up the same lavish Christmas display that he did 15 years ago.

a truck. One elf stumbles onto the ground while another laughs at him.

It is like a scene out of a child's Christmas book. The Italian lights, giant wreaths and stained-glass church windows placed up against the house complete the picture.

The minimum cost for Lipomi's display and others like it is $5,000. They are pageants that, for the most part, are designed and constructed by the homeowners without the help of professionals, Lipomi said.

"Most people who come to see the displays say they have never seen anything like it — not even in the store windows downtown. There are always television camera crews or newspaper photographers out here. I guess we're like celebrities at Christmas, but we do it because we want to."

Experienced decorators like Lipomi are experts at creating holiday cheer for others. New residents in the area often solicite their advice on constructing their Christmas displays.

Everyone has the chance to express his own feelings about the holidays by decorating, Lipomi said.

One Lincolnwood Towers couple has become renowned for their approach to the holidays. The husband is Jewish and the wife is Christian, so a menorah is placed in one of the front windows of their home while a Christmas tree is displayed in another.

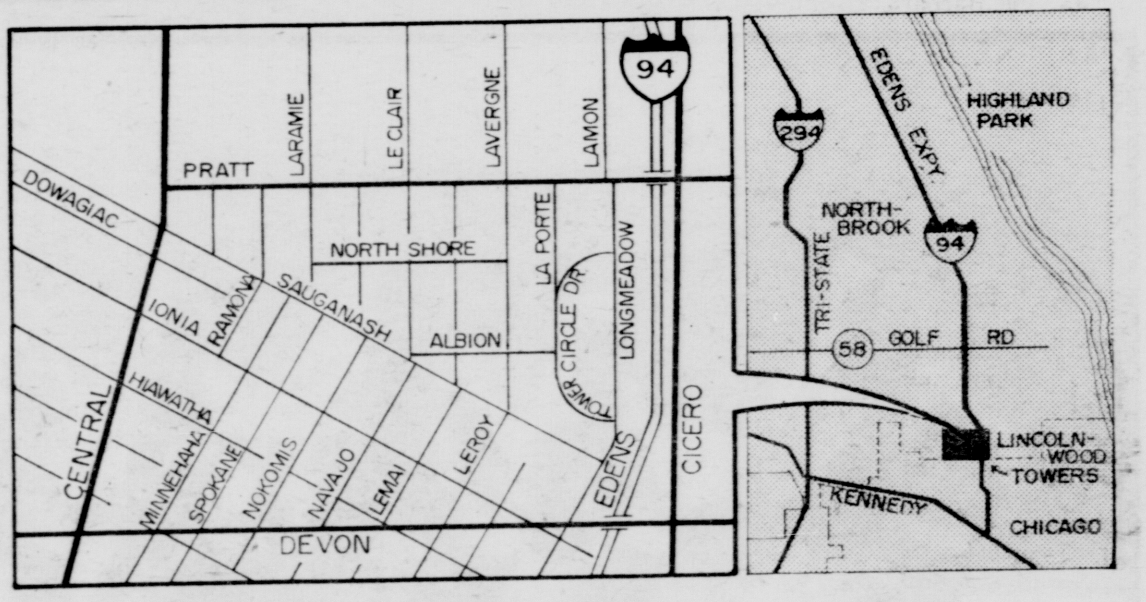
Even the younger generations are trying their hands at decorating the family home.

Tom Owens and Joseph Cascio have inherited the decorating jobs from their fathers.

"I used to help my father with the trimmings when I was a kid. Now the job is mine. I enjoy it and it's something I do automatically. It wouldn't be Christmas if I didn't do it," Owens said.

"It was sure a black Christmas in 1973 when no one decorated because of the energy situation. I hope I never see a Christmas like that again," he said.

The two residents are a lot older now and Christmas will never be the same as it was then. That's why the two men continue with the outdoor decorating tradition they were raised on.



Cascio puts up soldiers, snowmen, giant candy canes, garlands, bells, elves and moving dolls, angels and a manger scene — all of the things his dad used to display on the family lawn when he was younger.

"Connecting everything is the hard part. If I work for 12 hours, three days in a row, I would have everything done, but I go to law school, so I do it gradually when I can," Cascio said.

There is no question for Owens and Cascio that wherever they make their home in years to come, there will always be plenty of bright lights at Christmas.

"We were raised that way," said Owens, "For us, all this decorating is a tradition. In Lincolnwood Towers, you just couldn't have Christmas any other way."

KENYA SA

by Katherine Rodeghier

sa-fa-ri n -s [Swahili, trip, journey, fr. Ar safariya] 1: the caravan of a hunting or other expedition esp. in East Africa with men, vehicles, animals, and equipment 2 a : a hunting or other expedition in East Africa esp. on foot b : an adventurous expedition elsewhere in the world (arctic —) c : a long carefully planned trip (as a campaign tour or a legislative junket) usu. with a large entourage.

According to Webster's Third International Dictionary unabridged, the word "safari" can mean many things.

To many people the mention of the word brings to mind those late night movies with big game hunters stalking tigers and elephant aided by native guides and in the company of a beautiful adventuress.

But this Swahili word literally means simply a trip or journey and therefore just about any type of expedition could be given the name. While the big game hunting safari complete with tents and mosquito netting is still available for a price, today it has been surpassed in popularity by other types of adventures on the Dark Continent. In the typical safari of today wild animals are stalked by a curious throng of sightseers and are shot with nothing more deadly than a telephoto lens.

One of the most popular safari destinations is the East African Republic of Kenya, one of the most prosperous nations of Black Africa. Animal watchers find abundant wildlife here roaming free in their natural habitat on numerous game preserves and parks.

Most travelers choose a safari that is an organized tour of these game areas spending the night in comfortable lodges in or near the parks where wildlife can be viewed from the doorstep. A camping safari organized by a number of outfitters is also available to tourists who don't mind roughing it a bit by camping in tents in the great out of doors. The truly adventurous can go it on their own by renting campers and vans but they should know enough about the country to take the proper precautions for a safe trip. In Kenya, where one drives on the left, it goes without saying that elephants, rhino and other beasts always have the right of way.

In addition to the popular game viewing safaris, which are usually taken in microbuses or landrovers modified for sightseeing there are any number of special interest safaris. There are safaris for archeologists, bird watchers, mountain climbers, sportsmen, mineralogists, horticulturists, agriculturists and even a safari for the study of tropical insects.

Among the most expensive safaris is the almost unheard of big game hunting safari which can still be arranged through a few firms in Kenya which provide professional hunters, transportation and camping paraphernalia. These safaris can range in price from $370 a day for one client with one professional hunter to $800 a day for four clients shooting with two professional hunters. The prices do not include hunting licenses.

The licenses vary according to the type of game being hunted and the longer the safari the larger the number of species which may be hunted. In a safari of less than two weeks only common plains game may be hunted, with a fourteen-day minor license the field of prey is enlarged, but to hunt the big game such as lion and rhino a hunter must safari twenty-eight to thirty-five days and he must obtain a full license plus any special licenses covering these particular species. Some species, such as elephant and hippo, are endangered and cannot be shot.

Sportsmen also come to Kenya for deep sea fishing in the coastal waters of the Indian Ocean. Beyond the reef sport fishing has been popular since the 1930s when Hemingway went out after the big bill fish. Unlike many popular fishing areas which have become "fished out" Kenya's waters are still bringing in records. Marlin, shark, sailfish and tunny offer a challenge to the sportsman. Inside the reef fishermen cast for rock cod, peacock and parrot fish. Fishing vessels and equipment can be hired at many of the main fishing centers including Shimoni, Mombasa, Kilifi, and Malindi. The best time for bill fishing is October through March.

By far the most popular pastime for visitors in Kenya is sightseeing. This land of abundant wildlife, culture and landscapes is a camera bug's dream. Elephant, lion, giraffe and zebra are fair game for photo sharpshooters but over enthusiastic photographers should curb their zeal and adhere to the rules of common courtesy when photographing the tribesmen of Kenya by asking permission before stealing a shot. Photographing the President of Kenya, military personnel or installations is prohibited.

Photographers will find plenty of subject matter in the twenty main animal sanctuaries stretching over the varied topography of Kenya containing almost every species of wildlife native to Africa. The best time for animal watching is during our winter and summer, the dry months in Kenya when animals are drawn to watering holes.

Only minutes from the airport in Nairobi wildlife can be found in the Nairobi National Park which is well known for its lion population. Three sides of the park are fenced in but the third side allows wildlife — zebra, giraffe, wildebeeste and hartebeeste — to roam free in the adjacent game preserve area. Near the entrance is an animal orphanage, a zoo for animals found in the park injured or neglected by their mothers.

Other game viewing areas include Shimba Hills National Reserve which is the last protected free range in Kenya for Sable and Roan antelope; Tsavo East National Park, attracting a number of plains game; wooded Tsavo West National Park and Chyulu Game Conservation Area where large mammals are found; and Amboseli near Mt. Kilimanjaro on Kenya's southern border where lion, cheetah, rhino, elephant, and buffalo are found concentrated around a small lake.

Near Nairobi is Ol Doinvo Sabuk, mainly a scenic park; Lake Nalvasha, a sanctuary for fresh water birds; and Lake Nakuru National Park with its millions of flamingos. In the Mountain National Parks, Mt. Kenya and the Aberdares Range, there are thick cedar forests, trout streams and grasslands and game that is shyer and wilder. Animals can best be viewed from observation areas near watering holes such as the Treetops Mountain Lodge. For a bit of luxury there's also the Mt. Kenya Safari Club, a resort with spacious grounds, gardens, lakes and water birds.

Northeast of Mt. Kenya is Meru National Park with the only white rhino herd in Kenya and along the Uaso Nyiro River are the triple game reserves of Samburu, Isiolo and Shaba with a full range of wildlife. Traveling further north visitors cross bleak lava fields, desert and the remains of dead volcanoes to Lake Rudolf and East Rudolf National Park with crocodiles, giraffe, zebra and ostrich. Other game viewing areas in northwest Kenya are Marsabit National Park and Masai Mara Game Reserve with its throngs of wildebeests and zebra.

Lambwe Valley Game Reserve near Lake Victoria, the largest lake in Africa, and Mt. Elgon National Park on the Uganda border are other wildlife viewing areas. On the Indian Ocean there are three Marine Parks which protect ancient coral gardens inhabited by both well-known and as yet unnamed species of tropical marine life.

Kenya is a land of variety and contrast not only in its wildlife, but in its rich cultural history and its climate and geography.

There are four basic geographic areas in Kenya: Western Kenya; the Rift Valley and Central Highlands; Northern and Eastern Kenya; and the coastal belt. The equator runs almost through the center of the country.

Western Kenya is a low plateau farmland east of Lake Victoria. It contains mineral bearing rocks and was once the scene of gold and copper mining. Mt. Elgon, the oldest of the three major volcanos of East Africa, is found here.

The Rift Valley and Central Highlands, with mountains and lakes, is the most economically developed region in Kenya. The escarpments of the Rift Valley, formed 30 million years ago, are slopes that are almost vertical and extend more than 600 meters in height. There's an ancient volcano, Mt. Kenya, and signs of recent volcanic activity are hot springs and steam jets. There's a range land where cattle are raised, uplands where wheat, maize, coffee and tea are grown, an area resembling the moors of Scotland where heather grows to gigantic proportions and an alpine area with glaciers. The climate is fresh and invigorating and ranges from temperate in the Central Rift Valley to arctic on Mt. Kenya. In Nairobi temperatures range from the 50s well up into the 70s.

popular fishing areas which have become "fished out" Kenya's waters are still bringing in records. Marlin, shark, sailfish and tunny offer a challenge to the sportsman. Inside the reef fishermen cast for rock cod, peacock and parrot fish. Fishing vessels and equipment can be hired at many of the main fishing centers including Shimoni, Mombasa, Kilifi, and Malindi. The best time for bill fishing is October through March.

By far the most popular pastime for visitors in Kenya is sightseeing. This land of abundant wildlife, culture and landscapes is a camera bug's dream. Elephant, lion, giraffe and zebra are fair game for photo sharpshooters but over enthusiastic photographers should curb their zeal and adhere to the rules of common courtesy when photographing the tribesmen of Kenya by asking permission before stealing a shot. Photographing the President of Kenya, military personnel or installations is prohibited.

Photographers will find plenty of subject matter in the twenty main animal sanctuaries stretching over the varied topography of Kenya containing almost every species of wildlife native to Africa. The best time for animal watching is during our winter and summer, the dry months in Kenya when animals are drawn to watering holes.

Only minutes from the airport in Nairobi wildlife can be found in the Nairobi National Park which is well known for its lion population. Three sides of the park are fenced in but the third side allows wildlife — zebra, giraffe, wildebeeste and hartebeeste — to roam free in the adjacent game preserve area. Near the entrance is an animal orphanage, a zoo for animals found in the park injured or neglected by their mothers.

Other game viewing areas include Shimba Hills National Reserve which is the last protected free range in Kenya for Sable and Roan antelope; Tsavo East National Park, attracting a number of plains game; wooded Tsavo West National Park and Chyulu Game Conservation Area where large mammals are found; and Amboseli near Mt. Kilimanjaro on Kenya's southern border where lion, cheetah, rhino, elephant, and buffalo are found concentrated around a small lake.

Near Nairobi is Ol Doinyo Sabuk, mainly a scenic park; Lake Nalvasha, a sanctuary for fresh water birds; and Lake Nakuru National Park with its millions of flamingos. In the Mountain National Parks, Mt. Kenya and the Aberdares Range, there are thick cedar forests, trout streams and grasslands and game that is shyer and wilder. Animals can best be viewed from observation areas near watering holes such as the Treetops Mountain Lodge. For a bit of luxury there's also the Mt. Kenya Safari Club, a resort with spacious grounds, gardens, lakes and water birds.

Northeast of Mt. Kenya is Meru National Park with the only white rhino herd in Kenya and along the Uaso Nyiro River are the triple game reserves of Samburu, Isiolo and Shaba with a full range of wildlife. Traveling further north visitors cross bleak lava fields, desert and the remains of dead volcanoes to Lake Rudolf and East Rudolf National Park with crocodiles, giraffe, zebra and ostrich. Other game viewing areas in northwest Kenya are Marsabit National Park and Masai Mara Game Reserve with its throngs of wildebeests and zebra.

Lambwe Valley Game Reserve near Lake Victoria, the largest lake in Africa, and Mt. Elgon National Park on the Uganda border are other wildlife viewing areas. On the Indian Ocean there are three Marine Parks which protect ancient coral gardens inhabited by both well-known and as yet unnamed species of tropical marine life.

Kenya is a land of variety and contrast not only in its wildlife, but in its rich cultural history and its climate and geography.

There are four basic geographic areas in Kenya: Western Kenya; the Rift Valley and Central Highlands; Northern and Eastern Kenya; and the coastal belt. The equator runs almost through the center of the country.

Western Kenya is a low plateau farmland east of Lake Victoria. It contains mineral bearing rocks and was once the scene of gold and copper mining. Mt. Elgon, the oldest of the three major volcanos of East Africa, is found here.

The Rift Valley and Central Highlands, with mountains and lakes, is the most economically developed region in Kenya. The escarpments of the Rift Valley, formed 30 million years ago, are slopes that are almost vertical and extend more than 600 meters in height. There's an ancient volcano, Mt. Kenya, and signs of recent volcanic activity are hot springs and steam jets. There's a range land where cattle are raised, uplands where wheat, maize, coffee and tea are grown, an area resembling the moors of Scotland where heather grows to gigantic proportions and an alpine area with glaciers. The climate is fresh and invigorating and ranges from temperate in the Central Rift Valley to arctic on Mt. Kenya. In Nairobi temperatures range from the 50s well up into the 70s.

Northern and Eastern Kenya's remarkable feature is the Yatta Plateau, the longest lava flow in the world. There's a bleak lava desert, a sand desert and a large savannah grassland.

The coastal belt is an expanse of sandy beaches, raised cliffs of coral rocks and areas of mangrove swamp. The climate is hot with seventy per cent humidity but tempered by sea breezes. The coastal plains yield fruits, nuts, and cotton but soon give way to deserts.

The roots of Kenya's civilization go back thousands of years and anthropologists believe it is one of the oldest habitations of Man. Anthropologist Dr. L.S.B. Leakey discovered fossil skulls of pre-man in the Rift Valley and in 1972 his son discovered a skull with large cranial capacity dated 2.6 million years near Lake Rudolf.

Kenya's coast appeared in recorded history more than a thousand years ago. Through the centuries it was visited by Persians, Arabs, Turks and Portuguese. Vasco da Gama anchored his fleet of Portuguese ships at Malindi in 1489 and a 200-year struggle for control of the coast ensued between the Arabs and the Portuguese. The Arabs became powerful again in the 18th Century and in 1888 the Imperial British East Africa Company assumed control.

There are seventy different tribes in Kenya. The major ethnic groups are the Bantu, the Nilotic, Nilo Hamitic, and Hamitic.

The Bantu include the Kikuyu people, now the largest and most gregarious tribe in Kenya and the predominant ethnic group of Nairobi. Like their near relatives, the Meru and the Embu, they are deeply rooted in the land, are quick to adopt modern ideas and today are important in commerce and agriculture. The Kamba tribesmen are farmers and they are great acrobatic dancers, prolific wood carvers and they have a rich oral tradition based on respect for ancestral spirits. Another group of Bantu live in the coastal areas. Among these are the Giriama, perhaps best known by the dancing of the women in grass skirts built like bustles of the Victorian period.

The Nilo Hamitic are nomadic people inhabiting the plains and semi-deserts of Southern and Northern Kenya. The largest group is the Kalenjin but the Masai are the most well known. These fierce warriors were once a terror in Kenya but today they are peaceful, earning a living as ranchers. Many traditions are still intact including the striking red ochre dress, bead work, diet of cow's blood and milk and a spartan way of life.

The only large Nilotic group in Kenya are the Luo near Lake Victoria. Their ceremonial dress includes colobus skins, hippo teeth and python bones.

The Hametic peoples of Northern Kenya are related to the peoples of Ethiopia and Somalia. They are nomadic cattlemen who load complex huts onto camels as they move from one water hole to the next.

With the possible exception of Uganda on its western border, Kenya has peaceful neighbors. There have been no major political upheavals in Kenya since its independence in 1963 and the republic is a member of the United Nations Organization. Kenya has earned a reputation as a safe place for visitors. It has developed an extensive tourist trade and it welcomes visitors.

The major urbanized tourist areas in Kenya are the coastal areas and the capital city of Nairobi.

The island town of Mombasa, the largest port on the East African coast, is an amalgam of old and new: churches, temples and mosques, limousines and pushcarts. Tourist attractions on the coast include the Mombasa harbor where sailing dhows from Arabia, Iran and India can be seen; Fort Jesus which has a shop selling African crafts; Gedi near Malindi, a ruined city hidden deep in the forest; and the Swahili Muslim community of Lamu with its mosques and archeological ruins.

Nairobi is a young and modern city which began as a depot of the Mombasa-Lake Victoria Railway constructed by the British. Today there are more than 5,500 hotel beds in the city from economy to international standard and there are two airports with a third under construction. Shopping is in the area of Kenyatta Avenue where best buys are carvings, cultural artifacts, silks, semi-precious stones, and controlled game skins. The city's attractions include ten golf courses, two race tracks, the National Museum containing information on Kenya wildlife and culture, Snake Park with reptiles unlikely to be encountered in the bush, and an Arboretum with a fine collection of East African trees and shrubs. Near Nairobi is Bomas of Kenya, a reconstructed village representing the homesteads and crafts of the major ethnic groups. The Bomas Dancers perform daily in a theater seating 1,200 people.

The currency unit in Kenya is the shilling which is divided into 100 cents. While the exchange rate does fluctuate there are now about seven shillings to the dollar. The exchange of currency is strictly regulated so money can only be changed at authorized places such as banks and hotels. Receipts given when changing currency should be kept by tourists until after departure from Kenya.

Porters are usually tipped about one to 1/50 shillings per piece of luggage and taxi drivers are tipped about ten per cent of the fare unless the taxi does not have a meter and fare is pre-negotiated. A tip of ten per cent is left for waiters unless a service charge is included and the most lavish tips go to safari assistants and drivers, about 100 shillings for a two week safari.

Tap water in large urban areas is safe but should be boiled in outlying areas. Foods consist of beef, lamb, pork, dairy products and tropical fruits and vegetables and there are restaurants serving English, American, Greek, Italian, French, Indian, and Arab foods. There are also excellent steak houses.

On the coast beachwear is worn along with cotton shirts and dresses. Inland a sweater, jacket or light overcoat may be needed on cool evenings. Suits are worn for some occasions. On safari the most practical type of clothing is the safari suit with long trousers which can be purchased at reasonable prices in Kenya. Any long trousers and shirt will do but some form of headgear should be brought along for protection against sun and dust.

Surprisingly there are a large number of airlines which serve Kenya. Travel packages are offered by airlines as well as several touring companies and outfitters. For information contact travel agents or Kenya Tourist Office, 15 E. 51st St., New York, N.Y. 10022 §

Confrontation in the bush — Kenya's numerous game preserves allow wildlife to roam freely in their natural habitats.

Safaris available on the Dark Continent in 1977

Among the African safaris planned for the 1977 travel season is a journey to East Africa sponsored by John G. Shedd Aquarium in Chicago March 2-21.

The Shedd Aquarium Aquatic Safari, organized by Abercrombie and Kent International, Inc., is a combination of land and sea adventures in the bush and coral coast of Kenya.

With departure from O'Hare via Lufthansa German Airlines flight 431, the itinerary begins with a day in Frankfurt, Germany and visit to the Frankfurt Zoo and Aquarium before traveling on to Nairobi, Kenya. The safari includes the Samburu Game Reserve, Lake Naivasha, Masai Mara game area, Serengeti National Park, Olduvai Gorge, and Lake Manyara.

Travelers have the option of continuing on the regular itinerary or taking a side trip to the Seychelles Islands along the coast. Those who choose the regular itinerary will visit Amboseli National Park, Tsavo West National Park, and Watamu Marine National Park while those taking the Seychelles Islands route will visit Marine National Park, Ste. Anne Island and the Nature Reserve of the Vallee de Mai.

Cost of the regular itinerary is $2,425 per person and the Seychelles extension costs $2,535. Three meals per day are included except in Nairobi and accommodations are rooms with private bath or showers at luxury hotels and similar accommodations at lodges and safari camps.

Information is available from Peg Kern, John G. Shedd Aquarium, 1200 S. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60605, telephone 939-2426.

Air Afrique's "Dakar Week" begins and ends with a non-stop flight between New York and the West African capital. Deluxe accommodations with daily continental breakfasts are at the new beach resort Diorama Hotel located on a white sand Atlantic beach. Three dinner shows, featuring African and French cuisine and native entertainment, are offered at the hotel.

The "Dakar Week" also includes three half-day sightseeing excursions, beginning with a morning tour of city highlights, including the Great Mosque and Soumbedioune Handicraft Village. The second tour is to historic Goree Island, long contested by the European powers and active scene of the colonial slave trade. A third visit is to the fishing village of Cayar and exotic gardens of Sangal Kane.

Weekly Saturday departures for the Dakar Week are offered through April 9, 1977. The all-inclusive cost of the program, based on double hotel occupancy, is $695.

To book the Dakar Week program, contact your travel agent, or Air France/Air Afrique Traveltheque, 683 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

The west and east coasts of Africa are featured in two new tours by Air Afrique.

On the fourteen day sojourn to West Africa, arriving at Abidjan from New York, one catches a glimpse of modern Africa from the Hotel Ivoire.

But ancient tribes and customs are never very far away. Proceeding from Lome to Ganvie, one visits the large fishing village built on stilts in the water where life goes on as it has for generations. Ghana provides a coastal drive to Cape Coast Castle, built by early European traders, where slaves were held in captivity. This is followed by a daylight train trip through rich forest areas and mining towns such as Obuasi, the world's richest single gold mine.

Kumasi is the capital of the Ashanti Region. The famous stool carvers, kente cloth weavers and the goldsmiths of Odum Street ply their trades as they have for hundreds of years. One witnesses more of these ancient trades in the markets of Accra and especially in Monrovia where a wise selection of age-old traditional designs in ivory carvings, weaving and jewelry are found in abundance.

The three week tour repeats the first half of the West African trip, then adds Kenya, Tanzania, with a two day stopover in London before returning to the U.S.

The Kenya part of the trip begins in Nairobi from which the tour departs for an evening at Treetops Hotel or The Ark. There elephants, rhino, buffalo, and other game gather around the water hole below the observation deck. Lunch at the Mount Kenya Safari Club — and a drive past the Mt. Longonot volcano to the Masai Mara Game Reserve round out the program.

The delights of London's shopping and theater offer a variety of temptations before departure for New York.

The fourteen day tour is $1,596, including both land and air, with a $160 charge for a single room. The three week tour is $2,202, for both land and air with a $295 charge for single room. For additional information contact your travel agent or Air Afrique, 683 Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022.

Mountain Travel, Inc., a wilderness travel organization, is offering a variety of East African safaris in 1977. Travelers hike and camp out when possible and cover the terrain in four-wheel-drive vehicles. The safaris are designed for groups of five to fifteen people and are led by a safari specialist.

On the Kenya and Tanzania Game Safari, Jan. 31 to Feb. 22, travelers visit the Loita Hills in the Rift Valley, the Masai Mara area, the Serengeti Plain, Olduvai Gorge, Ngorongoro Crater, Lake Manyara, Mt. Meru, Mt. Kilimanjaro, and the Amboseli and Tsavo game areas. The safari is priced at $1,780 excluding air fare.

During the Northern Kenya Hiking Safari, Feb. 24 to March 16, travelers will use camels as pack animals. The safari includes the game areas of Meru and Samburu, the Mathews Range and Ndoto Mountains, Mt. Kenya National Park and the Aberdare game area. Cost of the safari is $1,685 excluding air fare.

Information is available from Mountain Travel, 1398 Solano Ave., Albany, Calif. 94706.

In some areas of Northern Kenya camels are still a means of transportation.

Triple New Year's celebration on Concorde

Air France is offering travelers an opportunity to celebrate New Year's Eve three times on a supersonic Concorde transatlantic flight Dec. 31.

A travel package called Encore III provides for one celebration in Paris, a second midway across the Atlantic, and the third in Washington, D. C.

Breakers hotel observes birthday in Florida

The Breakers, a landmark of Florida's Gold Coast, observes its 50th anniversary Dec. 29. The world famous resort hotel was built on the site of what was then the world's largest wooden hotel — The Palm Beach Inn, built in the 1890s by Henry Morrison Flagler, the railroad, oil and real estate tycoon.

Bahamas travel packages at Princess hotels

Travelers can take advantage of the ultimate Freeport fling through packages available until April 16, 1977 through the three Princess hotels in the Bahamas.

The "Sports Spectacular," with separate three-day/two-night and eight-day/seven-night plans, includes a variety of golf, tennis, and water sports options, plus evening entertainment and sightseeing. Price per person, based on double occupancy, starts at $76 (three days/two nights) and $266 (eight days/seven nights) at the 800-room Bahamas Princess; $79 and $276 respectively at the 400-room Princess Tower; and $86 and $301 at the 177-room Xanadu Princess hotel.

The action-oriented "Escape Holiday," a three-day/two-night plan includes free daytime tennis, greens fees for golf, a tramride sightseeing tour, plus entertainment and cocktail in a Princess night club. Per person, double occupancy rates begin at $62 (Bahamas Princess), $65 (Princess Tower), and $72 (Xanadu).

Michigan cross country ski guide available

A new forty-eight page, full color publication featuring cross-country skiing is available from East Michigan Tourist Assn.

The book details two dozen marked cross-country trails. However, thousands of unmarked acres are available that are suited to the adventurer.

Information on more than seventy marked snowmobile trails, including phone numbers for snow conditions, makes planning a snowmobile safari a more certain excursion.

Eleven ski parks offer terrain for the novice or advanced skier.

Colorful art of each area and highway map sections are included in the guide. For a free copy, write to: East Michigan Tourist Assn., Log Office, Bay City, Mich. 48706.

Michigan cross country ski guide available

A new forty-eight page, full color publication featuring cross-country skiing is available from East Michigan Tourist Assn.

The book details two dozen marked cross-country trails. However, thousands of unmarked acres are available that are suited to the adventurer.

Information on more than seventy marked snowmobile trails, including phone numbers for snow conditions, makes planning a snowmobile safari a more certain excursion.

Eleven ski parks offer terrain for the novice or advanced skier.

Colorful art of each area and highway map sections are included in the guide. For a free copy, write to: East Michigan Tourist Assn., Log Office, Bay City, Mich. 48706.

The true story of Lorenz Hart

by Ellie Grossman

He was tormented enough when he was alive, and in the 33 years since his death, practically all they've done is perpetuate half truths and nasty gossip about him.

That's why Dorothy Hart wrote her handsomely illustrated book, "Thou Swell, Thou Witty," published by Harper & Row and subtitled, "The Life and Lyrics of Lorenz Hart."

People must know that her brother-in-law "wasn't born with a bottle of Scotch in his hand or spent 24 hours a day at the bar." That he wasn't a homosexual, as some say.

"Through the years," she said, shifting on the couch in her suite at the Hampshire House here, they've written "myths or distortions or just plain untruths. So I said, first I want to see his lyrics set down, and then I thought, I'll get some reminiscences of Larry's friends, to show him as he was."

Yes, Larry drank, but who doesn't in show business, especially in the '20s and '30s when there was no television and New York's theatrical life throbbed until dawn in Tony's or Reuben's?

"He didn't become an alcoholic until the latter years," the late '30s and early '40s. That's when the disappearances began, the blackouts and binges that led to drying-out periods in Doctors Hospital; when the depressions became more severe.

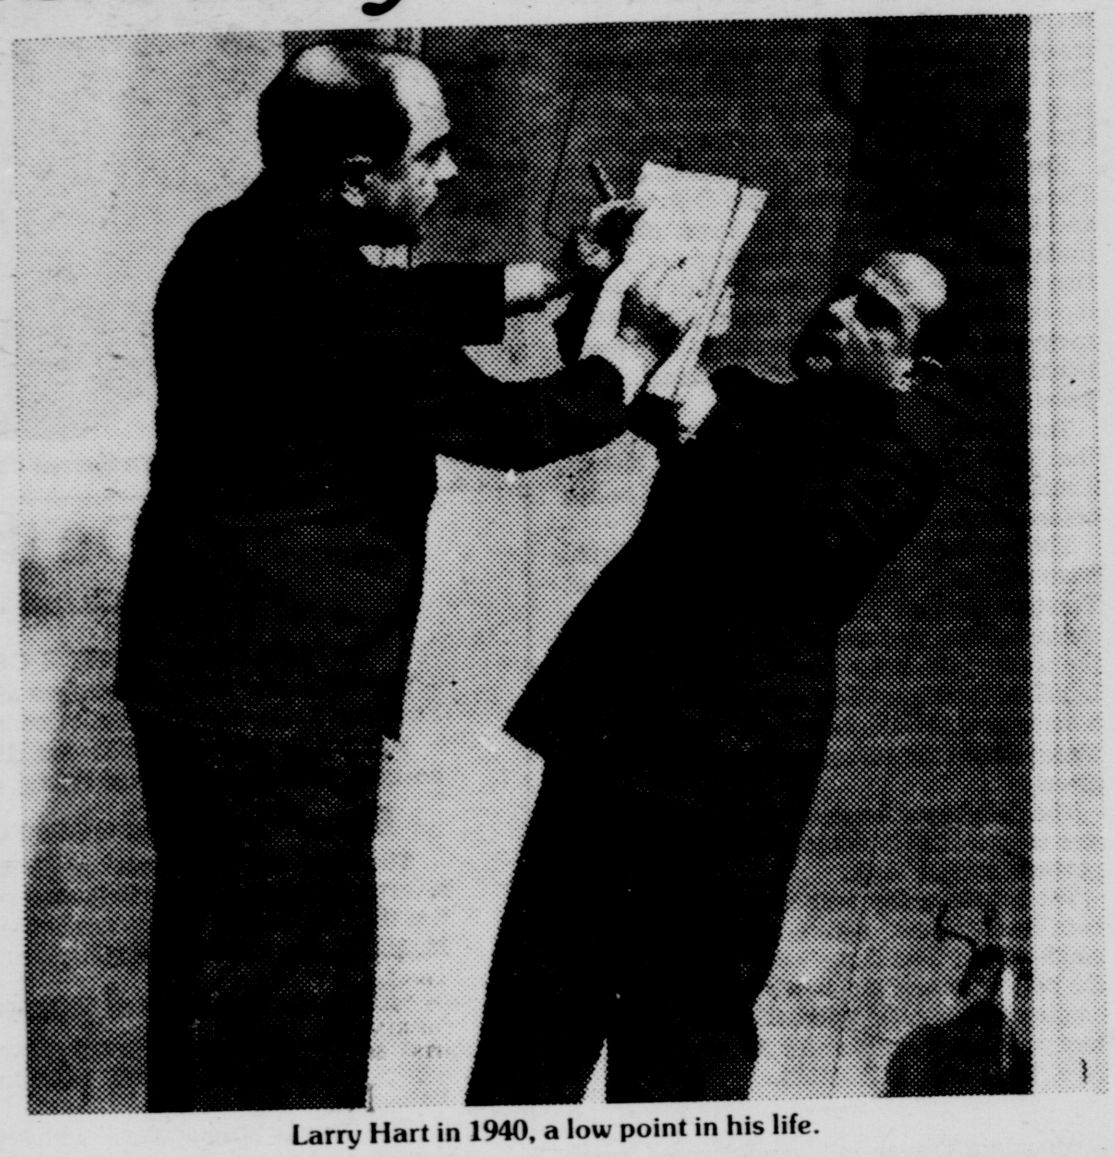
But if he'd been like that always, it would have been impossible for him to put those astonishing lyrics to Richard Rodgers' astonishing music.

Rodgers and Hart wouldn't have been able to say to a juvenile Broadway musical tradition, come on, where's your sophistication, your daring? Watch us; we're going to do the unheard of.

We'll integrate music and book, for instance, and we'll use a ballet sequence to advance the plot in "On Your Toes." We'll make a saloon heel the hero of "Pal Joey," and we'll write songs you won't be able to forget, hundreds of them, wistful and witty, simple and complex.

Their 1937 production "Babes in Arms" alone contains "Where or When," "My Funny Valentine" and "The Lady is a Tramp."

All you hear, though, is how difficult Larry was, undisciplined and disinclined to work.



Larry Hart in 1940, a low point in his life.

He was undisciplined, she says, "he was Peter Pan who never wanted to grow up but if he never seemed to be working, it was because it took so little effort.

"Oscar Hammerstein would sweat out lyrics for weeks, but Larry wrote a lyric in ten minutes," on scraps of paper, anywhere, everywhere.

And "you must remember that Dick Rodgers has a fantastic capacity for work. Do you know that in 1926 alone they had five shows on Broadway? Often they did two a season.

"Today a man like Stephen Sondheim won't do a show except every three years."

And while Larry "liked to pace himself, Dick didn't understand that; he made no allowances" for Hart's temperament.

Still, they loved and respected each other and if there were occasional disagreements, it's a wonder that's all there were during their 23-year collaboration.

Unlike other lyricists, Hart never used a thesaurus or dictionary. The words came mostly because the music requested them and he had them all there in an extravagant vocabulary. He was always reading, often all night or what was left of it — Proust, Shakespeare, George Jean Nathan, who so tickled him "he called Teddy (his younger brother) and me to read us passages." He often shared his laughter, she says.

"He was a marvelous person, always laughing and talking, always smoking a cigar and rubbing his hands together when he was enthusiastic. He had great enthusiasms."

And great, unreasoning generosity. In nightclubs, he'd pull crumpled bills from his pockets saying, "the bill's on me, I'm paying for everyone in the room." Wasn't that what money was for, to be dispersed like aerosol spray?

They say he never stood still, but there were quiet times when "he'd sit and play solitaire for hours when he was thinking about a show. He had a very expressive face. I used to love to watch it." But "when it was in repose, it was the saddest face I've ever seen."

Because, you see, he considered himself grotesque. He was so short — under five feet — that he had to have his clothes tailor-made or face the humiliation of buying them in boys' departments.

That's why he drank, she says, not because he was homosexual. If anyone would have known about that, Teddy would. The brothers were so close, they shared a bedroom until she and Teddy married when Teddy was 40.

No, Larry drank because the women he loved rejected him, because he felt so ugly that when he'd catch sight of himself, "He'd turn away quickly, with a gesture of disgust."

But no one must know, they musn't feel sorry for the tiny man who wore lifts but never discussed his height, and always laughed at the inevitable jokes.

He was adored and adoring, she says, a warm, sentimental man who never married and lived at home until there was no one left to live with. Then he died of drink and pneumonia at the age of 48, but not alone, not with just Dick Rodgers and his wife at the hospital. She and Teddy were there until the end with dozens of Larry's friends. No, he didn't die alone.

To Dorothy Hart, it's important that people know.

D.C. booksellers welcome return of the Dems

by Mike Feinsilber

For three years, a $19.95 book titled "Zero-Based Budgeting" languished on the shelves of the Sidney Kramer Book Shop in downtown Washington, D. C.

Then Jimmy Carter started talking about zero-based budgeting, a procedure to require every government agency to start from scratch in justifying its annual budget request.

"In six months, we sold 250 copies," says store owner Bill Kramer. "I expect to sell 500 more in the next three months."

For other reasons, too, Washington booksellers are glad to see the Democrats come back in power. They believe Democrats buy more books, for the government and for themselves. Almost every government agency has its own library.

"It's been a long, lean eight years," said one book store owner.

"Democrats tend to build libraries just like Democrats tend to build roads," said another.

The book business here slumped during the election campaign. Shop owners say that happens every four years, reflecting Washington's uncertainty about the future.

"Books! Heck, you couldn't even sell a pair of shoes in Washington this summer," said David Tenney, manager at Sidney Kramer's.

"But now we're selling books to bureaucrats who are trying to prepare. They're reading to get ready for President Jimmy."

Washington booksellers say this town zestfully consumes almost any good book about politics (at a bookstore in the Pentagon basement, military biographies sell) but national bestsellers often flop here.

"I ordered six copies of that Erma Bombeck book, 'The Grass Is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank,' " said one shop owner. "And I've got four left."

"In Washington you sell all the books you can get on Ethiopia — I kid you not," said Jim Tenney, who projects $1 million in annual sales at the Book Annex, which he opened in Georgetown four months ago. "There's a big market here for serious political, economic, social studies about foreign places," he said.

"Economics does well; philosophy does exceptionally well. So does ancient history. I put a three-volume, $75 set of books on the history of the Crusades out on a Friday afternoon, and on Saturday it was sold. I don't know where I could send you in New York City to find that sort of book."

Why do such high-brow books sell here?

"Smarter people," said Martha Johnson, who runs the Francis Scott Key Book Shop in Georgetown. "Department store novels — bestsellers like Jacquelin Susann's 'Delores' or Harold Robbins' 'The Lonely Lady' — will not sell at Francis Scott Key."

New York publishers look down on Washington, booksellers here believe.

"They think that Washington is unliterary, that garbage sells here," said Carolyn Zimmerman, manager of Brentano's.

"But actually, if on Monday morning I don't have the book that was on the cover of the Sunday New York Times Book Review, I hear about it from my customers."

David Tenney (a distant cousin of Book Annex owner Jim Tenney) likes to tell how a New Yorker flew to Washington, rushed to Kramer's for a copy of The Club of Rome's "Limits to Growth," then returned to New York. "He needed it that day and he couldn't find it in New York."

Mrs. Zimmerman used to manage Brentano's Pentagon branch.

"Military biographies — that's what they wanted," she said. "Anything about Napoleon would sell. And cookery, home repairs, auto repairs — they're great do-it-yourselfers in the Pentagon."

At the Globe Book Shop, a block from the White House, buyer Ann Landrum said, "Anything to do with politics goes over. We sold out of 'The Final Days' an hour after it came in."

Booksellers say John Dean's "Blind Ambition" and other Watergate books sell well. So do heavy books like Herman Kahn's "The Next 200 Years" and the Club of Rome's "Reshaping International Order;" Ralph Nader's books, and memoirs by elder statesmen.

Jim Tenney thinks John F. Kennedy gave the Democrats a good reputation among bookstore owners. "I remember when JFK got on an airplane with a copy of Lord Devid Cecil's biography of Lord Melbourne, there was a big run on it."

Tenney ticks off the names of seven or eight bookstores which have opened in the last six months. Bill Kramer has opened three since inheriting his Sidney Kramer Books, founded in 1946 by his late father. "Washington's a hot book town," he said.

Newman attacks verbal excesses of public figures

A CIVIL TONGUE by Edwin Newman (Bobbs-Merrill, $8.95)

Reviewed by Jack Penchoff

The educators, newsmen and public figures whose comments often influence our daily lives are also doing the most harm to the English language, says Edwin Newman.

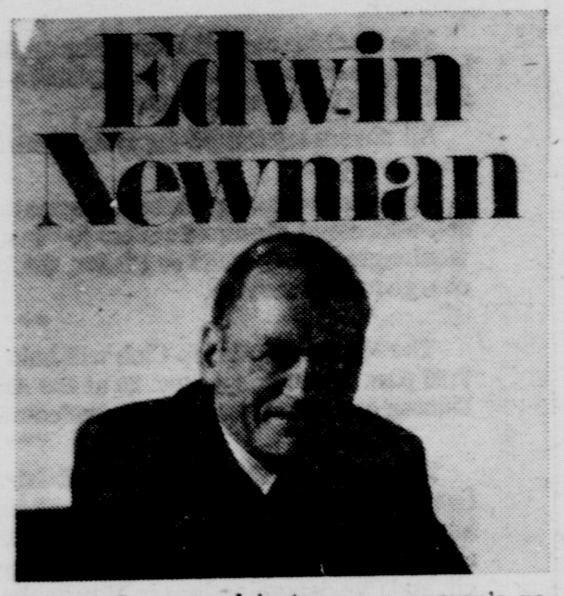
Two years ago, Newman became a hero for thousands of grammar critics when his best-seller, "Strictly Speaking," provided enlightening and funny examples of the misuse of the English language.

In his new book, "Civil Tongue," Newman continues to offer evidence of the nonsense and jibberish that often flows from the pens and mouths of the nation's educators, politicians and opinion makers.

"A civil tongue to me is a language that is not bogged down in jargon, not puffed up with false dignity, not studded with trick phrases that have lost their meaning," writes Newman, an NBC newsman.

In a country where "human interment space" takes the place of cemeteries, where people are nonretained or excessed rather than fired, and where word processing centers replace typing pools, Newman finds a plethora of anecdotes that spotlight the misuse of the language.

Newman strikes nearly every institution to bring his point home, and press clippings, comments and stories of language blunders from readers of his first book provide a good share of his examples.



Newman relies on anecdotes and humorous retorts. In several instances a person's remarks are enlightening when they stand alone. Gov. Edmund Brown of California, for example, in discussing his chances for seeking the presidency in 1980 is quoted as saying, "my equation is sufficiently complex to admit various outcomes."

Although the book has its moments of humor, the writing is often dry and becomes bogged down as Newman overstates his case.

The overuse of the word dialogue, which is often used by politicians and educators in place of conversation, is treated in four pages. After the first page Newman loses the reader and diminishes the importance of his argument.

Although his witty comments and anecdotes give the reader an awareness of grammatical errors, Newman would have done the reader a greater service by using less comedy and offering more explanation about the pitfalls of grammatical errors.

Hopefully, if Newman continues his crusade, his next book will offer more intellectual depth.

'Emerald' follows Da Vinci's quest for knowledge

Reviewed by Cathy Collison

THE MEDICI EMERALD by Martin Woodhouse and Robert Ross (E.P. Dutton, $8.95).

In "The Medici Emerald," the reader follows great artist and engineer Leonardo da Vinci on this quest for knowledge. Though Leonardo meets with danger, bloody battles, and his voluptuous mistress — the book reaches a stalemate soon after its first pages.

'No,' Bianca said, and sighed contentedly.
'No,' said Cardinal della Palla somberly.
'Yes,' said Bianca levelly.
'Oh, yes,' said Cipriano skeptically.
'Sirs,' he said simply.

Not a book to recommend highly, I say unabashedly.

The authors fail to grasp the opportunity to describe the 15th Century vividly and instead, resort to several loaded paragraphs. Recalling that this century was notorious for its cruelty, they try to capture it all in several sentences as a gunner of Leonardo's is tortured mercilessly.

The lack of historical accuracy is minor compared with the book's major flaw — poor writing.

Yet, poor writing need not stop everyone from reading "The Medici Emerald." The book does move quickly and for the light reader it may suffice.

Leonardo, here, is a young man in his "first Florentine period." He begins his journey traveling with his gunner friend, Rigo, toward Malta. He seeks knowledge from "Il Fortunato," a ship's captain who possessed the secret of early navigation. To most the ship's clock was a mysterious and magical invention, but da Vinci, being the genius he is renowned for, easily guesses the mystery.

But as the ship's captain can answer no questions — da Vinci must reason his way to the end of the book. So the reasoning doesn't get too dull, his quest is interrupted with brawls, intrigue and sex.

Meanwhile, back in Florence, his patron Lorenzo de' Medici fails to recognize the importance of Leonardo's search and dismisses him. But Bianca, Lorenzo's ward, follows Leonardo and so do henchmen from Venice and Rome.

Against Our Will: a violent crime well documented

AGAINST OUR WILL: MEN, WOMEN AND RAPE by Susan Brownmiller (Bantam Books, $2.75 in paperback)

Reviewed by Joann Van Wye

Rape is not a crime of lust but one of violence and power.

Its victims are not limited to the shapely, young blondes of newspaper headlines but include all women from infancy through old age.

Rape is not a new social crime that is making its way onto the police blotters because of changing morals in the country - it dates back to Biblical times.

These are some of the myths and facts about rape that Susan Brownmiller puts forth in "Against Our Will: Men, Women and Rape." Heralded as one of the most important social documents of the decade when it was first published in 1975, this comprehensive study of rape is now available in paperback.

Ms. Brownmiller traces the history of rape in war from Biblical times through Bangladesh and Vietnam. She explores the origins of rape laws and rape in America from slavery to the present time including homosexual rapes in prisons and child rapes in homes.

Ms. Brownmiller, who has a journalistic background, spent four years researching data for her book and the result is a solid documentation of rape victims. The 458 page book includes another 50 page list of the resource material Ms. Brownmiller drew upon.

She gives details about the more famous rape cases like the Scottsboro boys and the Boston Strangler in addition to the less sensational rapes to draw a portrait of the rapists. She also talks to rape victims to learn of their experiences in reporting rapes, reasons they may have decided not to report rapes and the psychological reaction to rape.

The portrayal of a young girl walking down the street in a very provocative manner teasing an innocent man is destroyed as she talks to elderly, homely and all kinds of different women who have been the victims of this devastating crime.

There were 51,000 founded cases of forcible rape and attempted rape in the U.S. in 1973 according to FBI statistics cited in the book. (It is conservatively estimated that only one of five rapes or attempted rapes is reported, meaning actual rapes and rape attempts probably numbered 255,000.) Arrests were made in 51 per cent of the cases, 76 per cent of those arrested were prosecuted and 53 per cent were convicted. This means the chance of being arrested and convicted of rape are one out of twenty-five.

All this points to the need to do something to stop this crime. Unfortunately this is the weak point of the book. Ms. Brownmiller has some concrete ideas for changing rape laws, making it easier to report rapes and improving the court system in rape cases but these points are tied in with feminist ideas that cloud the issues. Ms. Brownmiller's analysis of her material at times becomes a trying attempt to set forth feminist dogma.

The book is a classic in its documentation of the history of rape and one that forces the reader to reevaluate his feelings about rape and possibly think about change.

'Sirs,' he said simply.

Not a book to recommend highly, I say unabashedly.

The authors fail to grasp the opportunity to describe the 15th Century vividly and instead, resort to several loaded paragraphs. Recalling that this century was notorious for its cruelty, they try to capture it all in several sentences as a gunner of Leonardo's is tortured mercilessly.

The lack of historical accuracy is minor compared with the book's major flaw — poor writing.

Yet, poor writing need not stop everyone from reading "The Medici Emerald." The book does move quickly and for the light reader it may suffice.

Leonardo, here, is a young man in his "first Florentine period." He begins his journey traveling with his gunner friend, Rigo, toward Malta. He seeks knowledge from "Il Fortunato," a ship's captain who possessed the secret of early navigation. To most the ship's clock was a mysterious and magical invention, but da Vinci, being the genius he is renowned for, easily guesses the mystery.

But as the ship's captain can answer no questions — da Vinci must reason his way to the end of the book. So the reasoning doesn't get too dull, his quest is interrupted with brawls, intrigue and sex.

Meanwhile, back in Florence, his patron Lorenzo de' Medici fails to recognize the importance of Leonardo's search and dismisses him. But Bianca, Lorenzo's ward, follows Leonardo and so do henchmen from Venice and Rome.

If you are anxious to follow his journey further — probably best to wait until the library, not the bookstore, receives this novel.

Against Our Will: a violent crime well documented

AGAINST OUR WILL: MEN, WOMEN AND RAPE by Susan Brownmiller (Bantam Books, $2.75 in paperback)

Reviewed by Joann Van Wye

Rape is not a crime of lust but one of violence and power.

Its victims are not limited to the shapely, young blondes of newspaper headlines but include all women from infancy through old age.

Rape is not a new social crime that is making its way onto the police blotters because of changing morals in the country - it dates back to Biblical times.

These are some of the myths and facts about rape that Susan Brownmiller puts forth in "Against Our Will: Men, Women and Rape." Heralded as one of the most important social documents of the decade when it was first published in 1975, this comprehensive study of rape is now available in paperback.

Ms. Brownmiller traces the history of rape in war from Biblical times through Bangladesh and Vietnam. She explores the origins of rape laws and rape in America from slavery to the present time including homosexual rapes in prisons and child rapes in homes.

Ms. Brownmiller, who has a journalistic background, spent four years researching data for her book and the result is a solid documentation of rape victims. The 458 page book includes another 50 page list of the resource material Ms. Brownmiller drew upon.

She gives details about the more famous rape cases like the Scottsboro boys and the Boston Strangler in addition to the less sensational rapes to draw a portrait of the rapists. She also talks to rape victims to learn of their experiences in reporting rapes, reasons they may have decided not to report rapes and the psychological reaction to rape.

The portrayal of a young girl walking down the street in a very provocative manner teasing an innocent man is destroyed as she talks to elderly, homely and all kinds of different women who have been the victims of this devastating crime.

There were 51,000 founded cases of forcible rape and attempted rape in the U.S. in 1973 according to FBI statistics cited in the book. (It is conservatively estimated that only one of five rapes or attempted rapes is reported, meaning actual rapes and rape attempts probably numbered 255,000.) Arrests were made in 51 per cent of the cases, 76 per cent of those arrested were prosecuted and 53 per cent were convicted. This means the chance of being arrested and convicted of rape are one out of twenty-five.

All this points to the need to do something to stop this crime. Unfortunately this is the weak point of the book. Ms. Brownmiller has some concrete ideas for changing rape laws, making it easier to report rapes and improving the court system in rape cases but these points are tied in with feminist ideas that cloud the issues. Ms. Brownmiller's analysis of her material at times becomes a trying attempt to set forth feminist dogma.

The book is a classic in its documentation of the history of rape and one that forces the reader to reevaluate his feelings about rape and possibly think about change.

"God bless us each and everyone," said Tiny Tim. "I can count seven heart tricks plus six tricks for the aces and kings in the other suits. In honor of Christmas I'll let you play the hand partner so a very merry seven notrump to you and yours."

Old Scrooge, sitting South, beamed happily. How nice it was to be able to spend a merry Christmas with the Cratchit family and how nice it would be to top it off with a Christmas pudding grand slam.

West led a spade and as old Scrooge looked at dummy his happy expression disappeared. "My singleton king of spades faces your ace. We only have twelve tricks. What an unhappy experience."

Tiny Tim said cheerily. "Play out your cards. Maybe the ghost of Christmas past will produce a thirteenth trick for you anyway."

So Scrooge took dummy's ace of spades and ran off the seven hearts tricks. His five discards were three clubs and two diamonds. Meanwhile East wasn't enjoying Christmas at all. He had to come down to five cards, also, and was squeezed out of his protection in either clubs or diamonds. Scrooge had his thirteenth trick.

Ask the Jacobys

A Maine reader wants to know the origin of the expression: "When in doubt, lead trumps."

It originated way back in Whist and is the worst bridge cliche. In general a far better expression would be "When not in doubt, lead trumps."

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacoys" care of The Herald. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of "Jacoby Modern.")

Miniature house and carnival on display through Jan. 6

A miniature carnival and Victorian doll house are dressed for the holidays in the special exhibit at the Chicago Historical Society through Jan. 6.

Completed in the early 1930s, the working model carnival has two carousels, ferris wheel and musicians performing a band concert in front of the water fountain.

Also on display is a doll house which was made for Margaret Elizabeth Lipps in 1906. Her parents had a carpenter model the house after her grandfather's Victorian mansion in Baltimore. The intricate handwork of the scale miniatures and holiday trimmings are minutely detailed.

Located at the south end of Lincoln Park, at Clark Street and North Avenue, the Historical Society is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for students and 25 cents for senior citizens.

Field Museum offers new 'Winter Journey'

Want to do something different during the grey weekends in January and February? Try the Field Museum of Natural History's winter journey, "All that Glitters."

The journey is offered to youngsters 10 years old and older and begins in the geology halls of the museum. The self-guided tour, outlined in a guide supplied at the information booth, highlights facts about the nature of gold and silver in the earth and in art.

Children answer questions and draw pictures as they learn to look closely at the exhibits they are directed to by the guide. The tour ends in the gem room with its display of gold and silver jewelry from around the world.

Journey guides are available through Feb. 28. The museum is located at Roosevelt Road at Lake Shore Drive in Chicago.

Black leopard cubs born at Lincoln Park Zoo

Two black leopard cubs were born at Lincoln Park Zoo Dec. 9 marking a significant contribution to animal conservation.

The female cubs were born to Carla and Duke, five-year-old adult black leopards in the Lion House, The cubs, weighing just under 2 pounds each, are being raised by hand in the nursery in the Children's Zoo.

The births are especially significant, according to assistant zoo director Dennis Meritt, because this is a fourth generation birth in captivity.

"Carlo, her mother and her mother's mother were all born and raised in zoos. This shows that a successful breeding program can save a particular species of animal from extinction,' Meritt said. Black leopards are dying out in the wild and are listed as a rare and endangered species.

Two years ago Lincoln Park Zoo received a national award for breeding and raising third generation black leopards. The two new cubs raise the total of black leopards owned by Lincoln Park Zoo to fourteen, seven of which are at the zoo and seven of which are on breeding loans to other zoos.

Olga knows

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Relationship which seems to be unravelling should be hemmed neatly with thread of honest respect. One born under the sign of Pisces may have you, Ari, in stitches before week is over. Welcome the new year with resolution.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Unexpected calls drain you of energy, time and patience. One who is almost as sexy as you, Taurus, enters the picture. A wild goose chase may occur. If the feathers fly, try not to leave a trail. You're apt to be followed. Week ends on key of G, for grog, glad and goody.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Very active week ahead. You make important personal decisions. As week draws to a close, knock off work early. Last day for cash outlay. "Again?" you ask. Yes, again. Now, stop snivelling, Gem, and open your wallet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have rare talent for spreading joy, Moonbaby. Do so. Follow impulses. Do you really give a fig about silly gossip? Of course not. As week draws to an end, love begins. And beginnings can be so beautiful!

LEO (July 23-August 22): Time to take a new look at an old idea, Leo. You gain perspective. Memories of past days (and nights) return to comfort you. Should temperature drop to freezing, keep warm the good old-fashioned way. You know, bundling!

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): Deception is in the air. One who offers something for nothing is gargantuan fake. Tell this dork to buzz off. Last day, Virgo, finds you full of beans . . . and resolution.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Stay alert, Libra, and don't permit sleazy associate to glom on to you and ruin your chances for holiday fun. Be firm. New Year's Eve sure to be a real corker. Enjoy.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): If you find you simply can't ignore temptation, Scorp, then the least you can do is exercise moderation. Ancient Greeks counseled: "Nothing to excess." If you are Greek, heed this counsel. If you aren't . . . pretend you are, and behave anyway.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Minor disputes fade and feeling of tenderness follows. Loved one waits impatiently outside your private little circle. Pull this person in right away and start snuggling. Then you'll both stay warm.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Busy week ahead full of unexpected delays and frustrations. Somehow, you manage to muddle through. I know I've given you this advice before, Cap, but in view of the holiday season it bears repeating: Dine leisurely, drink moderately and love with abandon. The third suggestion you do instinctively.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Social life shifts into high gear. One with interesting eyes enters picture and outrageous flirtation apt to follow. Consequences could be catastrophic, Aquari, so stay alert and off the sauce.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): You ponder personal problem. Are you looking for an exit or a solution? They may appear to be one and the same, but appearances are in this case very deceiving. Forget your worries on last day and shimmy on down to where the action is. Happy New Year, Pisces my pet.

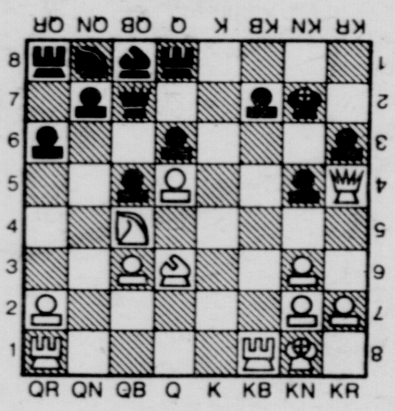
WEDBERG



MILES

BEGINNER'S CORNER— hint and explanation: Black rook is overworked.

Very irritating is the player who touches one chess piece and then moves another. But unbearable is the "hoverer" who raises a piece, as if to move, and then hovers with it at various heights and angles above the board, before he returns it to the original square.

Of course, both informal chess etiquette and formal tournament rules prescribe that a touched piece must be moved. An exception is granted only when a player adjusts a piece that is off-center or has fallen over. But first he must excuse himself with the explanatory "J'adoube" (I adjust).

A few years ago, the Yugoslav grandmaster, Milan Matulovich committed a notorious violation of the "touch-move" rule.

After completing the move of a piece, he immediately saw that he had made a blunder. He, thereupon, reached down and moved the piece back to its original square with a justifying "J'adoube" for his astounded opponent. The latter, needless to say, protested and the tournament director ruled that Matulovich had indeed made the move he was trying to rescind.

The blunder stayed and Milan Matulovich gained the dubious nickname, "J'adoubovich Matulovich."

England's Tony Miles is riding high. Not only has he collected 5,000 pounds sterling for becoming his country's first grandmaster and signed his first book contract, but he has managed also in recent months to play winning chess.

His first-place-tie in the prestigious and very strong IBM tournament in Amsterdam is a case in point. And more recently he won another, though weaker, international tournament in Stockholm, 2½ points ahead of the field.

In SOLVE-IT is the finish of a game from the last event against Sweden's Wedberg.

Can you eat your poinsettia?

A Southern Illinois University plant specialist says scientific scrutiny has stripped the popular and pretty poinsettia plant of any pernicious powers.

Gerald Coorts, chairman of the department of plant and soil science, says the bum rap fable of poinsettias being poisonous began as folklore.

"Somebody years ago said that a child died from eating a poinsettia leaf," said Coorts. The case was never documented but the belief was spread by word of mouth over the years.

Coorts said Barbara Walters during a Today Show interview some years back gave brief credence to the poinsettia myth when a group of wine tasters brought out a bowl with a poinsettia leaf floating inside and were warned by her, "Don't drink that. Don't you know poinsettias are poisonous?"

Two days later, Coorts said, after the U.S. Department of Agriculture assured Miss Walters that the poinsettia is not toxic, she swallowed a big red poinsettia leaf in retraction.

The Federal Drug Administration got into the act in 1970, Coorts said, when it warned gardeners and householders that some common decorative plants present a poison hazard and included the poinsettia on the list.

"The Society of American Florists contacted the FDA commissioner and declared there was no documented evidence to support the statement, and communication with authorities on plant toxicity substantiated this," Coorts said.

Horticulturists and florists sprang to the defense of the poinsettia.

Dr. Harold Wilkins, a University of Minnesota horticulturist, devoured a leaf and lived to smile about it. Another noted plant authority was quoted as saying "the leaf of a poinsettia is so bitter a child would have to be either perverse or feeble minded to eat the whole thing."

After the largest poinsettia producer and grower in the nation commissioned Ohio State University to study the effects of eating poinsettias, the FDA was forced to concur that "the ingestion of small amounts of the poinsettia plant does not present a serious health hazard," Coorts said.

Coorts isn't encouraging anyone to gorge themselves on poinsettia leaves but says "certainly eating a poinsettia leaf is no worse than eating chrysanthemum leaves or those of most common house plants."

Try shopping Stonecroft, Wis.

If you haven't gotton shopping out of your system spend a winter day visiting Stonecroft, Wis., the Old World shopping village near Port Washington.

The village is built in the image of a European community of a hundred years ago. It is a self-sustaining community where the merchants live in homes above their shops in the manner of European shopkeepers.

The twenty-two home-shops have become a Wisconsin showplace. Visitors can purchase antiques and view family heirlooms displayed by shopkeepers. The town also boasts fine restaurants, craft shops and art galleries.

Stonecroft is two miles south of Port Washington on County Trunk C.

Olga knows

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Relationship which seems to be unravelling should be hemmed neatly with thread of honest respect. One born under the sign of Pisces may have you, Ari, in stitches before week is over. Welcome the new year with resolution.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Unexpected calls drain you of energy, time and patience. One who is almost as sexy as you, Taurus, enters the picture. A wild goose chase may occur. If the feathers fly, try not to leave a trail. You're apt to be followed. Week ends on key of G, for grog, glad and goody.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Very active week ahead. You make important personal decisions. As week draws to a close, knock off work early. Last day for cash outlay. "Again?" you ask. Yes, again. Now, stop snivelling, Gem, and open your wallet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have rare talent for spreading joy, Moonbaby. Do so. Follow impulses. Do you really give a fig about silly gossip? Of course not. As week draws to an end, love begins. And beginnings can be so beautiful!

LEO (July 23-August 22): Time to take a new look at an old idea, Leo. You gain perspective. Memories of past days (and nights) return to comfort you. Should temperature drop to freezing, keep warm the good old-fashioned way. You know, bundling!

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): Deception is in the air. One who offers something for nothing is gargantuan fake. Tell this dork to buzz off. Last day, Virgo, finds you full of beans . . . and resolution.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Stay alert, Libra, and don't permit sleazy associate to glom on to you and ruin your chances for holiday fun. Be firm. New Year's Eve sure to be a real corker. Enjoy.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): If you find you simply can't ignore temptation, Scorp, then the least you can do is exercise moderation. Ancient Greeks counseled: "Nothing to excess." If you are Greek, heed this counsel. If you aren't . . . pretend you are, and behave anyway.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Minor disputes fade and feeling of tenderness follows. Loved one waits impatiently outside your private little circle. Pull this person in right away and start snuggling. Then you'll both stay warm.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Busy week ahead full of unexpected delays and frustrations. Somehow, you manage to muddle through. I know I've given you this advice before, Cap, but in view of the holiday season it bears repeating: Dine leisurely, drink moderately and love with abandon. The third suggestion you do instinctively.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Social life shifts into high gear. One with interesting eyes enters picture and outrageous flirtation apt to follow. Consequences could be catastrophic, Aquari, so stay alert and off the sauce.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): You ponder personal problem. Are you looking for an exit or a solution? They may appear to be one and the same, but appearances are in this case very deceiving. Forget your worries on last day and shimmy on down to where the action is. Happy New Year, Pisces my pet.

SOLVE-IT

AFTER 19. ... R-Q1

MILES

BEGINNER'S CORNER— hint and explanation: Black rook is overworked.

Very irritating is the player who touches one chess piece and then moves another. But unbearable is the "hoverer" who raises a piece, as if to move, and then hovers with it at various heights and angles above the board, before he returns it to the original square.

Of course, both informal chess etiquette and formal tournament rules prescribe that a touched piece must be moved. An exception is granted only when a player adjusts a piece that is off-center or has fallen over. But first he must excuse himself with the explanatory "J'adoube" (I adjust).

A few years ago, the Yugoslav grandmaster, Milan Matulovich committed a notorious violation of the "touch-move" rule.

After completing the move of a piece, he immediately saw that he had made a blunder. He, thereupon, reached down and moved the piece back to its original square with a justifying "J'adoube" for his astounded opponent. The latter, needless to say, protested and the tournament director ruled that Matulovich had indeed made the move he was trying to rescind.

England's Tony Miles is riding high. Not only has he collected 5,000 pounds sterling for becoming his country's first grandmaster and signed his first book contract, but he has managed also in recent months to play winning chess.

His first-place-tie in the prestigious and very strong IBM tournament in Amsterdam is a case in point. And more recently he won another, though weaker, international tournament in Stockholm, 2½ points ahead of the field.

In SOLVE-IT is the finish of a game from the last event against Sweden's Wedberg.

Miles delivered a coup de grace to his opponent's abandoned king with 20 R-B6!! After 20. . . . KxR; 21 QxRPch K-K2; 22 R-K1ch, Wedberg resigned. For 22. . . . K-Q2 would allow 23 Q-R3ch and mate, while 22. . . . B-K3 would also lead to mate by 23 RxBch! PxR; 24 Q-N7ch K-K1; 25 B-N6ch etc.
